Her employment ordered

State rules teacher was job bias victim

The Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission ruled Wednesday that a woman with preschool children was the object of discrimination when she was turned down for a teaching job in 1972.

The commission upheld an earlier ruling that the woman, Colleen Simon of Glenview, was refused a job by East Maine Dist. 63 "because of her motherhood without objective proof that it would create a problem."

The examiner had also said the school officials presented no evidence to support the hiring of an inexperienced male teacher in place of Mrs. Simon, who was described as "a good experienced teacher with a good record."

THE COMMISSION ordered the district to employ Mrs. Simon as a junior high social studies teacher and reimburse her for back pay to September 1972. Mrs. Simon estimates the district owes her about $25,000. The district must also restore all benefits and seniority she would have received since 1972.

Mrs. Simon said Dist. 63 officials have not contacted her but that "I haven't changed my mind about teaching."

"I'm really thrilled with the decision and I feel it was extremely fair. I'm glad I went ahead with the suit," she said.

School officials said they cannot comment on the ruling until they receive the official order.

MRS. SIMON filed the complaint in September 1972, saying she was refused a full-time position as social studies teacher at Gemini Junior High School because Principal Donald Huebner "firmly believed and stated on various occasions that a woman with small children belongs at home."

The complaint also charged that the school district interviewed Mrs. Simon "under false pretenses," knowing that a man had already been hired for the position.

The commission examiner later submitted recommendations upholding Mrs. Simon's complaints.

DIST. 63 OFFICIALS appealed the ruling, saying that "experience is not the sole criterion" for employment and that Huebner felt Mrs. Simon was "a good teacher but a structured teacher."

The commission rejected the school officials' appeals saying that Huebner testified on two occasions that Mrs. Simon's children "were a factor in not hiring her."

The commission said the district's "philosophical and style qualifications . . . are too ephemeral to withstand objective scrutiny."

Village to use cash surplus to meet expenses

Elk Grove Village officials will dip into the village's cash surplus to finance municipal services during the coming year.

A preliminary 1975-76 budget indicates that village expenses will increase about 12 per cent. The budget, released Wednesday, has not been reviewed by the village board.

The report calls for a 5 per cent pay increase for village workers. The pay increase is a recommendation made by Village Mgr. Charles Willis.

Village officials are not now able to predict how much of the cash surplus will be needed to give the village a balanced budget for the coming year.

GEORGE CONEY, finance director, said anticipated revenues are expected to drop about 7 per cent. So far the village has released budget figures on only the general corporate fund, which amounts to about 60 per cent of the village's total expenses.

Village officials said that by using the $100,000 in surplus funds a tax increase will be avoided.

Trustee Theodore Staddler, chairman of the budget committee, said, "no matter how tough times are, in no way are we going to cut the staff or high level of services afforded now."

"In our first, preliminary, over-all review of just the general corporate fund, we received department requests for an average 12 per cent wage increase," he added.

STADDLER WOULD not comment on what percentage of pay hike, if any, the committee is considering. "It's premature, but I will say we definitely will not threaten to lay people off or fire them to save money like some villages have," he said.

"Our expected revenues will allow us to consider raises," Staddler said.

Coney said exact figures for the water and sewer budget, federal revenue-sharing expenditures and Civil Defense budget are not available, but should be very close to last year's $3.9 million. Those funds, plus the $1.3 million general corporate fund make up the total budget.

The committee is reviewing the proposed general corporate budget.

This represents a 12 per cent increase over last year's budget.

IN ADDITION to the municipal departments, such as streets and building, the corporate fund includes police and fire departments which account for almost $3 million or 61 per cent of the total budget.

The proposed budget shows the highest increase in the street division. Expenses are expected to go up 21 per cent with Willis recommending approval of $35,000 in expenditures for new snow removal equipment and trucks and $50,000 to finance a portion of the addition to the public works garage.

The fire department total is 11 per cent higher than last year's budget.

Willis recommended $29,000 be set aside for a temporary fire station west of Ill. Rte. 53, but trimmed severely the department's request for additional equipment, manpower and fire station remodeling.

The police department total is 8 per cent higher with a major portion of the increase earmarked for pay raises and $35,000 for a central dispatch system.

The development and building department fund totals are 4 per cent higher than last year's budget.

"Contractual maintenance services and other capital expenses such as for meetings, conferences, small office supplies and overtime wages were slashed in almost every department," said Coney.

CONY SAID sales tax revenues will increase 13 per cent from last year to

Break for small savers?

Ford seeking broad financing reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Wednesday to approve wide-ranging reform of the financial industry to give small savers a better return on their dollar and provide a more stable flow of funds for home and apartment construction.

The administration's bill, virtually a carbon copy of one that died in Congress last year, would sharpen competition between banks, savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and the credit unions by allowing each to offer new services.

For example, the 2,500 federally chartered savings and loan associations and 500 mutual savings banks could set up customer checking accounts, a service now exclusively held by commercial banks.

CREDIT UNIONS, which have about 23,000 outlets around the nation, more than any other type of financial institution, could offer members bigger loans and also deal in mortgages.

And 14,000 commercial banks could give depositors interest on their checking accounts through so-called NOW accounts, which are widely used in Canada but in the United States are legal only in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

William O'Connell, a spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations in Chicago, said he favored the "general idea" of checking accounts for consumers, but he did not support interest-bearing checking accounts in other than the two states where they are offered.

The interest-bearing checking accounts should be considered carefully by consumers, said Fritz Wolf, president of the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights.

"It doesn't make a difference," he said. "You'll charge for your service if you give money out on it."

Five-and-one-half years after becoming law, the act also provides that interest-rate ceilings on all types of savings accounts be eliminated.

This would allow savings interest rate to fluctuate according to supply and demand and might help stem the enormous flow of funds from thrift institutions to more lucrative short-term securities. When this has occurred in the past, the housing industry has found itself strapped for funds to finance new homes and apartments.

The current ceilings are 5.75 per cent on short-term savings and 7.75 per cent on long term deposits.

THE CEILINGS worked a special hardship on small savers since it takes a minimum $10,000 to buy most securities that offer yields above the ceiling rate.

O'Connell said he favored the continuation of ceilings on interest rates "because our loans are all long-term."

A more viable means of assuring home buyers that financing will be available is the variable-rate mortgage (VRM), O'Connell said. If an earlier VRM proposal is approved by Congress "it would allow mortgage rates to move up and down and open the way for a variable rate savings accounts," he said.

Possible changes in the tax credit that may accompany the proposed reform may be too great a price to pay for added powers, he added.

TREASURY SEC. William E. Simon called the act "more than regulatory reform, it's fundamentally a consumer measure."

Simon said it also provides "flexibility that many financial institutions need."

Deputy Treasury Secretary Steven Gardner said he was "very confident" the act would get serious attention on Capitol Hill and that passage by fall was a possibility.

The package of proposals is known as the Financial Institutions Act of 1975, and traces its origin to recommendations put forward by a presidential task force known as the Hunt Commission.

Absentee ballots ready for school election

Absentee ballots for persons unable to vote in the April 12 school election are available at Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 offices, 804 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

Any registered voter unable to go to the polls can apply for a ballot.

Application for an absentee ballot may be made at the district offices between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. The ballots will be available after April 2. No ballots will be given out in person after April 9 and no ballots will be mailed after April 7. Physically disabled voters must submit an affidavit from their physician.

Correction

A Herald story incorrectly indicated Tuesday that Bruce Johnson, who has been appointed principal of Marshall School, 711 Chelmsford Ln., Elk Grove Village, would assume his duties at the beginning of the 1975-76 school year. Johnson will become principal April 7.

$1.4 million facility seen at Nike base

U.S. Army officials Wednesday said a $1.4 million facility is being considered for the Arlington Heights Nike Base to replace the existing wooden barracks and other buildings. The facility would include a mess hall, assembly hall and classrooms to accommodate as many as 8,400 Army reservists. The announcement came at a meeting of Army officials, representatives of the Illinois Attorney General's office and residents, who still hope the base, Central and Wilke roads, can be turned into a park.

Schools may ban books

A proposed policy that would keep books deemed obscene or advocating revolution off the school library shelves is being considered by the Dist. 123 Board of Education. A policy being considered by the board states "books or materials of an obscene nature" or "advocating the overthrow of the government by force or revolution" would not be recommended for purchase. The Stevenson High School librarian, Barbara Gerard, said the policy "poses an intellectual freedom issue." She said, "what do we do with such greats as Jefferson, Marx, Rousseau and Paine?" she said.

Villages get job funds

More than $56,000 in federal money has been appropriated to Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates to create temporary jobs. The money is being distributed among the two villages and the Hoffman Estates Park District. "This is really excellent timing: we are getting ready to begin our spring and summer park work," said a park district official. The funds are to be used to hire persons who have been out of work more than 30 days.

Another Watergate case?

Schaumburg police are trying to unravel the mystery of the missing half bottle of soda pop Wednesday from a Schaumburg Green apartment. Rae Gabler, 1220 Cambria Ln., Apt. 4315, told police that someone had entered her apartment, drunk a half bottle of "pop," messed up her bed, closed the drapes and turned on some lights. The cost of the "pop" was estimated at five cents.

Club yields to pressure

High school student members of Kiwanis-sponsored Key Clubs bowed to pressure from their sponsor Wednesday night and postponed a meeting to plot strategy for a bylaws change that would allow girls to join the club. The pressure came in the form of phone calls from Kiwanis officials who called Donald Ring, Elk Grove High School principal; Domate Sparacino, high school Key Club adviser; and Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis chapter. Members of the Elk Grove High School Key Club are spearheading a drive to change key club rules prohibiting female membership.

Crooks to get village honor

A promise is a promise to Village Pres. Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates, even if it means some embarrassment. So when a plaque is put up in the village municipal building with the names of past and present elected officials, it will include the names of the six former officials who went to jail for accepting bribes. "It's a little awkward," Mrs. Hayter said, "but I'm not going to worry about it."

Teachers hit Iowa Tests

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Teachers Council, opposed to using Iowa Achievement Tests to gauge student achievement, is circulating petitions among teachers to get rid of the test. "We want a better, more modern way to test achievement," said Alma Parrish, president of the district council. She said teachers will meet next week to decide if they will ask the administration to dump the test. The group has the support of Acting Supt. Roger Bardwell, who described Iowa Tests as "a very destructive system of evaluation. Half the kids who take the test have to score below the 50th percentile by the very nature of the test." The test is among more than 35 standardized tests used by schools.

Municipal unit OKs full-time staff executive

The Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday night approved a plan to provide a full-time staff executive.

The plan will charge each community 5 cents per resident, based on the most recent census, to support an executive director and an office.

Full-time staffing has been an issue in the conference for several years, and many members have said the conference serves no use without the continuity a full-time staff could provide.

Each of the 16 member communities will be billed in the next few weeks for the staffing. If they all respond, the program would raise an estimated $25,000.

Eight communities have pledged financial support, some of them up to $3,000.

THE CONFERENCE buried a proposal by Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones to drop several fringe communities and form a new organization known as the Northwest Area Council of Governments.

Jones' plan also called for an assessment of 20 cents per resident for the 10 communities that would have made up the NACOG.

The staffing plan approved by the conference was a compromise with Jones' plan.

Communities voicing support for the staffing include Hoffman Estates, Palatine, Mount Prospect, Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove, Hanover Park, Elk Grove Village and Wheeling.

In other action, the conference approved four names to be submitted as possible members of the new Regional Transportation Authority advisory committee.

Names that will be submitted to the suburban county commissioner to represent the Cook County suburbs are: Village Pres. Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates, Village Pres. Nicholas Blase of Niles, Village Pres. Louis F. Barone of Hanover Park and Trustee George W. Guderly of Inverness.

Guderly has spent 27 years in highway work, including service with the County Highway Dept. and the Illinois Toll Highway Authority. He is chairman of the board of directors of the Illinois Transportation Council.

Railway union calls for strike vote

A strike vote has been ordered for the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks, the largest group of workers in the railroad industry, union president C. L. Dennis announced Wednesday.

If members authorized a strike, it can take place by April 18 and would shut down the nation's rail system, including commuter service.

But spokesmen both at the union and in the rail industry said there are many steps to be taken before a strike occurs.

A commission appointed by President Ford to hold off a strike is likely if the National Mediation Board is unable to bring negotiators from the two sides into an agreement by April 18.

If the vote is favorable "we have no alternative but to strike," Dennis said. A Chicago spokesman said the vote tally will be announced April 14.

Dennis said negotiations have failed to produce agreement on wages, vacations, employment security, holiday, or dental and mental care.

The airlines are unaffected, the Chicago spokesman added.

Blackout slapped on Bond-like venture

Red sub recovery opens controversy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said Wednesday Central Intelligence Agency Director William E. Colby should resign if he directed the salvage operation of a sunken Soviet nuclear missile submarine without getting congressional approval for it.

Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich., newly named head of a special House subcommittee to investigate the intelligence community, said his panel will include the submarine salvage in its study, but said he had known of it in advance.

The government's top officials, including President Ford, refused to discuss the operation which was conducted in the Pacific Ocean last summer with a specially designed vessel owned by billionaire reclusive Howard Hughes.

Ford, questioned by reporters outside the White House while awaiting the visiting Yugoslav Prime Minister Brzmal Bjedje, had a terse "no comment" response.

There was also a "no comment," in English, from the Soviet Foreign Ministry in Moscow.

Despite an information blackout, details of the James Bond-like venture which succeeded in salvaging approximately one-third of the submarine after the rest of the vessel broke away during the operation, continued to "leak" from sources in Washington and elsewhere.

Symington told reporters he had heard nothing of the salvage until he heard news reports.

Nedzi said he and some other members were briefed on the operation two years ago. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Assistant leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., said they knew of the operation.

Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., also knew of the operation. His only regret was it did not work.

The Los Angeles Times, meanwhile, said the CIA won the approval of President Ford two months ago to make another try at recovering the remainder of the submarine equipped with Russian cooling machines and cyphers, battle plans and nuclear-tipped missiles.

Intelligence sources said the Hughes-owned Glomar Explorer, a floating laboratory for underwater research, located and recovered part of the hull of the Soviet G-class diesel-powered nuclear missile submarine about three miles deep in the Pacific between Hawaii and the Far Eastern Soviet naval base of Vladivostok.

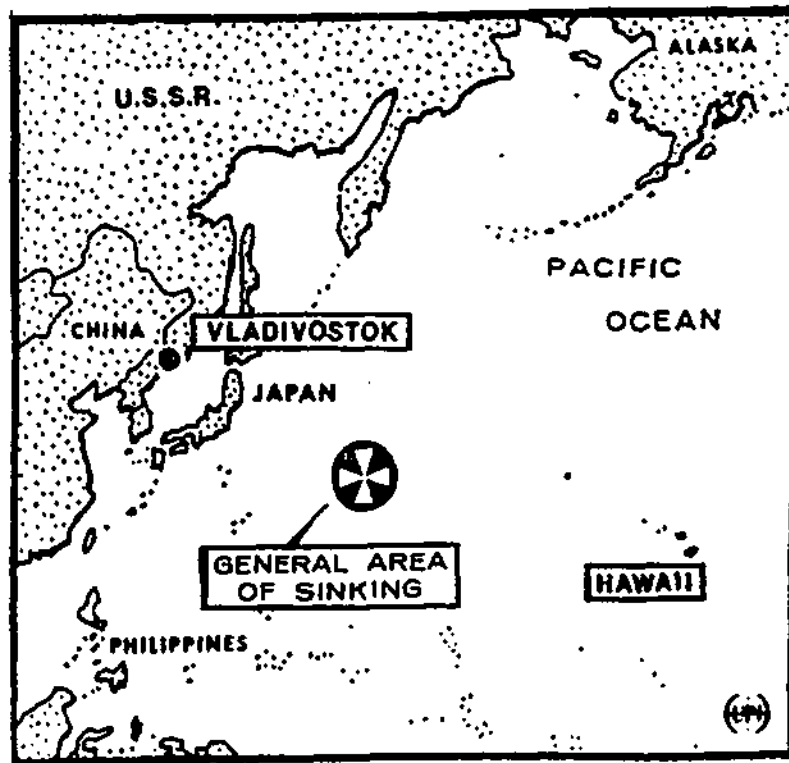

The submarine exploded for unknown reasons and sank in 1968. After Soviet ships tried and abandoned salvage operations, the CIA quietly moved in.

The Glomar Explorer's grappling irons managed to raise the hulk to within a mile of the surface, when the back of the 320-foot craft broke and the most important intelligence-potential portion dropped back to the bottom.

The bodies of the Russian sailors in the salvaged portion were buried at sea "with full formal respects according to the Russian naval manual," the sources said.

Planning to return for the remainder of the vessel, the CIA had hoped to maintain secrecy, at least until after the visit later this year of Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev, the sources said, adding publication of the operation will probably torpedo plans for the new salvage try.

Report 12 Soviet subs have sunk since World War II

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About a dozen Soviet submarines have sunk since World War II, Navy sources said Wednesday. The United States is not known to have attempted to salvage any intelligence secrets that went down with them until the partially successful CIA operation was disclosed Wednesday.

However, in at least one other case the Soviets apparently suspected the U.S. might try to raise a lost Russian nuclear sub.

A November-class attack sub, a type which has nuclear propulsion but does not carry missiles, sank in April, 1970, 400 miles off Spain in the Atlantic.

Immediately afterward, sources said, the Soviets stationed a hydrographic ship in the area. The sources said there would be no reason to keep a scientific ship in one spot for so long except to discourage the U.S. from poking around.

The sources said the sentry ship was recently withdrawn but Soviet merchant and naval vessels sailing between the Atlantic and the Mediterranean appear to make a point of passing over the site.

Senate OKs foreign oil earnings tax

The Senate approved $1.6 billion in tax increases on foreign earnings of American oil companies Wednesday as part of its $29.2 billion anti-recession tax cut bill. With little dissent the Senate approved two amendments that would change the method of computing the federal income tax liability of major oil companies with overseas operations.

The action came as signs multiplied that the House will be willing to compromise on side issues in order to quickly complete the tax measure.

Six oil refiners charged in price case

A federal grand jury late Wednesday charged six oil refiners with conspiring to fix wholesale gasoline prices in five western states.

Atty. Gen. Edward Levi said the indictment charged the conspiracy increased wholesale prices of gasoline in 1970 and 1971 in California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada and Arizona. The indictment named Phillips Petroleum Co., Douglas Oil Co., Poverino Oil Co., Fletcher Oil and Refining Co., Golden Eagle Refining Co., Inc., and MacMillan Ring-Free Co., Inc.

GSA proposes Nixon tapes be made public

The General Services Administration proposed Wednesday that groups of President Richard M. Nixon's tapes be made public at listening centers across the nation — but probably not before 1977. The GSA also suggested giving top priority to sorting and making public those Nixon presidential materials that may relate to abuses of power. The proposals were contained in a report to Congress. The GSA plans become effective in 90 days unless either house of Congress vetoes them.

N. Y. doctors: still no guarantees

The leader of striking New York City doctors and interns Wednesday accused management of bad faith bargaining in negotiations to end an unprecedented three-day-old walkout at 22 city hospitals. Dr. Richard Knutson, president of the 3,000-member Committee of Interns and Residents, said the latest offer still provided no guarantees to deal with the problems of doctors being forced to work excessively long hours and do jobs normally assigned to nurses, orderlies and attendants.

Courts rules in benefits case

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled 8 to 0 Wednesday that laws barring Social Security benefits to fathers of motherless children, but giving them to widowed mothers, unconstitutionally discriminates on the basis of sex. The opinion said survivor benefits were intended for the good of the children, not the surviving spouse.

Playboy 'bunny' found dead in London

A curvaceous blonde Playboy "bunny" has been found bound and stabbed to death in a London apartment occupied by a pop music group, police said Wednesday. They identified the victim as Eve Stratford, 21, who worked at the London Playboy Club. She was found Tuesday by a member of Onyx, a five-man pop group with five records to its credit. Police said her hands were tied behind her back, she was gagged and only partially clothed.

THE ADMINISTRATION has put a blackout on information regarding recovery of a portion of the Soviet nuclear missile submarine which sank in the Pacific Ocean in 1968. The submarine is identified as being G-Class diesel-powered submersible, (similar to the one shown in this 1972 photo.)

Hint control of Saigon area may fall

Communists rule 50% of S. Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese forces late Wednesday routed government troops from Quang Tri and took control of two most northern provinces in more stunning setbacks for the Saigon government, military sources said.

The action leaves roughly 50 per cent of the country open to Communist control.

The loss of Quang Tri and the withdrawal from the city of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, left the Communists in full control of six strategic provinces in South Vietnam.

Earlier in the day, high U.S. officials expressed doubt the government eventually would be able to retain control of the military area around Saigon and the Mekong Delta where the Viet Cong has strong enclaves.

Hundreds of thousands of refugees fled the Communists, urged to flee by government radio broadcasts and loudspeaker trucks.

The new developments swelled the tide of refugees to more than a half-million.

Tank-led Communist troops overran Quang Tri province capital, chasing elite South Vietnamese Marines 25 miles south to the deserted city of Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon.

Military and government sources said civilians fled Quang Tri city several weeks ago, while most of the 310,000 persons at Hue fled south Wednesday.

Since Sunday the Communists have extended control over more of South Vietnam than at any time in 29 years of warfare.

The Communists now control Quang Tri, Kontum, Pleiku, Darlac, Phuoc Long and Binh Long provinces.

The former imperial capital of Hue was abandoned Wednesday and Tuyen Duc province around the resort city of Dalat is expected to be abandoned soon, military sources said.

In Manila, Phan Quang Dan, South Vietnam's deputy premier, appealed to Philippines President Ferdinand E. Marcos to mediate a cease-fire, and there were increasing signs of secret negotiations with the Communists and South Vietnam.

Saigon meanwhile, buzzed with rumors that South Vietnamese, Viet Cong, and American officials were negotiating the withdrawals in secret talks outside South Vietnam.

Vietnamese political and military observers said there could be no other explanation for the sudden evacuation of six provinces without a fight.

In other Indochina developments:
• Government paratroopers, supported by propeller-driven bombers counter-attacked the area around Phnom Penh to clear rebels from villages within mortar range.

• The Senate passed a $3.9 billion foreign aid appropriations bill after stripping from it $50 million in proposed reconstruction aid for Cambodia, South Vietnam and Laos. The House passed a similar version earlier. The two bills now go to a conference committee.

• Secretary of State Henry Kissinger conceded he would never have negotiated the Vietnam peace agreement in good conscience if he had foreseen Congressional reluctance to provide aid to South Vietnam, officials in Saudi Arabia said Wednesday.

Oil fields not in danger: Kissinger

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Wednesday gave a public assurance to Saudi Arabia that the United States was not threatening military force against its oil fields.

He then returned to Israel for the decision of a crucial cabinet meeting on Israel's next proposals for an agreement with Egypt.

There was some pessimism aboard Kissinger's plane about the military reverses in Cambodia and South Vietnam and some concern they could weaken his hand in the Israeli-Egyptian negotiations by casting doubt on America's long-term commitment to Israel.

A senior American official said Kissinger's attempts to bring about a new agreement between Egypt and Israel were moving more slowly than he had originally expected. The main hangup was still over the price Egypt will pay in return for an Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai passes and oil fields.

The Israeli cabinet met twice and was still meeting when Kissinger returned to Jerusalem. It was called into session to decide what answers Kissinger will take to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat on his fourth shuttle to the Upper Nile town of Aswan Thursday.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin was expected to give Kissinger the cabinet decision by Thursday morning.

Before leaving the Saudi capital of Riyadh, Kissinger said:

"I would like to state categorically that our relations with Saudi Arabia are based on friendship and cooperation in which threat, military or otherwise, play no part. They are based on cooperation, not on confrontation."

Report Earl Warren called Nixon 'cheat, liar, crook'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The late Chief Justice Earl Warren was quoted Wednesday as having said that former President Nixon was "a cheat, a liar and a crook" who abused the American people.

Writing in the current issue of Esquire magazine, Alden Whitman, a writer for The New York Times, said that Warren also referred to his successor, Warren Burger, as "a horse's ass."

Whitman said that Warren detested Nixon with "unjudicious candor."

According to the article, Warren told Whitman that "Tricky is perhaps the most despicable President this nation has ever had. He was a cheat, a liar and a crook, and he brought my country, which I love, into disrepute. Even worse than abusing his office he abused the American people."

Whitman said he once asked Warren if he thought the Burger Court, "with its array of Nixon-appointed judicial midges, could erase the accomplishments of the Warren Court."

He said that Warren replied: "They'll try, that I'm certain, but in the long run the American people won't stand for a court that would take them back to the days when it was possible to ask, 'What's the Constitution between friends?'"

Whitman said that in his talks with Warren the one-time Chief Justice had the faculty of appraising himself with extraordinary candor.

Warren admitted, Whitman said, that he had acted "wrongfully and in panic in uprooting Japanese-Americans in California" after World War II as attorney general of that state; and that he used to give the Constitution "short shrift" as a district attorney.

Whitman said Warren was content and happy in retirement "rarely idle, and never, never stuffy."

"His was a remarkably creative old age," Whitman wrote, "for he reshaped his philosophical outlook from the parochial to the urbane at a time when most of his contemporaries were fortifying their lifelong prejudices. At eight-two, Warren was still going strong."

Warren was appointed to the Supreme Court by President Eisenhower in 1953 at the age of 62 and served until 1969. He died last summer.

Omar Bradley seriously ill

• Gen. Omar Bradley, the nation's only living five star general, has suffered a cerebral stroke and is in "very serious" condition in the intensive care unit of UCLA Medical Center in Los Angeles, it was disclosed Wednesday. Bradley's greatest moment of glory — and of peril — was June 6, 1944, the D-Day invasion of Europe when Bradley was field commander of the American forces that stormed ashore at Normandy. The only other men to reach five star general in the Army were Dwight D. Eisenhower, Douglas MacArthur and George C. Marshall. Bradley retired from active service in 1953.

Construction Co., Des Plaines, is general contractor for the addition, which is expected to be completed in mid-summer.

Hoffman, Schaumburg get U.S. funds for jobs

by PAT GERLACH

More than $58,000 in federal money to create temporary jobs is coming to Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates.

Officials of both villages and the Hoffman Estates Park District said Wednesday they have been informed of their shares of $3.5 million in federal emergency employment funds being channeled through Cook County. The money is part of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer of Hoffman Estates said the village will receive $24,150 for three jobs in the streets and water department. Salaries for the 10-month jobs, Longmeyer said, are limited to $7,800 though the village has been told it can supplement the wages if total income paid to an employee does not exceed $12,000.

ALLOCATIONS OF $16,100 to provide two jobs each have been set for the Village of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates Park District.

Schaumburg Administrator John E. Coste was not available for comment Wednesday, but Finance Director Joseph Castor said he believes the jobs will be in the village public works department. Castor said he has been asked to represent the village at a meeting of county officials Monday when details of the program will be explained.

Vernon Laubenstein, Schaumburg Township supervisor, called the federal program "an encouraging sign," and said he was contacted earlier this week by Coste's office in an attempt to locate persons receiving general assistance who might fill the new jobs.

"THIS IS REALLY excellent timing, we are getting ready to begin our spring and summer park work," said Alan Binder, Hoffman Estates director of parks and recreation. Schaumburg Park District also has applied for the emergency employment funds but has not received an allocation.

The program will provide jobs for people who have been out of work more than 30 days, with employment priorities going to veterans, those whose unemployment insurance has run out and persons out of work for more than 15 weeks.

Because the plan calls for specific amounts of money for municipal governments having populations of more than 50,000, Arlington Heights received $67,017 in January when seven employees were hired. Des Plaines qualified for $78,156 but city officials decided against adopting the program.

on the local community or environment," he said.

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, asked Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office to request that the Army issue an environmental impact statement to determine if the Army's operation of the base is detrimental to the area.

The Illinois Attorney General's office is requiring the Army to specify the number of reserves who will use each portion of the base and for what purposes.

Army weighs $1.4 million facility for Nike Base

by DIANE MERMIGAS

U. S. Army officials said Wednesday that a $1.4 million facility is being considered for the Arlington Heights Nike Base to replace the existing wooden barracks and other buildings.

The announcement was made during a meeting of the Nike site, Wilko and Central roads, with Army officials, representatives of the Illinois Attorney General's office and residents who want the base to be turned into a park.

Frederick G. Kueln, representative from the Washington D.C. office of the Army reserve chief, said the facility would include a mess hall, assembly hall and classrooms to accommodate the maximum 8,400 Army reservists authorized to use the base.

"It is not definite yet because the Army will have to decide on the building next year, depending upon available funds and priorities. This will not mean that the number of men using the base will increase," Kueln said.

KUELN DID NOT say where on the base the facility would be built. It is planned for construction in 1978.

"We want to do everything the residents and the Illinois Attorney General want us to do . . . remove old buildings, landscape the base and make it compatible with the area. But, we can't promise these things for another three or four years," he said.

The Army will not be able to construct the complex unless its environmental impact statement is approved by the Illinois Attorney General. The meeting Wednesday was held to determine when the impact study will be completed.

The Army has never issued an environmental assessment statement on the base. Kueln explained that when the reserves first came to the base several years ago, the "Chicago area Army staff reviewed its intended use of the base and determined that it would have no effect an estimated $2 million. "Fortunately our industrial park accounts for 70 to 80 per cent of our sales tax. Other communities don't have such a diversified base to draw from," he said.

Building permit fee revenues on the other hand are expected to drop 14 per cent from the $226,772 the village received last fiscal year.

Coney described this year's general corporate fund proposals as "a close-to-the-bones budget."

Key Clubs defer strategy meet on open membership

High school student members of Kiwanis International-sponsored Key Clubs bowed to pressure from their sponsor Wednesday night and postponed a meeting to plot strategy for a bylaws change that would allow girls to join the club.

The students agreed to a Kiwanis request for a meeting today of Kiwanis and high school officials and the students.

Members of the Elk Grove High School Key Club are spearheading a drive to change key club rules which prohibit female membership. About half the members of the club, like about 30 others in the Chicago area, are girls who listed only their first initial when registering with Key Club International.

THE PRESSURE came in the form of phone calls from unidentified Kiwanis officials to Donald Ring, Elk Grove High School principal; Dominic Sparacino, high school Key Club adviser; and Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis chapter.

Ring said he was "requested" to cancel the meeting but refused, saying he would relay the officials' desire to the student members of the club. Ring did not name the official but said he was told that the club had violated its charter by having girls as members and couldn't "legally" hold the meeting.

Several officials from the Kiwanis and Key Club International showed up at the meeting to further their desire to delay the meeting. Only five schools were represented at the meeting.

ELK GROVE High School teacher Richard Cherico told the students, "If you call off this meeting I will see you get adult help in getting this thing through."

Cherico, who is not a Kiwanis member, was the main factor in convincing the students to delay the meeting until their representatives can meet with Kiwanis officials.

Donald Johnson, Elk Grove High

Donald Johnson

School Key Club president, tentatively scheduled another meeting of Key Club presidents for Tuesday. Johnson said he was disappointed in the slim turnout and the angry reaction from Kiwanis officials Johnson had expected 40 to 60 club presidents at the meeting.

Johnson hopes to organize support for the bylaws change which will allow females as full club members, at the Key Club International district convention in Chicago April 4-6.

IF THE GETS district support, Johnson is planning strategy for the club's national convention in July when he hopes to force a vote to change the rule. He said he is not discouraged by the fact that his club may not be a member of Key Club International by July now that its charter violation has been made public.

"We'll go anyway and work through other clubs," he said.

If Johnson is successful in July, the change still must be approved by the Kiwanis International Board.

The Elk Grove Key Club faces a similar situation faced by its sponsor, the Elk Grove Kiwanis Club, which was threatened last fall with revocation of its charter because it had a female member, Elk Grove librarian Mary Clark. Miss Clark later resigned.

Teachers seek to halt 'Iowa tests'

by BOB GALLAS

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Teachers Council, opposed to using Iowa Achievement Tests to measure student achievement is circulating petitions among teachers to get rid of the test.

Alma Parrish, president of the district council, said Wednesday teachers will meet next week to decide if they will ask the administration to dump the test.

If the teachers' union has enough support from district teachers it will ask the administration to come up with another way of testing students to find out how well they are doing in basic skills.

THE IOWA TEST is one of more than 35 standardized tests used by schools to test achievement.

"We want a better, more modern way to test achievement," said Mrs. Parrish, a teacher at Marshall School, 711 Chelmsford Ln., Elk Grove Village. "The whole format (of the tests) throws the kids off."

"For the younger kids, the process of filling in a small grid to indicate the right answer is a project in itself," Mrs. Parrish said. "It's not a good means to measure children. The frustration level of the child after the tests is terrible."

ACTING SUPT. Roger Bardwell said he was not aware of the petition but was supportive of the teacher's request.

"It's a very destructive system of evaluation," Bardwell said. "Half the kids who take the test have to score below the 50th percentile by the very nature of the test."

"The tests often destroy the parents' confidence in their child and the child's self-image as well," he said.

"It's a box we've allowed to be built around us. The Iowa tests were supposed to be diagnostic, not an assessment of a child's ability," Bardwell said. "The whole use of the test has become corrupted."

Mrs. Parrish said she didn't know what support the petition was getting so far.

She said if enough support is obtained from teachers, the union will ask that teachers be involved in a study to come up with a new way of evaluating student performance in the district.

Classes to help adults get high school diplomas

Adults who pass a test given by the county schools superintendent earn a high school diploma.

In order to receive the diploma, adults must pass an Illinois and U.S. Constitution test. A five-day course is being offered April 8, 10, 15, 17 and 22 at Co-nant High School to help adults prepare for the test. Classes will meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in room 118. Tuition is $6.

A seven-week course in math and English will begin April 24. Classes meet two nights a week from 7:30 to 10 p.m. and tuition is $18. The Tuesday class in math will be held at Fremd High School and the Thursday class in English will be held at Hoffman Estates High School.

Registration for both courses can be made through the Dist. 211 office of continuing education, 1730 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine, phone 339-7233.

Rape-reform bill passes state house

A "rape-reform" bill that would prevent lawyers of rapists from probing the sexual conduct of rape victims passed the Illinois House Wednesday.

The proposal — part of a nine-bill "rape-reform" package — was criticized by trial lawyers who said that elimination of consent as a defense would deny accused rapists their constitutional rights.

The bill, which was passed 122 to 15, is sponsored by Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, and Rep. Peter Peters, R-Chicago.

"If you're not careful, everytime a gentleman has sex, he'd better damn well have a release form," Rep. Raymond Ewell, D-Chicago, said during House debate. Rep. Giddy Dyer, R-Hinsdale, who pushed passage of the bill, said that "most of you seem to confuse rape with a pleasurable experience. But it's not."

'Polluters get Walker aid'

Industrial polluters have received favored treatment from Gov. Daniel Walker because Walker is seeking political support from the firms, the director of Citizens for a Better Environment said Wednesday.

CBE head Dennis Adamczyk said that the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency has cut pollution control efforts 87 per cent since 1972.

AN ESTIMATED 3 million starlings, blackbirds and grackles raid farms near Caseyville, Ill., from this swamp for winter wheat and corn in unplowed fields, despite efforts to chase the birds from winter roosts.

"It's been apparent to me at least that Walker has his sights on the presidency," Adamczyk said. "And with that in mind, you can't stop on the toes of people who can give you money."

2 killed in plane crash

Two persons were killed in the crash of a small plane that ran out of gas in western Illinois Wednesday.

Illinois briefs

The bodies of Gary Mefford, 21, and his wife, Tina, 20, of Kirksville, Mo., were found about four hours after a single-engine plane clipped the tops of three trees and crashed in a grassy pasture near Arenzville, Ill.

Janet Judd, 21, a student nurse from Lancaster, Mo., was injured in the crash but walked more than half a mile through fields to seek aid.

Union set for strike vote

A union representing about 1,600 state employes began preparations Wednesday for a statewide strike referendum.

The vote was authorized Tuesday by members of Local 1006 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees and the referendum is expected in two weeks.

Union members are employed in the state's unemployment compensation divi-

The doctor says

by Lawrence L. Lamb, M.D.

High-blood pressure diet

Please tell me what I can do for high blood pressure and poor circulation.

Three years ago I was told I had high blood pressure but nothing was done for it. After three examinations over the three-year period, I am now finally on treatment. My blood pressure ranged from 190 on one reading to 230.

I'm on Aldactazide and on a checkup the doctor said I had done better than most.

I can't understand why the doctors didn't give me something for high blood pressure in the first place. Now I know my circulation is poor.

I don't smoke or drink and weigh 125 pounds and am five feet four. I am a worrier.

Doctors are more inclined to treat high blood pressure now than they used to be.

During the important studies of the past 25 years it has been clearly demonstrated that elevation of either the systolic (higher) reading or the diastolic (lower) reading increases the rate of development of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries of the body, including the heart and brain. High blood pressure is a major factor in the risk of having heart attacks and strokes.

The blood pressure picture changes rapidly in patients and even those on treatment need constant reevaluation and often readjustment of their program.

It is probable that your pressure was low enough and you were doing well enough on your previous examinations that the doctors didn't think it was necessary to start treatment yet.

Most of the problems related to high blood pressure are caused by the complication of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. It follows that one of the most important aspects of treatment is diet. And, it is often neglected by both the patient and the doctor.

THE FIRST ORDER of business is a low-fat, low in saturated fat, low-cholesterol diet, with a limitation of calorie intake sufficient to eliminate any excess fat under the skin and to keep the fat off. Even a few pounds you don't need can make an important difference.

Diet alone often reduces the pressure to normal levels in many people. These people don't need dangerous medicines, they need a good living pattern to include a proper diet for them and a proper activity program.

When the pressure can't be controlled by complete elimination of excess body fat and a proper diet, which should also be low in salt, then medicines may be necessary. The medicine you are taking is designed to eliminate salt and fluid and it is often very effective.

There are three main risk factors related to habits that influence the risk of having heart attacks and strokes. They are high cholesterol, high blood pressure (which you can often help with a proper diet and exercise program) and cigarette smoking. With a low blood cholesterol, normal or low blood pressure and no smoking you can decrease your risk many many times and have a good chance to live well past 70 without danger of heart or vascular disease.

sion and employment offices. The threatened strike follows complaints of union members who have been ordered to work 15 to 20 hours a week overtime to process unemployment checks.

Court asked: reverse ruling

The Illinois Supreme Court was asked to overturn Wednesday a St. Clair County ruling that struck down the Illinois death penalty law.

State's Atty. Robert Rice of St. Clair County requested an order that would force consideration of the death penalty by the Circuit Court in the case of two East St. Louis men convicted of murder last year.

Illinois' 1973 death-penalty law includes a mandatory death sentence for specific types of murders, but requires review by a three-judge panel to determine if the crime fits provisions of the law. The St. Clair Circuit Court said that the General Assembly cannot create a judicial panel.

Laid-off worker killed

A laid-off workman was shot to death Wednesday in Chicago minutes after cashing his final paycheck.

Another workman, who had cashed paychecks for fellow employees, also was shot as two gunmen escaped with $4,500 after the shooting at 123 E. Wacker Dr.

Thomas Dolce, 62, Bellwood, was dead on arrival at Hennrich Hospital. Dolce, a compositor, was laid off last Friday by the Gunthrop-Warren printing plant.

Neal elected to UI post

University of Illinois trustees today elected as board president Earl Neal of Chicago, the first black to hold the post.

Neal, 47, is an attorney and has been a member of the Board of Trustees since 1971. He is the first Democrat to head the board since 1967.

Firms named in bid-rigging

Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott today filed a federal antitrust suit charging six downstate contracting firms and four individuals with bid-rigging in connection with the Capitol renovation project in Springfield.

Three persons named in the suit already have been indicted on similar charges involving the Capitol and other construction in central Illinois.

The suit, filed in U. S. District Court, also names as defendants three officials of the firms and a former employee of the secretary of state's office.

The suit charges bid rigging on air conditioning contracts awarded during 1969 and 1970 when former Sec. of State Paul Powell was in charge of renovation work.

Legislators seek throwaway beverage container ban

Two suburban legislators are sponsors of bills to ban throwaway beverage containers in Illinois.

Both designed on laws recently enacted in the state of Oregon, similar bills have been introduced by Rep. Richard A. Mugallian, D-Palatin, and Sen. Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield.

Both bills would require 5-cent deposits for all beverage containers, but Glass's proposal would provide for a deposit of only 2 cents on bottles that could be accepted and refilled by more than one bottle.

Both cited results in Oregon, where it is believed that the amount of containers found on roadways has been reduced by two-thirds since the plan was adopted.

Mugallian's plan calls for a five-year phasing out of the throwaways, to avoid economic dislocation and job losses that he said resulted from an immediate ban in Oregon. He estimated that eliminating the throwaways would conserve more than 600 acre-feet of solid waste landfill capacity, and provide energy conservation equivalent to 3.3 million barrels of oil per year.

Building notice sought

State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, has introduced legislation requiring the Illinois Building Authority to give 90 days notice to legislators and municipal officials before beginning construction projects in their jurisdictions.

Regner said the bill would prevent low-income housing projects without giving local officials the opportunity to make recommendations or raise objections concerning them.

Rep. Richard Mugallian

Sen. Bradley M. Glass

"Nobody will argue the need for this kind of house," Regner said, "but at the same time there is no reason why citizens at the local level should be victimized by agencies at the state level which they pay to support with their tax dollars."

GOP seeking recruits

Schaumburg Township Republicans are planning a mass canvass to bolster the GOP at the grassroots level in the township.

State Rep. Donald A. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, said the party will conduct a door-to-door canvass of the township to identify and recruit voters who lean toward the Republican Party but have never been asked to participate in party affairs.

"Despite what may have been said since last November," Totten said, "it has not been our experience in Schaumburg Township that the Republican Party is dead. In fact, since the middle of October of 1974, we have had more volunteers indicate their willingness to work in the Republican Party than in many years past."

Totten said the township will be divided into nine areas, with an area captain supervising precinct captains and volunteers in the canvass. Area captains are Virginia Hayer, mayor of Hoffman Estates; Vinette Smith, Ed Hennessy, Mark Cornett, Phil Kiek, Jim Tumilty, Tom Dobson, Bill Cowin and Totten.

More GOP members sought

Also in the midst of a membership drive is the Regular Republican Organization of Elk Grove Township.

The organization, which boasts the largest paid membership of any Republican group in Illinois, began its house-to-house drive March 1, and will continue it through March 31. Memberships cost $2 per household.

According to Township Committeeman Carl Hansen, a member of the Cook County Board of Commissioners, the organization had 43 members when he became committeeman in 1974. Last year, there were more than 1,800 paid members in the organization.

LaFleur on RTA unit

State Rep. Leo LaFleur, R-Bloomington, a vigorous opponent of the legislation which created the present Regional Transportation Authority, has been named to a 26-member RTA advisory board.

LaFleur was appointed by the DuPage County Board of Supervisors as one of the five members representing the "color counties" bordering Cook County in the RTA district. The eight members to be appointed by the Cook County Board of Commissioners and 13 by the City of Chicago have not yet been named.

LaFleur, while maintaining he favors the concept of regional public transportation in the Chicago area, opposed the present law because he feared it favored the City of Chicago. He said his appointment to the advisory board would allow him to serve as a "watchdog for the suburban interests."

The board is to meet with the RTA board of directors and report recommendations for the operation of the authority to the General Assembly each March.

House weighs assessment-law revision

The Illinois House of Representatives will consider a revision of state assessment law next week in an effort to limit court-ordered reform of the controversial tax-equalizer system.

The House Revenue Committee unanimously approved a compromise bill Tuesday that would reduce the state's legal assessment level to 33.3 per cent of market value in three years. State law currently requires equalization of assessments to reach 50 per cent of fair market value.

A joint hearing of the Senate and House revenue committees is scheduled at 7 p.m. Monday in the House and Rep. Jack Beaupre, D-Kankakee, predicted passage "within five days if there is general concurrence."

BEAUPRE AND Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake, are co-sponsors of the bill.

"We must move quickly," Beaupre said. "We have possible judicial action hanging over our heads. Any judicial action that would change assessment levels will create havoc."

Skinner disagreed. In an interview Wednesday, with Beaupre. "There's not a total sense of emergency. Whatever is passed will be in reaction to what the court decides."

The committee bill was passed less than two days after the Illinois Supreme Court heard oral arguments about a Lake County ruling that would force equalization at 42 per cent.

OFFICIALS THROUGHOUT the state have predicted that court-ordered equalized assessment at 42 to 50 per cent will increase taxes in areas where government bodies such as school districts are taxing at the maximum rates.

A legislative subcommittee reported last week that assessment levels vary from 20 to 50 per cent of market value throughout the state.

Any Supreme Court decision on the Lake County suit would become moot if the revenue committee bill becomes law, Beaupre said. "We'd be dealing with a new assessment level. Their ruling would involve the old level."

But, Skinner said the proposed law would change the assessment percentage in 1975 and does not include 1974. Cook County's equalizer for 1974 has not been announced although DLGA Director Frank Kirk has predicted a freeze at the 1973 level.

STATE'S ATTY. Jack Hoogasian of Lake County and a representative of the Civic Federation are expected to ask the revenue committee for an amendment to the bill that would include the 1974 equalizer, Skinner said.

The revenue committee bill would gradually boost assessment levels in counties that currently are assessed at less than 33.3 per cent. The proposal would create tax increases over three years in maximum tax-rate areas including much of Cook County.

Chief Judge Harry D. Strouse Jr. of

Lake County Circuit Court issued an injunction Jan. 17 which ordered the Dept. of Government Affairs to equalize assessments at 50 per cent of market value.

Last week, Circuit Court Judge Nathan M. Cohen ordered DLGA to follow state law and to equalize at 50 per cent in a ruling involving Cook County.

Obituaries

Robert E. Huber

Robert E. Huber, 49, a resident of Arlington Heights for 47 years, was pronounced dead on arrival Wednesday morning at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after an apparent heart attack.

Born in Chicago, Jan. 19, 1926, he was employed as a truck driver and was a veteran of the Korean War.

Visitation is today from 2 to 5 and 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

Funeral service will be at 1 p.m. Friday in the funeral home. Officiating will be the Rev. Robert S. McDonald of St. John United Church of Christ, Arlington Heights. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Surviving are his widow, Rosemary, nee Stein, and two brothers, Edwin (Ruth) Huber of Northbrook and Clarence (Stella) Schuette of Arlington Heights. He was preceded in death by his parents, Edwin and Emma Huber.

Ada Weber

Mrs. Ada Weber, 82, nee Hanke, of Merrimac, Wis., formerly of Arlington Heights and Chicago, died Tuesday in her home. She was born Feb. 8, 1893, in Chicago.

Graveside service and interment are Friday at 10 a.m. in Montrose Cemetery, 5400 N. Pulaski Rd., Chicago. Officiating will be the Rev. J. Peter Lovell of First United Methodist Church, Arlington Heights.

Preceded in death by her husband, John P., and a daughter, Mrs. Melba Sullivan, surviving are a son-in-law, Thomas Sullivan of Mount Prospect; three grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, is in charge of the arrangements. There will be no visitation.

Deaths elsewhere

MRS. ELSIE C. TURRIFF, 60, nee Pape, of Land O' Lakes, Wis., since October 1974, formerly of the Arlington Heights and Palatine area for over 30 years, died March 9 in Northwoods Hospital, Phelps, Wis., after a short illness. She was born June 13, 1914.

Mrs. Turriff was a former employee from the Dunton Court Cleaners in Arlington Heights, and a member of Immanuel Lutheran Church of Palatine.

Funeral service was March 12 in Hope Lutheran Church, Land O' Lakes, Wis. Officiating was the Rev. John P. Metzlg. Burial was in Oak Hill Cemetery, Land O' Lakes.

She is survived by her husband, Harold; two brothers, William and Carl Pape, both of Minnesota; and two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Schraffen of Minnesota and Mrs. Augusta Hoffman of Iowa.

Family requests memorial donations to the Cancer Fund would be appreciated.

Funeral arrangements were handled by the Gaffney Funeral Home, Eagle River, Wis.

Area bicycle path on agenda Saturday

Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission's bicycle path plan for the Northwest suburban area will be discussed at a 10 a.m. meeting Saturday in the Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr., Schaumburg.

The study area includes Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Palatine and Roselle, said Jill Tiedt of NIPCC.

Expected to attend the meeting with Miss Tiedt are Mary Cascino, also of NIPCC, and James Kishmier, representing the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

The meeting is open to the public.

Color contest winners named

Winners have been selected in the second week's coloring contest sponsored by The Herald in cooperation with the Chicago Flower and Garden Show.

Winners in the 9-and-younger category were: first, Mary Lynn Paul, 9, Des Plaines; second, Mark Wexler, 7, Mount Prospect; and third, Trinity Wojcik, 8, Rolling Meadows.

Winners in the 10-14 age group were: first, Caryn Roty, 12, Hoffman Estates; second, Lynn Glaubitz, 12, Elk Grove Village; and third, Mary Lynne Herod, 13, Des Plaines.

First place winners will receive a $25 U.S. Savings Bond donated by the First Bank and Trust Co., Palatine, a miniature greenhouse kit and tickets to the show for their family.

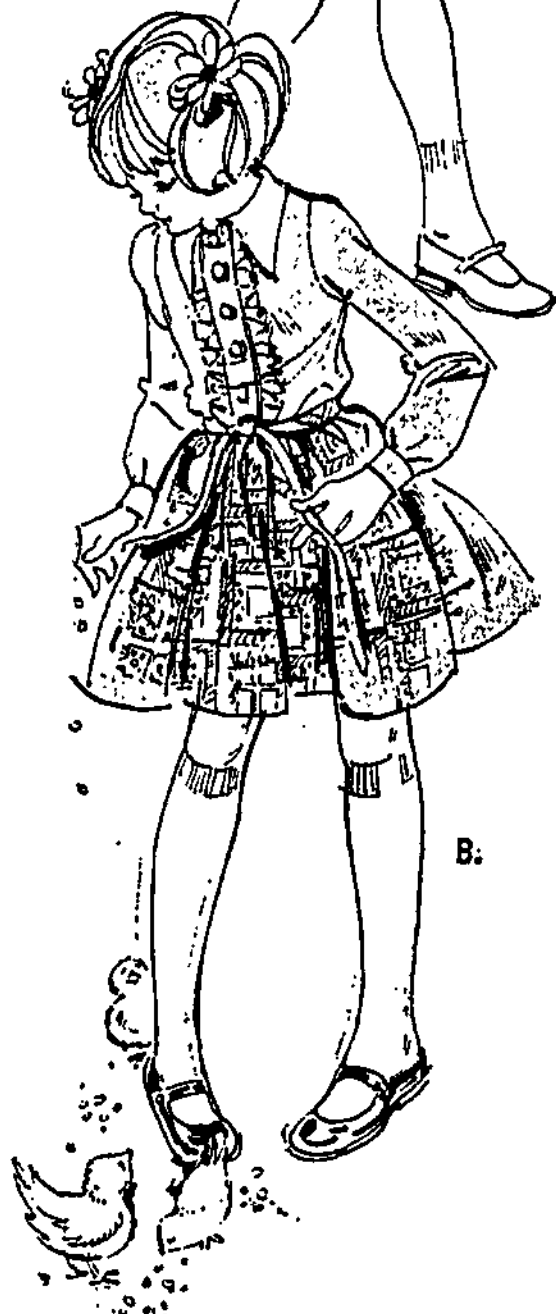

Second-place winners will get a miniature greenhouse kit and show tickets. Third place winners will receive tickets to the show.

All winning entries will compete with drawings from other communities for grand prizes.

The 1975 Chicago Flower and Garden Show will take place April 5-13 at McCormick Place.

Dow falls 9.93; trading slackens

Market suffers second straight loss

NEW YORK (UPI) — Disappointing earnings reports and concern over the nation's deficits were major ingredients Wednesday in the stock market's second consecutive loss.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange dropped from Tuesday's heavy pace as many investors got out to await further developments.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, a 7-point loser Tuesday, lost another 9.93 to 769.48. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell .79 to 84.34. The average price of an NYSE common share declined by 26 cents. Declines routed advances, 1,008 to 395, among the 1,796 issues crossing the tape.

Volume slowed to 19,039,000 shares from the 29,190,000 traded Tuesday.

SOME INVESTORS were disturbed by a comment by Presidential advisor William F. Buckley Jr. that a big budget deficit could be a major threat to economic recovery. He said there was the possibility of a $125 billion deficit in the next two years.

Also dampening enthusiasm was a Commerce Department report that the nation's fourth quarter $5.87 billion basic balance of payments deficit was the largest on record.

American Telephone & Telegraph warrants led the actives, off 1/4 to 1 1/4. Dialect was the second most active issue, off 1/4 to 9 1/4. Polaroid was the third most active issue, up 1/2 to 24 3/8.

PRICES CLOSED lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share declined by 3 cents. Volume totaled 2,323,000 shares, down from the 3,675,000 traded Tuesday.

On the Chicago Board Options Exchange, 51,741 contracts were traded, compared with 70,709 Tuesday. Polaroid April 25s led the actives, unchanged at 2. Upjohn April 40s followed, off 1/8 to 3. Syntex July 35s were third, up 1 7/8 to 8 5/8.

Grandma kept her window shades down to keep warm.

It pays to take after Grandma

When Grandma was a young homemaker, she didn't know anything about the energy crisis. But she did know that keeping the window shades down in the winter helped keep the house warm. In these days, when the energy crisis is really upon us, it pays to remember Grandma's advice. Shade 'N' Shutter window shades are the energy savers. They insulate to keep out cold air, keep in heat. That's an important way to keep heating costs down during the energy crisis.

Take a tip from Grandma and the Shade 'N' Shutter. Keep your window shades down, and keep your house warm. Come in and see the entire Shade 'N' Shutter collection.

Illinois Bell '74 earnings increase by 15%

Illinois Bell Telephone announced Wednesday a net income of $202.1 million for 1974; 15 per cent more than 1973.

Operating revenues increased 11.6 per cent to $1.52 billion and per share earnings were boosted to $2.91 from $2.54. James E. Olson, president, stated in Bell's annual report.

"We're again losing ground in our struggle to balance revenues with sharply rising costs," he added. Illinois Bell is defending an Illinois Commerce Commission charge that the company earned $15 million in excess of a profit ceiling set by the commission.

Illinois Bell also is seeking ICC approval of broad range service charge increases that would allow a 9.7 per cent profit for 1975 and cover inflation factors.

Telephone officials decided to seek the increase after the ICC refused to allow Bell automatic increases applied on an inflation formula.

Herald opinion

Let's revamp interest ceiling

The home buyer and the housing industry in Illinois once again find their plans hampered by a state ceiling that sets an unrealistic limit on mortgage interest rates. The present one-year limit of 9½ per cent will revert to the 1974 level of 8 per cent on June 30; at that time other inflation burden for the Illinois home purchaser. But with today's wildly fluctuating money rates, it's a realistic way to insure that mortgage funds will remain available in Illinois. If the ceiling went back to 8 per cent, mortgage money would flow out of state since mortgages currently are drawing 8½ to 9 per cent interest. The flexible rate would allow lending institutions to take advantage of competitive rates under 9½ per cent while at the same time enabling them to go above that level if money rates resume their ascent.

In other words, the present low Illinois rate does the consumer little good if there's no money available to borrow. A more flexible rate would encourage the return of capital to Illinois, where the home buyer can use it; the result would be a spur to the lagging Illinois home building industry.

Now's the time for the General Assembly to pass legislation to approve such a flexible ceiling, for there's still an opportunity to bring Illinois' interest rate in line with the rest of the nation before the summer building boom. For the sake of the home builder and buyer, that flexible interest ceiling is essential.

the General Assembly should revamp the state's method of controlling the interest rate.

We support a flexible or floating mortgage interest rate, tied to an easily understood money market indicator, as a device to ease Illinois' short-sighted interest rate limitations.

Such a proposal sounds as though we are mindlessly supporting an-

A new comic fad

We're glad to see that a successor has been found to replace streaking, which died a premature and little-lamented death some months back.

The latest popular craze is tossing a pie in the face of a noted celebrity, a hated enemy or your employer. In Chicago you can even hire a "hit man" to do the tossing.

Such antics, which have drawn considerable media coverage, are in the noble tradition of the Three Stooges and Abbott and Costello. If we're going to endure another such fad, it's good to see that it's at least deep in the roots of the American comic psyche.

'Divisive' ERA

Amendment fades as organized opposition grows

by SARA FRITZ

WASHINGTON — The proposed Equal Rights Amendment has backfired on those who saw it as the logical result of a national trend toward equality for women.

Instead, ERA has become a divisive rallying point among women with implications that surpass the question of ratification.

The cause of women's rights no doubt has been advanced by ERA in the sense that it has solidified the various feminist groups into an established lobbying unit in almost every state. They are better organized than they were before.

But the amendment has had a similar effect among the anti-feminists.

And, more important, it has given a new impetus to the traditional idea that a woman's place is in the home.

The ERA was conceived partly on the notion that society was moving gradually toward accepting the total equality of women. The feminist movement saw ERA as a way to solidify the trend in law.

That notion held true during the first days of the ratification process — a process which requires any constitutional amendment to be approved by a total of 38 states.

The first state, Hawaii, ratified ERA on March 22, 1972, only a few hours after the U.S. Senate voted to put it before the states. More than 20 states followed suit before that year was out.

Not until early 1973, when 27 states already had ratified ERA, did the proponents first mention that they were encountering signs of a "well-organized, well-financed opposition."

The opposition was coming primarily from a number of right-wing groups. Phyllis Schlafly, a Republican from Illinois, emerged as the leader of a loosely-knit group of wives who formed a group known as "Stop ERA."

As the number of unratified states dwindled, the strength of the opposition grew and now, with only four states to go, it has reached a peak that probably will postpone any possibility of final ERA ratification until 1977.

In the four remaining "key" states where there is some prospect that ERA might be ratified this year, the proponents — a coalition of women's groups — now have established their own well-financed, professional-type lobby with some support from labor.

The opponents are relying primarily on letter writing and public demonstrations — a tactic which the feminists abandoned because it gave them an undesirable image of hard-core "libbers." And lately, these tactics have enabled the opponents to turn a pro-ERA tide in states like Oklahoma and Illinois.

The primary issue opponents have raised is that ERA will abolish legislation which protects women from heavy work, the draft and some financial burdens. Some women, they note, do not want to give up the privileges of being the "weaker sex."

That argument is a powerful one, bringing with it the weight of hundreds of years of unquestioned tradition. But during the past few years it has not been a particularly "in" cause for politicians to espouse.

Now, on the floors of state legislatures across the country, more and more lawmakers are standing to make speeches against equality, playing to galleries of cheering anti-ERA women.

In short, the preservation of the traditional role of women has been converted into a political movement that now rivals the feminist cause. The slow, steady movement toward equality for women has been interrupted by a newly vocal opposition.

And ERA, which feminists once believed would end the debate, has served to prolong it.

'Inflation not result of prices'

In the Wednesday, Feb. 26, issue of The Herald, Mr. Louis Nizer offers his views of the energy crises.

He suggests the government should spend $5 billion to create and discover new sources of energy. He has fallen into the well-worn trap of believing that problems can be solved by disbursing large sums of money. He should be reminded that our government has been doing this for years without producing anything except the greatest inflationary spiral in history. His viewpoint stems from the classic error that inflation is the result of high prices, when the exact opposite is true.

He has plenty of company. The American people are treated daily with large doses of media diatribe: "The selfish Arabs are gouging us because they are in a position to do so." There has been irresponsible talk of military action to take over the oil fields the Arabs are "holding for ransom." But cleverly glossed over is the real reason for high oil prices — the fact that the oil sheiks are reluctant to exchange their natural resource of black gold for dollars because they scarcely know what to do with the glut of paper they are now holding. They know what the average American does not — that a barrel of oil or anything else is not worth any more than

letters to the editor

It was five years ago. The truth is that dollar parity in relation to all commodities has been falling to the extent that many foreigners are divesting themselves of dollars by investing in anything and everything. The Arabs recently invested a huge sum of dollars in an airline that is avoiding bankruptcy by borrowing, and government subsidies.

This dilemma started on August 15, 1971, when President Nixon was forced to repudiate all foreign claims against our gold supply. At that time, nearly four years ago, Mr. Nixon said: "For all practical purposes the United States is bankrupt." Two days later on August 17, 1971, Mr. Nixon accented the seriousness of the situation by issuing an executive order declaring a state of national emergency. The Arabs know it, Congress knows it, and the world knows it. The only group that does not know it is the American people. For some strange reason they are always the last to know!

A perusal of the financial page of any metropolitan newspaper will confirm that the once mighty dollar is sinking rapidly in foreign exchanges, and that it has to constantly be propped up by gimmicks and legerdemain.

Meanwhile, here at home the public has, after a fashion, been able to live with the dollar because they don't realize what the conditions they are seeing in their economy lead to. They somehow reason that since they give up things to get dollars, and others take dollars and give up things — all is well. But they never consider who had the dollar first and what they gave up to get it.

Neither does the citizenry consider the physical substance called "dollar." It is a piece of paper. Its worth is dependent upon what someone is willing to exchange for it. This fluctuates from day to day — mostly downward.

Stripped of its printing its uses are many: a) It could be used to support a written message. b) It could be used to discard chewing gum. c) It could be folded several times and used as a wedge to remove the wobble from a short legged table. d) It could be tightly rolled and used as a taper to light a fire. e) It could be used to wrap an extremely small article.

Some will consider these descriptions ludicrous. Before they laugh they should read Mr. Nizer's list of sacrifices they will surely be asked to make. Collectively they spell out a greatly reduced standard of living. This is in accordance with economic law. Someone is going to pay for 40 years of Keynesian economics and the credo of its disciples: "The more we spend, the richer we become." This is the philosophy that has created inflation, an astronomical national debt,

The almanac

Today is Thursday, March 20, the 79th day of 1975 with 286 to follow.

The moon is in the final quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Mars.

The evening stars are Venus, Saturn and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Pisces.

Norwegian poet and dramatist Henrik Ibsen was born March 20, 1828. This is American entertainer Carl Reiner's 52nd birthday.

On this day in history:
• In 1852, Harriet Beecher Stowe's slavery-era book, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was published for the first time.

• In 1951, Arabic dictator Juan Peron seized control of opposition newspaper "La Prensa."

• In 1963, a volcano on the island of Bali in the East Indies began erupting. The eventual death toll went over 1,000.

• In 1968, Israel launched heavy attacks upon terrorist bases in Arab Jordan.

A thought for the day: Norwegian writer Henrik Ibsen said, "The spirit of truth and the spirit of freedom... they are the pillars of society."

'An outrageous violation'

I have read Thomas Mahoney's letter to the Fence Post taking issue with my "Intemperate" remark at the Junior Women's Club forum.

My speech mentioned only President Armstrong by name because he cast the tie-breaking vote that allowed the R-1 (single family) zoning around the golf course to be changed to R-9 (apartments); also included in that vote was 33 acres (also now zoned R-9) fronting on Route 83 just north and west of Checker Drive — all this for an option to buy the golf course. If the village loses that option because the golf course proves unprofitable and cannot sell a revenue bond issue, the new zoning remains.

Webster's Seventh New Collegiate Dictionary defines "rape" as an "outrageous violation." When a village gives away its most effective tool for control of growth (zoning) merely for an option to buy a golf course "to keep the land open," I consider it an outrageous violation of the true purpose of this village.

Any time a developer donates land, it certainly isn't in the most desirable locations. The reason we have a golf course is because most of it is in flood plain and not buildable without a tremendous amount of engineering for drainage and proper foundations in poor soil conditions. What I am saying is that the golf course will be there whether the village owns it or not. The developer had a white elephant by the tail and couldn't let go. He has $1.3 million tied up with very little return. He could get more income by merely drawing interest on that same money invested at 8 per cent. $1.3 million at 8 per cent for one year comes to $104,000, much more than his net profit on the golf course.

If anyone at the forum thought my remark was intemperate or in bad taste, I apologize to them and also to Mr. Mahoney.

The lighter side

Texas: 'just a big bore'

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON — All of us natural-born Texans, even expatriates like myself, were thrilled by the news that the largest creature that ever flew had been found in the Lone Star State.

To Douglas Lawson, the fossil hunter who unearthed the bone fragments of the giant winged reptile, I can only say, "Thanks, we needed that."

This isn't often mentioned in public, but the admission of Alaska to the Union took more out of us than we like to admit.

No longer able to boast about being natives of the biggest state, many of us lost heart for calling attention to other Texas-type superlatives.

Pointing out that Texas was still No. 1 in railroad mileage, for example, somehow just wasn't the same.

Re-inflation of the Texas ego required some new transcendent manifestation of statal preeminence. And discovery of the Texas Pterosaur, a long-necked beast which had a wing span twice that of the Pteranodon, the biggest previously known pterodactyl, was just what the doctor ordered.

The only trouble is, it isn't all that easy to work into a conversation.

Shortly after the fossil find was announced, I attended a cocktail party at which the talk centered on the hot topics — the economy, energy and who had been reading Bella Abzug's mail.

"Do you think President Ford will veto the tax cut if it repeals the oil depletion allowance?" Hiram Cranny of Connecticut asked over the cheese dip.

"Speaking of petroleum, which is a fossil fuel," I replied, "did you hear about that pterosaur fossil they found in Texas?"

"I doubt it," said Ray Smidgen, who hails from Iowa. "Without a tax cut, Ford's anti-recession program could never get off the ground."

"Speaking of getting off the ground" I said, "the Texas Pterosaur had a wing spread of 51 feet. No other state has produced the remains of a flying reptile that big, including Alaska."

"I agree," said Stan Vestspott of Idaho. "The way I see it, Ford has been too quick to compromise with Congress. He needs to start throwing his weight around."

"There aren't any reliable estimates on how much the Texas Pterosaur weighed," I said, "but it is safe to say it weighed more than any winged reptiles in Alaska."

By this time, however, the group at the cheese dip had moved on to the chicken salad.

Speaking of chicken salad, were you aware that the Texas Pterosaur had leathery wings rather than feathers? And that it had been extinct more than 60 million years ago?

I'd like to see Alaska try to top that.

The tedium deserved the attention

There are times, particularly in government, when the most important things happen unobtrusively, while trivial things get the most attention.

A good case in point is last week's meeting of the Harper College board of trustees. At that meeting, most of the attention focused on a brief, stormy uprising by faculty leaders who protested some "trickery" they said had accompanied the new teachers' salary contract.

That event, which included some shouting, at least one lost temper and general unpleasantness, wasn't really an important event in the general scheme of things at Harper College. It probably added to the hard feelings that have long existed between the faculty, administration and board, but other than that in the long run the outburst probably means very little.

THE MOST IMPORTANT thing that happened at that board meeting was much less noisy and, for the audience, much more tedious than a good rousing fight. It involved a series of long, detailed questions that board member Robert Rausch asked about nearly every item on the agenda.

The questions took up time and many of them seemed terribly tedious to members of the audience. At one point in the meeting, in fact, one faculty member, who was waiting for the point in the agenda where the "uprising" would occur, muttered, "Rausch just likes the sound of his own voice."

The questioning, however, was more important than the impatient members of the audience realized. Essentially, what Rausch, with help from some fellow

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

board members, was doing was carefully going over the administrative justifications for various board actions. And whenever he found a justification he didn't like he kept asking questions until the point was either clarified or his point that the justification was inadequate was made.

ONE OF THE things Rausch questioned closely, for example, was the college's five-year plan for vocational education, a thick document required by the state. By the time he was finished, he had determined that many of the budget figures in the document were guesses, made only because they are required by the state.

Rausch harumphed that such budget figures are, therefore, meaningless and received some quiet agreement from college administrators.

The important thing about Rausch's questioning is that it clearly indicated that he had not only read the documents that had been given to the board, but had read them carefully enough to find holes in them.

It is significant that Rausch took the time and trouble to do that, particularly when you realize that it's often easy for elected officials to slide into the habit of only reading the recommended actions presented to them by their administration and ignoring the justifications.

AT HARPER, even some administrators have occasionally been heard to mutter that the board never really asks hard questions about the issues facing the college.

Rausch's actions seem to indicate that the day when almost anything would pass unquestioned through the Harper board may be quickly fading.

And though close questioning of the kind Rausch did last week may not result in many major changes in the ultimate board actions, it may mean that those actions will be more carefully examined. And, on any elected board, that is an important development.

Women to 'save America'? Well, try Bella for openers

Margaret Meade

by SARA FRITZ

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Rep. Bella Abzug would be defense secretary and anthropologist Margaret Meade agriculture secretary if government appointments were made according to a list of "44 Women Who Could Save America."

The list, compiled by Sissy Farenthold, head of the National Women's Political Caucus, recommends 22 women for a variety of real and proposed cabinet posts and 22 others as alternates.

It was released today in advance of its publication in the April issue of Redbook Magazine.

Ms. Farenthold did not explain why she named no woman for President.

SHE SAID HER list included only some of the nation's women who are fully qualified to be in top decision-making positions and have been barred from those jobs by a political system dominated by men.

Preparing the list, Ms. Farenthold said, had "radicalized" her.

"I began to make comparisons between the women who could fill the posts capably and some of the men who were actually in them," she said, "and that did it."

Rep. Abzug, D-N.Y., who was listed as defense secretary, has been deeply involved in the antiwar movement.

Ms. Farenthold drew from Congress for a number of her suggested appointments. Rep. Patsy Mink, D-Hawaii, was proposed for a new Cabinet post, the secretary of peace; Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex., as attorney general, and Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., as a justice of the Supreme court. Former Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., would be treasury secretary.

THE FIELD OF journalism contributed such candidates as publisher Katharine Graham for commerce secretary, New York Times reporter Eileen Shanahan for the Council of Economic Advisers, Washington correspondent Sarah McClendon for FBI director.

Candidate for secretary of women's affairs — another new post proposed by Ms. Farenthold — was feminist leader Gloria Steinem.

The secretary of state candidate is historian and author Barbara Tuchman.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Knight turns table on slam

When Tristram de Lyonesse arrived at King Arthur's court, he was thought to be a country bumpkin. But it did not take him long to prove himself with sword, lance and shield. He became one of the two or three most feared Knights of the Round Table.

It took him a trifle longer to show that he could handle himself just as well at the bridge table. A few hands such as today's did the trick for him.

He sat East and as any one can plainly see, South is cold for seven hearts with all finesses working for him. In addition to this West opened the four of clubs. South played dummy's seven and Sir Tristram played the king without any apparent thought.

Declarer put on the ace and then did some thinking. That four spot might well have been fourth best of five. In which case South wanted to do anything possible to prevent a club ruff. He laid down his ace of hearts and played a second heart. Tristram took his king and proceeded to lead a club to give his partner the deadly ruff that South had tried to avoid.

Rep. Macdonald asks public support of bill protecting parts of 7 Illinois rivers

by LEA TONKIN

Public support is needed to ensure passage of the Natural Rivers and Wetlands Act of 1975, said State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights. Hearings on the bill (H.B. 461) and its companion appropriations bill (H.B. 462) may be slated as early as next week, she said. Mrs. Macdonald is chief cosponsor of the bills along with State Rep. John Hirschfeld, R-Champaign, and State Rep. Romie Palmer, R-Blue Island.

Rep. Virginia Macdonald

The Natural Rivers and Wetlands Act would designate seven Illinois river segments for protection as natural areas. The proposed waterways to be covered by the bill include portions of the Kishwaukee, Lower Fox, Kankakee, Embarras, Vermillion, Big Creek and Upper Clear Creek and Hutchins Creek. Mrs. Macdonald said support by environmental groups, agricultural interests and other citizens is needed to secure passage of the bills.

Kampsville, Ill. The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. The group will sponsor a hike at Crabtree Nature Center on Palatine Road Saturday. The hike will start at 9 a.m.

Group charges EPA lax

Dick Tabatt of Des Plaines, president of Illinois Paddling Council, said the bills represent a compromise. Previous scenic rivers proposals, unsuccessfully submitted before the General Assembly, called for designation of added watershed areas. "At this point, we need to get something on the books we can work with," Tabatt said. Illinois Paddling Council, Natural Areas Coalition and Illinois Environmental Council are among the supporters of the bills.

Citizens for a Better Environment plan to sue the federal Environmental Protection Agency if it does not reply within 60 days to charges that it fails to cite the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency for being lax in air-pollution enforcement. Dennis Adamczyk, director of environmental research for CBE, said Wednesday in Chicago that the state EPA, under the Walker administration, referred only 65 cases to the Illinois attorney general for prosecution during the past two years. The figure compares to 180 cases referred during 1972, under former Gov. Richard Ogilvie. "Under Ogilvie, the enforcement was effective and massive," Adamczyk said. "In the last couple of years, it has fallen off drastically." Companies no longer have an incentive to arrange compliance with state air-pollution-control standards, he said.

Adamczyk cited the issuance of a construction permit for Commonwealth Edison Co.'s Collins Generating station near Morris as an example of state actions that will allow violation of state clean-air rules. Walker's failure to appoint a fifth member to the Illinois Pollution Control Board is another demonstration of the lack of concern in the pollution-control field, he said.

Wildlife opinion asked

Public comment on proposed regulations to control the imports of injurious wildlife will be accepted by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service through April 10. The proposed regulations relate to the Lacey Act, designed to control the introduction to the United States of wildlife that could be injurious to man, agriculture or wildlife resources. The Wildlife Service has initiated a second public review process because changes were made in the original proposals published in December 1973. The proposed standard would prohibit the importation of injurious wildlife except as permitted for scientific, educational, zoological or medical purposes. The regulations would also contain a list of "low risk" wildlife, eligible for importation without a permit. The list may change as new evidence is available on the risks of importation. Comments should be addressed to Director (FWS/LE), U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, P.O. Box 19133, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Bikeway meeting topic

The public is invited to participate at a hearing Saturday in Schaumburg on a Northwest suburban bikeways plan. The meeting will start at 10 a.m. in the Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Ave. It's sponsored by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

Strip-mining bill passes

A strip-mining-control bill that would require mining companies to restore the land to its original state was passed in the U.S. House of Representatives, following Senate passage of a similar measure. A House-Senate committee must resolve differences before the final version will be sent to President Ford. The bills, which set a fee that miners will pay to restore abandoned strip mines, protect landowners' rights and prohibit mining operations in national parks, are similar to a bill that was vetoed in 1974 by Ford.

You'll pay for feeding bears

Don't feed the bears: the warning by the National Park Service means business. If visitors to national parks do not comply with the warning, they'll face fines and up to six months in jail. The program is designed to eliminate the bear feedings at campfires and the potential danger of maulings by the animals.

THE GRAVY DAYS are coming to a Park, Calif. The National Park Service will fine visitors who feed bears.

Audubon chapter to meet

The Prairie Woods chapter of the National Audubon Society will meet today at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, Arlington Heights. A representative of the Illinois Archaeological Society will discuss the Koster diggings at

Streaking, baseball no longer 'in' among students

If a poll had been taken last spring of college students, many might have said streaking was a very popular spectator sport.

The 1974 had a short life, however. Of the 109 Harper College students surveyed recently, not once was this "free feeling" sport mentioned.

Harper was one of three schools picked to fill out questionnaires inquiring about favorite spectator and participation sports as well as the names of the athletes the students most respect. Also surveyed were Arlington High School and Kensington and Wilson grade schools.

Although the findings are hardly comparable to a Gallup or Nielsen poll, it does give some indication of the preferences of students on three educational levels. Some of the data proved surprising.

The survey was divided between males and females to see how their choices differed. (Elsewhere on this page you can compare the two.)

Tennis proved the most popular in the spectator category with the majority of Harper women and Arlington girls ranking it No. 1. The rest of the groups polled were split among four sports — basketball, gymnastics, football and baseball.

Personally, I thought baseball would do a little better, especially with younger students. However, it finished a distant second twice while ranking third, fourth and fifth in the other groups. (Maybe a winning Cub or Sox team would change that?)

Among the participation sports, basketball was the only one to receive majorities, coming from the young men at Harper and Arlington. Receiving the top ranking with the other four groups were volleyball, football, horseback riding and tennis.

Associate Sports Editor

Formerly known as the national pastime, baseball really was bumped here, finishing second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh.

As far as sports heroes go, personalities like Russian gymnast Olga Korbut, O. J. Simpson, Muhammad Ali, Billie Jean King, Hank Aaron and Bob Seagren proved the biggest favorites.

Here are some more detailed findings from grade level:

GRADE SCHOOL LEVEL

Baseball is still tops to watch as far as grade school boys are concerned. However, the 50 polled preferred to play football with baseball finishing second in the participation category.

Fishing ranked a surprise third among participation sports. But the real shocker was the grade school girls' favorite — horseback riding! Another stunner was choosing horse racing as the third most liked spectator sport!

These sixth grade students of George Timson, who teaches at both schools, named O. J. Simpson the most popular. Many times just his first two initials were listed. An "O. J. S." and a "Sim-sin" also appeared.

Right behind this superstar of the Buffalo Bills was Hank Aaron. Both groups voted him second, using just "Hank" most of the time.

That's where agreement ended between the sexes. Billie Jean King was the girls' third-best choice with Ron Santo being the boys'. Joe Namath and Olga Korbut finished out the girls' list with Larry Brown and Larry Conka rounding out the boys' top five.

Also receiving votes besides Timson and some fathers were such offbeat heroes as race driver Richard Petty, pitcher Rollie Fingers and Evel Knievel.

Those of older generations might be happy to know that such an oldtimer as Babe Ruth also received votes.

HIGH SCHOOL LEVEL

Arlington boys preferred basketball in both categories. The girls liked to watch tennis and play volleyball. The latter's being the top participation sport was somewhat of a shocker.

The girls polled by P.E. teacher Mary Lou Hundt tabbed Billie Jean as their favorite with O.J. being second and Aaron, Roberto Clemente and Rick Monday tied for third.

Testing the boys was Tom Pitchford, also in P.E. The biggest surprise in this group was rating soccer sixth among spectator sports. The boys split their first-place votes between pole vaulter Bob Seagren and Aaron. The Bulls' Jerry Sloan was a close third with a tie for fourth between Ali and the Celtics' John Havlicek.

Some of the more unusual heroes were TV's Martin Perkins, distance runner Ben Jipcho and basketball's Moses Malone.

COLLEGE LEVEL

Tennis was the Numero Uno sport as far as Harper women are concerned. However, they barely gave the nod by one vote to Korbut over King in the athlete category. Finishing third among popular sports personalities was O. J. with Chris Evert fifth.

and the Knicks' Walt Frazier in fifth.

Helping with the survey here were Martha Bolt, Roger Bechtold and John Eliasik — all in the P.E. department.

If nothing else, this little survey seems to show that today's young people are more broadminded as far as sports are concerned. Their heroes are worldwide, not just U.S. stars.

Boys and young men appear to be branching out, enjoying other sports besides football, basketball and baseball. Girls and young women appear to be moving into the action rather than rooting on the sidelines.

All in all, today's young people appear to be a much more active generation than previous ones.

The HERALD

Kentucky's Joe Hall sees Indiana defeat

The nation's longest college basketball winning streak will come to an end tonight at Dayton, Ohio.

That's the prediction of Joe Hall, coach of Kentucky, who foresees top-ranked Indiana's 33-game winning streak being halted by Oregon State in semifinals of the NCAA Midwest regional tournament.

"I pick Oregon State based on their win over Indiana last season and their defense," said Hall, whose club meets Central Michigan in other semifinal match at Dayton. "They have the type of defense that is most difficult for Indiana to work against."

Oregon State, which has a 19-10 record, defeated Indiana 61-48 last year at the Far West Classic in Portland, Ore.

Indiana, despite the fact that All-American Scott May will probably not be ready to play, still remains a solid favorite.

In the other game, Kentucky, which earlier this season got whipped soundly by Indiana, is favored to defeat Central Michigan.

Other regional matchups tonight include:

East: North Carolina (22-7) vs. Syracuse (20-7) and Kansas State (19-8) vs. Boston College (21-7) at Providence, R.I.

Midwest: Louisville (25-2) vs. Cincinnati (22-5) and Maryland (24-4) vs. Notre Dame (19-8) at Las Cruces, N.M.

Far West: UCLA (24-3) vs. Montana (21-6) and Nevada-Las Vegas (23-4) vs. Arizona State (25-3) at Portland.

Lou Brock wins Clemente award

Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals, who shattered the single season stolen base record last year, Wednesday was named winner of major league baseball's annual Roberto Clemente award for exemplary behavior on and off the field.

The 35-year-old Brock, fifth winner of the award which was renamed for Clemente after the Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder's tragic death on New Year's Eve 1972, was cited for baseball achievements, where he batted .304 and set a modern day record with 118 stolen bases, and for his off the field activities where he was instrumental in fund-raising for the Lou Brock Boys Club of St. Louis.

Previous winners of the award were Willie Mays (1971), Brooks Robinson (1972), Al Kaline (1973) and Willie Stargell (1974).

The award was renamed for Clemente in 1972 after the Pittsburgh star was killed in a plane crash during rescue missions in Nicaragua.

Bradford slams 2 homers, Sox win

Buddy Bradford continued his slugging binge with two more home runs, one of them a second inning grand slam off loser Ray Sadecki, as the White Sox bombed the St. Louis Cardinals, 14-7, for their fifth win in succession.

Completing a perfect day with one double and two singles, Bradford has slugged six home runs in four games and is batting .441 this spring with 13 RBIs. Chisox pitcher Jim Kaat got the win despite allowing a four-run third inning. Jerry Hairston also homered for Chicago.

The Cubs weren't nearly as lucky. Relief hurler Bob Locker issued three straight walks to force home the winning run in San Diego's 5-4 victory. A bases loaded triple by catcher George Mitterwald keyed the Cubs' four-run fourth inning.

Patient Saxons improve to 11-15; look to next year

by ART MUGALIAN

Some schools enjoy overnight success on the basketball court. Some coaches manage to turn fledgling programs into hardcourt dynasties in a twinkling of an eyelash.

They have all the luck.

Coach Joe Breault of Schaumburg is satisfied with a steady — though less flashy — rate of improvement. And if the Saxon basketballers hit the bigtime winning circuit next winter or the winter after that, Breault will have done his job.

The progress has indeed been measured at a snail's pace at Schaumburg — seniors on the starting five (guards Ron Geels and Bob Viviano), won 10 of 12 nonconference games. But they eked out just one victory in the tough Mid-Suburban League.

"Of course, you always want more," Breault said. "We were disappointed that we couldn't win more games in conference. We were in a lot of close games, games that we could have won. But we were playing with a group of youngsters."

That fact has Breault looking forward to next year already. The Saxons finished this season with Jon McIlraith, Eddie Chmiel, John Chmiel, and Marty Golub among the top six. All four will return next season.

"Next year we'll probably make the big change moving Eddie to guard," said Breault. "And the other guard spot will be open."

Chmiel, a 6-2 junior, was the second-leading scorer on the Saxons with a 12.5 average and a mainstay under the boards.

But his 6-4 freshman brother John and the two-year veteran McIlraith could be the keys to next year's Saxon hopes.

The younger Chmiel averaged 13.4 points a game after stepping up to the varsity at midseason. The lanky Saxon will be an intimidating factor in the next three years, especially when he adds more height and weight.

The Schaumburg leader is McIlraith, a 6-3 forward who was the league's fifth-but it has been steady. In four successive varsity seasons, all under Breault's direction, the Saxons have won three games, four, five, and finally this year they posted their best mark ever at 11-15. Included was an upset victory over Austin for the Luther North Christmas title.

"I'd rate it around a seven," Breault responded, when asked to rate the campaign on a scale of 10. "It was the best year we've had — more wins, we were in more games than we've ever been in. Overall, it was a good year."

But the sliding scale doesn't reflect the peculiar facts of the Saxons' basketball fortunes. Breault's squad, with just two

St. Viator's cage growth continues

by MIKE KLEIN

It must have been growing pains. St. Viator's basketball Lions posted only three wins during their final 13 games. That hurts. But they still managed an 8-14 season and fifth (5-9) in the East Suburban Catholic, the best anyone has seen around Viator in many years. That's good. However, they should have reached at least .500, their early goal. Viator lost four games by two points, including overtime decisions against St. Joseph and Notre Dame. And they allowed another double overtime decision to slip away against Maine West. All of that hurts. But 6-foot-8 Junior Glenn Girard and 6-6 freshman Paul Wiloff are two very good-sized reasons that Viator's basketball resurgence should continue. "Yeah, we're close," said Viator coach Steve Antrim. "We played with almost everybody this year. We played with the good ones. "Next year we'll try and give Girard a chance to get away from the basket. He's a good shooter for a big kid. "We'd like to have either kid able to play the high or low post so Girard isn't always low and taking a pounding," Antrim continued. "The big kid, Wiloff, can take the pounding and will be the best who ever played at St. Viator if he keeps improving." Girard and guard Ralph Casciaro will be the only senior starters next season. And they're losing just two, guard Paul Kastner and forward Bill Foreman. So they will again be a young Lions' squad. "Kastner is a big-time, hard worker," Antrim said. "He played some great guards pretty even. (Emmett) McGovern (of St. Patrick) got just 12 points over here. St. Joe's guards got eight and 12. "In that way, Paul was excellent. And he always came to play. That's what we'll miss." Sophomore Steve Nataro plus Juniors Doug Hutcheson and Mike Hermanson will be groomed to replace Kastner. Freshmen Paul Rogozinski and Scott Mulford plus sophomore John Gillen are slated into Foreman's position. "They'll have to take the jump shot and learn to throw the ball into Wiloff and Girard," said Antrim of 6-2 Rogozinski, 6-4 Mulford and 6-3 Gillen. "There's lots of playmaking guards, but every good team has playmaking forwards." Foreman closed rapidly with games of 25, 17, 18 and 15 points after a real shooting slump midway through the season. "In games where he didn't shoot, we were in trouble," said Antrim. The Lions were 5-4 heading into the Notre Dame Holiday Tournament. But they lost to Farragut and Maine West, then resumed the ESCC campaign with a defeat against St. Patrick. That third loss also gave Antrim his first good look at a new front line of Girard, Foreman and Wiloff. Senior Bill Heffernan, who had started all season, quit the team when Antrim told him Wiloff would start. Wiloff went on to pull down 125 rebounds in just 11 games. Girard, an All-Conference first team selection, led Viator with 150 boards and Foreman added 117. Kastner averaged 12.4 points and Foreman 12.0. Each was named to the East Suburban Catholic honorable mention squad.

Knight trackmen tip Cards

Prospect took a 71-47 indoor track decision from Arlington Tuesday as both teams prepared for next week's Mid-Suburban League conference championships. Leading the Knights to victory in their fieldhouse were Jim Wright, Pat White, and Matt Lawson. Wright, a junior, captured firsts in the 60-yard high hurdles (:08.0), the 100 (:07.7), and the triple jump (38-10 1/2). Sophomores White and Lawson piled up points in the distance events, White winning the 800 (2:10.1) and the mile (4:53.8), and Lawson grabbing first in the two-mile (10:21.8). He was also second in the 800 (2:15.9). Arlington racked up five firsts, including a win in the mile relay (3:33.5). Individual winners for the Cardinals were Jeff Haslam in the 50-yard dash (:05.9), Tom Toffoli in the shot put (44-9), Jim Loughane in the long jump (18-7 1/2), and Bob Walsworth in the 440 (:56.9). The winning Knights also got good efforts from soph Jack Pittman, who was runnerup in the two-mile (10:25.1) and the mile (1:55.8). Prospect's remaining firsts came from Brad Millar, also a sophomore, in the high jump (5-8), Bryan Granzin in the pole vault (12-4) and the 880-relay team (1:15.8). The Cardinals are a junior-dominated squad. Walsworth and Greg Hansen, who was third in the mile and the two-mile, were the only seniors who scored for Arlington. Taking seconds for the Cards were Scott Letzel in both hurdles races, Loughane in the triple jump (36-3), and Jeff Schimmel in the pole vault (12-0). Chuck Yorke was third in both hurdles events for Arlington, Tim Bauer was third in the 800, Phil Dineelli was third in the 50, as was Tom Berryman in the shot. Prospect's Keith Mason took seconds in the shot put (43-11) and the 50 (:06.0) for the Knights, who will host Wheaton Warrenville today at 4:30 p.m. Arlington won the freshman meet, 68-52, and the sophomores ended up in a 59-50 tie.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS University gymnastics coach Bill Meade, parents Gil and Fran Morava and Hershey gym coach Don VonEbers admire a bronze plaque in remembrance of Gary Morava. The plaque reads: "In memory of Gary Morava... May his talent, dedication and love for sports serve as a constant inspiration to all athletes at Hershey High School." Gary became an Illinois prep champion for Hershey and six-time All-America at Southern Illinois before his death in February 1974. The plaque will be placed in the Hershey gymnasium.

Youth, experience in Saxons' future

leading scorer (15.8), though he failed to win all-conference honors. Next year, Breault figures that "Mac" will be able to shed some of the pressures of team leader.

"Mac was our MVP, of course," the coach said of the junior Saxon who was ninth in the MSL in rebounding. "He wasn't as consistent as we had hoped he would be, but he had a lot of pressure on him. Next year I hope he can get the all-conference selection that he deserves."

McIlraith was honored on the Luther North all-tourney team in December when the Saxons charged to four straight victories, including a come-from-behind 54-53 win over a huge, quick Austin team. Austin got as far as the Public League quarterfinals before losing in March.

"Winning the Austin title game showed me and the boys that they could play with the really good teams," said Breault. "But we played a perfect game that night and we could only hope to play that kind of game once or twice in a season."

As it was, Schaumburg came close several times, losing to Elk Grove in double overtime, dropping a two-pointer to Palatine, losing a last-minute heartbreaker to Forest View. Finally, the Saxons beat Rolling Meadows in the last regular-season game of the year.

"Once again, shooting and rebounding were our sore spots," the Saxon coach lamented. "But our defense was much improved. It kept us in a lot of games this year."

Improvement is the byword at Schaumburg. Sometimes, the slower and the steadier it builds, the better it is.

'The Law': a series as good as the film

NEW YORK (UPI) — Will a good made-for-television movie make a good series. The answer, more often than not, is a resounding no.

Just this year, we have seen a group of successful TV movies turned into dismal junk when they reemerged on the prime-time circuit. One only as to look at NBC's big flop, "Archer," based on the TV flick, "The Underground Man," to see the result. A good movie became a watered down puddle of slush. ABC's "Kolchak, The Night Stalker," is another example of a hot-rated movie that became a loser as a series.

Thus with the usual cynicism that shadows most critics, I expected to find NBC's "The Law," perhaps the best TV movie of the 1974-75 season, a piece of garbage when it emerged as a three-part series that began Wednesday. Happily, I was wrong.

THE FIRST one-hour episode in this new series, starring Judd Hirsh, lived up to the success of the film. It was filled with sharp acting, an excellent script, and it again pointed a finger at the much-filled criminal justice system that has become the norm in big-city America.

"The Law" is cinema reality. The first show, "Complaint Amended," again pits Murray Stone, a former legal aide lawyer turned private practitioner, against the system — the overworked district attorney's office, plea bargaining, and big-city red tape.

In the show, Stone, portrayed admirably by Hirsh, takes the case of a woman accused of assaulting her husband with a knife. Although the victim is superficially injured, he dies in the hospital and Stone's client is charged with murder. Luckily for the client, Stone discovers that a doctor at the hospital mistakenly administered a lethal dose of a drug that caused the death. Stone's client then gets off with a light sentence, but the doctor goes free to care for other patients. How true-to-life this is.

ALTHOUGH THE PLOT is right out of a law school textbook, screenwriter Joel Olsansky, who also directs, successfully weaves the battle to save Stone's client through the quagmire of the criminal justice system — police, courts and prosecutors. And thankfully, there are no cheap courtroom tricks of a Perry Mason present.

As an attorney and a man, Murray Stone seems to be one of those many souls cast adrift in the slime of our deteriorating urban society, but unlike most, he fights to pull himself out, and in the process he does a lot of good for those he serves.

Murray Stone, and men like him, may be the last American heroes. They live by a code, and they keep to it, even though others around him try to cop a plea. Much of the success of this character has to go to Judd Hirsh. He is superb as the rumpled, street-savvy Stone. Hirsh may be the best actor on television today.

NOTES: Rusalind Russell and Phil Silvers will take part in "Hail Columbia," a 90-minute television salute to Columbia Pictures on the company's 50th anniversary. "QB VII," the six-hour video drama, will be repeated in three parts April 22-24 via ABC. Warner Bros. will film "The Life and Legend of Bruce Lee," based on the late Chinese actor's various careers.

Red tape shouldn't tie up a home closing

by LEA TONKIN

The closing of a real estate deal should be a happy occasion for home buyers. After all, the new owners will get the house they want and the seller should receive an acceptable price.

The hassle-free closing is the usual experience of home buyers, area realty experts say. Buyers may sidestep the chance of last-minute disputes, unexpected payments and unnecessarily high settlement or closing costs by taking precautions well in advance of the closing.

Start with an understanding of the offer to purchase agreement and closing procedures, said Sy Kielas, executive vice president of Mount Prospect-based Kolo Real Estate, Ltd. Once the buyer signs on the dotted line and the seller accepts the bid to purchase his home, the offer is a binding agreement. If there is a counter-offer by the seller or there are other changes in the contract, the revisions may be initiated by the buyer and seller as an indication of approval.

"Usually, 10 per cent earnest money is required at the signing of the contract," Kielas said. The funds will later apply to the down payment that's set by the buyer and lender. Unless it's a cash sale, the contract is subject to a mortgage commitment within a specific time limit, he said.

PLANS FOR CLOSING the deal can be made once the buyer has shopped for financing and obtained a commitment from a lender. Kielas said the buyer and seller or their attorneys will be notified of the loan approval, a survey and a check of the property title will be ordered, the previous lender on the property and the new lender will prepare necessary documents.

The service fee charged by the lender may cover the cost of the credit check and appraisal, said Mrs. Mary Edler, closing officer at Palatine Savings and Loan Assn., Palatine. The buyer will be told of service charges at the time they accept a mortgage commitment and again when they sign the mortgage documents, she said.

Assuming that the buyer has signed the mortgage documents in advance, all they need to bring to the actual closing is money and an insurance policy for the property, said Thomas Grisell, loan officer at Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assn., Arlington Heights. A certified or cashiers check for all remaining settlement costs is generally requested. The closing is usually held at the lender's office 10 days to two weeks after the mortgage papers are signed. The participants may include a representative of the lender, the buyer and possibly his attorney, the seller and/or his attorney.

The closing is often 30- to 45-minute session, Grisell said. "The fastest one I ever had was seven minutes, and we had one up to 2½ hours," he said.

The lender will order the title insurance policy, make sure the deed is recorded and file other necessary reports. Grisell said he advises customers who inquire about the need for legal service to hire an attorney.

THERE ARE "CONSIDERABLE variations" in closing or settlement costs throughout the U.S., said Mrs. Elaine Andrews, an attorney at the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development's Chicago office. The new federal Real Estate Settlement Procedures law, effective June 20, will offer a measure of consumer protection in the disclosure of the costs, she said. The law will require lenders to provide written notice of all closing costs at least 12 days before the settlement and prohibits kickbacks.

The disclosure will be made on the Uniform Disclosure Settlement statement that will be developed by HUD. "The crux of the act is that the lenders will have to provide certain information to the buyers before the closing," Mrs. Andrews said. "Before, buyers, being neophytes, would take the costs the sellers put on a piece of paper." A maximum $10,000 fine and one-year imprisonment may be imposed for violation of the act. A followup study will be conducted by HUD three to five years after the law's effective date to determine whether added legislation is needed in the settlement area.

The inclusion of real estate commissions in the proposed disclosure statement is important, said U.S. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., a supporter of disclosure legislation. The commissions are charged to the seller who generally takes the cost on to the price of the home. They comprise nearly $6 billion of the $14 billion paid by the American public in settlement costs each year, Proxmire said.

THE HOME BUYER can shop for services that he pays outright, said Benny Kass, general counsel for the American Homebuyers and Homeowners Assn., Washington, D.C. He advises buyers to shop for an attorney before they sign a contract offer. In a booklet entitled "Home Buyers Checklist," Kass outlines other money-saving tips.

- Investigate loan possibilities. Shop for the lowest interest rates, service charges and favorable terms. Obtain a statement of loan costs and settlement costs before you close the deal.

- Determine how the buyer and seller will divide title-related costs and demand advance disclosure of costs.

- Shop for insurance. There may be a difference between the homeowner policy the lender recommends and competitive policies.

- Determine the amount of added closing costs. A survey, appraisal, service fee, attorney's fee, title insurance and other service fees may be assessed.

Real estate closing should be a happy occasion.

Expert warns home buyers about relying on others

Home buyers can be their own best friends if they do not assume that anyone else involved in the deal is acting on their behalf. That's the advice of Benny Kass, general counsel for the National Homebuyers and Homeowners Assn., Washington, D.C., seconded by area attorneys.

Shopping for services and demanding disclosure of costs will mean extra effort by the homebuyers, but it's the only way to make sure you're getting a fair deal, he said. "The Real Estate Settlement Procedure Act, as far as it goes, is very good," he said. "But it does not solve the problem of the consumer or the homebuyers."

Kass said a web of kickbacks and favors often ties real estate brokers, lenders, attorneys and title firms to one another. The usual scenario is that a real estate agent steers the buyer to a friendly lender, who looks up a friendly title company, "and the home buyer pays for all these friends," he said.

"I think you've got to assume that no one is acting on your behalf," he said. An attorney can be helpful, he added. Shopping for services will yield a variety of prices. Kass said attorneys who charge a percentage of the purchase amount may overcharge the customer.

BEFORE THE BUYER signs an offer to purchase a house, the contract should be checked for possible revisions, Kass said.

The contract should say that the sale is contingent on the buyer's ability to obtain financing, and possibly that the sale is contingent on the seller's ability to sell his own home. The contract can specify that items as plumbing, heating and electrical systems in the house are in working order, that the house is free of termites, that the sale is contingent on the buyer's approval of a title firm, settlement costs and other conditions.

The key to a careful home purchase is scrutiny of the contract before you sign anything. Rolling Meadows attorney John Rafferty said, "The offer of purchase is the bed you make for yourself," he said.

IF THE BUYER seeks legal advice but his attorney is not immediately available for the contract-signing, the buyer can insert the phrase "subject to my attorney's approval within 24 (or 48) hours." "At least that gives us a chance to get out of it, if it's a bad deal," Rafferty said.

"You cannot assume that the title insurance company or any other is looking out for your welfare," he continued. "Ninety-nine times out of a hundred there is no serious problem," he said, adding that a substantial loss of money could occur in the few disputed closings.

Rafferty said the buyer or seller who decides to hire an attorney should check whether the professional is knowledgeable in realty matters. Fees should be readily discussed right from the start.

AMONG THE items that will be checked and specified in writing are date of possession, items of personal property as drapes and appliances that are included in the sale and prorating (division) of taxes. If the property hasn't been taxed as improved property, the contract may specify that the seller and buyer will divide up payment of taxes when the bill is due, with money held in an escrow account for that purpose. Clear title to the property and potential assessments for multiple-living units as condominiums will be checked.

Closing costs should be disclosed before the closing, Rafferty said. He added that the date of closing may affect settlement costs by a few hundred dollars, depending on the monthly due date for loan, tax escrow account and insurance payment.

Raymond Edwards, an Arlington Heights attorney, said the small percentage of knotty problems that arise during the closing procedure could often be sidestepped through competent legal advice. It's important to square disagreements before any documents are signed, he said. "If you're representing a buyer, you're trying to make sure that what he thinks he's getting, he's actually getting and that he has a good, merchantable title." There are major disagreements in only 10 per cent of the real estate settlements, and minor problems in another 20 per cent of the closings, he said.

Home Buyer's Expense List

Home buyers generally know the exact amount of money required at the closing two weeks before the event, said Sy Kielas of Kolo Real Estate Ltd.

He offered as an example a list of the costs that may be experienced by the purchaser of a $40,000 home, if the down payment is $8,000 or 20 per cent. Although terms and various fees can vary significantly, estimated buyer expenses and monthly payments could add up as follows:

Estimated Buyer Expenses

Selling price.....	$40,000
Down Payment (20 per cent).....	$8,000
Mortgage amount.....	$32,000
Service fee (2 per cent).....	$640
Mortgage insurance.....	none
One year's prepaid insurance.....	$90
Appraisal.....	$50
Credit Check.....	$20
Prepaid interest (first month).....	$225
Title fees.....	$75
Total closing costs to buyer.....	$1,100

Estimated Monthly Payments

Amount of mortgage.....	$32,000
Number of years.....	25
Interest rate.....	8.9 per cent
Amount of payment (principal and interest).....	$265 00
Annual taxes divided by 12.....	$66 66
Insurance per year divided by 12.....	$7 50
Total monthly payment.....	$339.16

Bolger Realtors opens 4th office

Terrance Bolger, president of Bolger Realtors, announced the purchase of McArthur Realtors, Schaumburg. The new office at 1399 W. Schaumburg Rd. is the fourth Bolger office in the Northwest suburbs.

Richard McArthur, president of McArthur Realtors, sold his interest in the firm to serve as a representative for new-home builders. He has been appointed exclusive representative for Campanelli builders' new market sales.

Bolger said the acquisition of the Schaumburg office represents the third addition to Bolger Realtors facilities within the past 14 months. Offices in Wheeling and Rolling Meadows and the original Elk Grove Village office are included in the lineup. Bolger plans to open a second Elk Grove Village office in 1976 and he is negotiating for an office site in Hoffman Estates. There are approximately 35 sales personnel on the Bolger staff.

Bolger said residential sales during January and February of this year were double 1974 sales levels, and that sales continue to be "really fantastic" during March. He attributes the increased sales to an expanded sales staff and the improved home financing market.

Coming up...

• March 20: Area real estate representatives will participate in Illinois Assn. of Realtors sales caravan meetings. The sessions will be at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel, Arlington Heights.

• March 20: Ed Kodish and Richard Gill of the Chicago Transit Authority will discuss Elk Grove industrial park transportation service at a noon meeting in Elk Grove Village. The meeting at the Holiday Inn, 1000 Busse Rd., is sponsored by the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce.

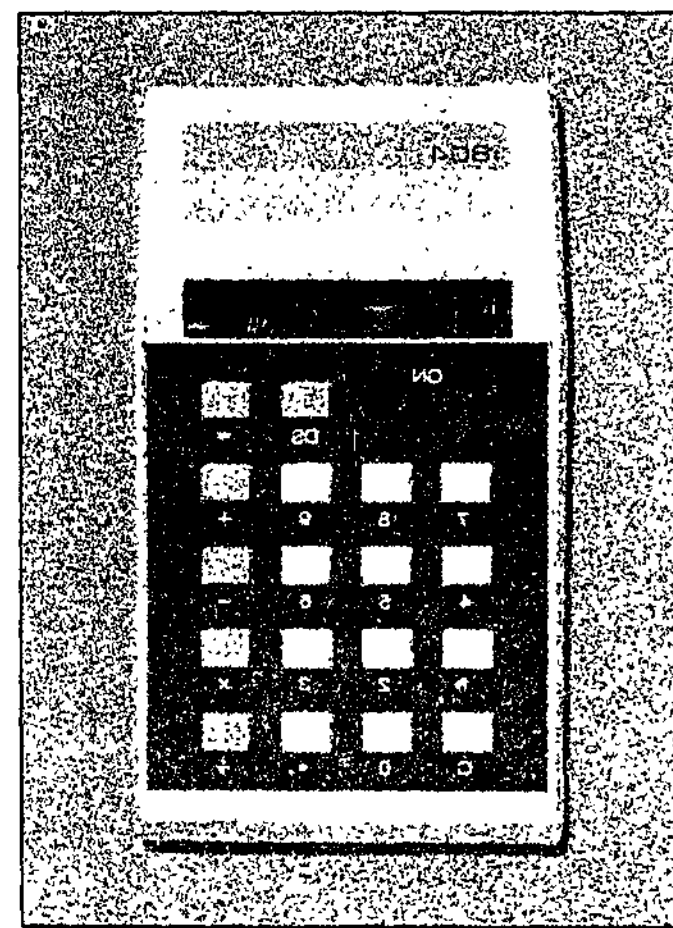

• March 20: A seminar on the operations of the Financial Accounting Standards Board will be conducted by the Northwest suburban chapter of the National Assn. of Accountants at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge, Schiller Park. The session will begin at 3 p.m. and end at 6 p.m. The public is invited to the free seminar.

• March 20-23: The Professional Remodeling Assn. will continue a series of meetings at Arlington Park Race Track, Arlington Heights.

• March 23: "How Today's Employers' Benefit Plans Affect You and Your Employees" will be the topic of a seminar at the Park Ridge Inn, Park Ridge. The 1:30 p.m. seminar is sponsored by the Citizens Bank of Park Ridge.

• March 26: A representative of the U.S. Customs service will address members of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce International Trade Club. The meeting will be held at noon at Lander's Châlet restaurant, Elk Grove Village.

Keep adding to your savings goal.

Most of us open a regular savings account with a specific goal in mind. A new car, a summer vacation, retirement. ## Rent rise to trigger condo sales

Huge leaps in apartment rental rates — forecast at from 7 to 20 per cent around the Chicago area — are expected to trigger a surge in condominium sales in the next few months.

That's the prediction of Robert Frommer, president of United Development Company, a subsidiary of Urban Investment and Development Co.

"We're going to see rents moving up so high that the advantages of owning over renting will be greater than ever," said Frommer.

He expects his company's condominium complex now being developed, Village on the Lake in Elk Grove Village, to benefit from the expected rent increase, because of a dramatic financing plan it recently unveiled.

The company, a subsidiary of Aetna Life & Casualty Co., the nation's largest diversified financial organization, is selling condominium homes priced from $25,000 to nearly $48,000 for only $990 down.

"What this means is that the buyer of a two-bedroom unit priced at $34,990, for example, will have monthly mortgage payments of $269.42 principal and interest after making the $990 down payment," said Frommer. "Even before you figure the equity and tax benefits of owning a new condominium, you can see that the economies of renting are disappearing."

Mary Jo Puhl to manage office

At Van Maren, president of Venture Realty in Mount Prospect, announces the opening of its second office at 750 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

Mary Jo Puhl will be the sales manager of the new office. Mrs. Puhl had been working for a local realty firm before joining Venture. During 1971 she received an award for selling more than one million dollars worth of real estate.

Before embarking on her real estate career, Mrs. Puhl was office manager for Lawry's Foods in Des Plaines. She also has been active with Cub Scouting, and was on the PTA board at Plainfield School. In her spare time she is writing a book for Prentiss Hall, regarding the secretary's work in real estate.

"If the buyer can make a greater down payment, the monthly payments could be even lower than rent for an apartment of comparable size and features."

"The irony is that the cost of operating rental buildings — not profiteering — is setting the pace for new rents. Rising real estate taxes, fuel costs, wages, and similar costs are going up rapidly. In recent years landlords have been unable to keep their incomes in line with their costs and now it's impossible for them to catch up," Frommer believes. Higher rents will narrow the gap for landlords, but that won't mean very much to tenants.

This cost-income imbalance is one of the important reasons that the construction of rental buildings has tailed off sharply in the past couple of years.

United is offering one, two, and three-bedroom condominiums at Village on the Lake, the homes run from $26,350 to $43,350. Village on the Lake is located on Blesterfield Road in Elk Grove Village. Take the Northwest Tollway to Arlington Heights Road and south to Blesterfield. Go west two blocks. Models are open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Sunday.

Starck: 'Now's time to buy'

"Northwest suburban residents who want either to sell or buy a home may well find the next few months, through June, will be the best time in 1975 to do so," Robert W. Starck of Starck Realtors advises local residents.

"Conditions here are much like what the nation's leading residential Realtors describe in answering a national survey by RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service," says Starck, local member of the original and largest real estate referral service.

"Right now, mortgage money is more available than in recent months, and interest rates are lower than we've seen them for some time. The steep decline in new home building last year adds to the desirability of existing homes. Pent up demand is bringing residential buyers back into the market. At the same time, homeowners, who felt the prospects of selling were too poor to consider a short time ago, are now listing attractive properties."

"The almost certain income tax refund ahead will give many families confidence to use their present savings for down payments on the homes they need. Other families with homes to sell are also eager to buy places more suited to their present needs," according to Robert W. Starck.

"What gives the next few months their special significance for both homeowners and buyers is shown by the RELO survey. Numerous experts in residential real estate report they believe the latter part of this year could repeat conditions in the second half of 1974. At that time, federal government borrowing, at increasingly higher rates, may again crowd out-of-homeowners out of the money market. Higher federal costs for tax rebates, and ballooning social services will have to be financed by federal borrowing at maximum rates, they feel," Starck says.

"However, 73 per cent of the respondents in the RELO survey of its major metropolitan area members predict that continued appreciation in the value of good residential property will keep home ownership an idea family investment, and a sound hedge against any further inflation."

"We are particularly encouraged by the fact that transferee homeowner activity, or the purchase of homes by families moving between cities, remains high. Nationally, our 730 RELO members referred 36 per cent more such relocating families to fellow members for home finding help last January than a year ago. And in the first two months of RELO's current fiscal year, 8 per cent more transferees have purchased homes from our members this year than last."

Condominium sales are improving

While multi-family condominium sales remain poor in many key areas of the nation — spotty in most others — there are significant departures from the trend and some hopeful signs.

So declares Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston. The company works with lenders, such as savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and commercial banks, by insuring the top 20-25 per cent of high-ratio conventional mortgage loans.

"With some exceptions, sales of expensive condo units continue at a brisk pace," Goss notes. "Condo sales in what we usually regard as resort areas are sluggish on less expensive units but better in many cases of relatively high-priced dwellings."

He explains how the situation commonly develops:

A complex of condominium units is raised at seaside. The units facing the ocean sell without difficulty and probably in the blueprint stage. There is slightly more resistance to the second row of condo units, which are farther removed from the sea and enjoy a restricted view. The third and fourth rows, at this time, draw almost no interest at all from prospective buyers.

"An important point to note is that virtually all of the apartments that sell in such areas are being acquired by investor-type buyers, as opposed to people who want to live there. These buyers are buying two, four, perhaps six apartments — and holding the property for a 20-25 per cent appreciation," Goss observes.

He points out that in the past such condos were purchased by people who planned to stay in them two or three weeks a year and rent them out as much of the remainder of the year as possible.

"However, management's success at getting vacationers to lease the apartments for specified periods — or rent them at all — has been less than spectacular in many cases. This means the buyers increasingly plan to restrict the units to their own use. This is truer of the Southwest and the West Coast than it is of the Southeast, especially Florida, and some other regions," Goss states.

Financing in the condominium market — as in most others and as it has always been — is the name of the game, he notes. A problem in the recent past, financing is definitely being arranged and, in fact, is a bit easier now than it was six months ago.

"In the case of resales, some investor-types are taking back the mortgage, handling it themselves. If the property is a desirable apartment, there is little difficulty in obtaining a 70 or 80 per cent mortgage in some areas; much depends on the geographical area.

"However, as such condominium units move — as sales, especially resales, show any pickup — an increasing number of thrift institutions and mortgage lending groups are beginning to question whether they are passing up possibilities. Many of them are putting out feelers on potential participations," Goss reports.

Again, he points out, resales are brisk in the case of new apartments when they are being sold by investors. Resales of older units are less than brisk. A largely accepted theory is that the intensifying squeeze on living space will push more people into the resale market. Those who are bargain-oriented are looking into this now.

"But financing remains the key. We believe the situation will stutter and stagger during much of 1975, with definitive improvement in the second half. Thrift institutions, presently with their pockets full, are not necessarily plowing their new-found funds into home loans, and they are showing increasing signs of being more selective.

"Still, for the most part, people who are buying the more expensive condos have not yet been impacted by the economy. Hopefully, with a rebounding economy, they will never be," Goss concludes.

Real estate facts

President, Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors®

Buying a home is probably the biggest investment most people will ever make. So it follows that the most extensive credit check most people encounter in a lifetime will occur when they seek financing for a home.

To avoid obstacles in obtaining a mortgage, lenders advise prospective homebuyers to check their credit files before contacting a savings and loan institution or bank. Then, any errors or out-dated information in the file can be corrected or deleted before you attempt to obtain financing.

If this is not done, the loan process could become a headache until corrections are made, or a severe disappointment if the application is rejected.

Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act of 1971 — enacted to protect consumers from unfair credit investigations — you are entitled to view the contents of your file at your local credit bureau.

But first you must present proper identification. Identification requirements are largely for your protection; they prevent unauthorized persons from viewing your confidential credit history.

After reviewing your file, you can request the bureau to re-investigate any item in question. If the information is found to be inaccurate or cannot be verified, it will be deleted. But should re-investigation not result in a revised file, the individual can request that a brief statement explaining his position be included in all future reports.

If an item is deleted or a statement added, you can request the bureau to notify anyone who received regular credit reports within the last six months.

Two types of data-seeking activity are regulated by the Fair Credit Reporting Act:

A credit report, which summarizes the consumer's record of bill-paying, employment and legal information on public record such as lawsuits, liens and traffic violations.

An investigative report, which involves an on-the-street inquiry into the consumer's finances, habits, reputation, mode of living and health. These investigations usually are made on persons seeking insurance or employment.

If you're subjected to a personal investigation, the company asking for the investigation is supposed to let you know, and you can demand the name and address of the firm hired to do the investigating. You also can ask that the investigating company tell you what its report contains — except for medical information used to determine your eligibility for life insurance. But you can't require investigators to reveal names of neighbors or friends who supplied information.

Even if you haven't borrowed in several years and are not planning to seek financing for a home or other purchase, checking your credit file now is a good idea. Adverse information may remain on file up to seven years. (Once that time has passed, you can require the credit bureau to cease reporting it. However, bankruptcy information can remain on file for 14 years.)

While certain incorrect or outdated information in your credit file may have been inconsequential when you applied for a credit card, it could cast doubt on your qualifying for a mortgage.

Two join firm

Two realtors have joined Quinlan and Tyson's new Buffalo Grove area office.

They are Shirley A. Griffin and Carol Smaha. The appointment of the real estate sales representatives was announced by Robert Griffith, office sales manager.

Mrs. Griffin comes to Quinlan and Tyson with two years of experience selling area property. She previously had done work in electrical, mechanical and architectural drafting.

Mrs. Griffin and her husband, Robert, have three children. They live in Buffalo Grove.

Mrs. Smaha also has two years of experience selling area property. She previously worked for Delta Airlines as a stewardess for more than two years.

Mrs. Smaha is active in St. Mary's Church and the Kenilworth Club. She and her husband, Stephen, have two sons. The family lives in Buffalo Grove.

"Once upon a time..."
I WAS NOT A PAMPERED LITTLE FOX!

I can't tell you my little life's story, but I can say that the "creature comforts" here at FOXBORO NORTH APARTMENTS have done wonders for my disposition.

I've got my own recreation center with two saunas, a game room, a swimming pool, tennis courts, and my own park to dart around in when I've got the urge to "rough it" out there in the wilderness.

Mostly, I prefer the coziness of my apartment with my own private entry, shag carpeting to curl up on, a dishwasher, disposal, double-door refrigerator & all the other appliances I need.

I picked one with a fireplace because besides being pampered, I guess deep down I'm just an incurable romantic. Come and pick a one of two bedroom loir of your own and be pampered like me.

St. Paul Savings 8 complete course deposits grow

Savings deposits grew nine per cent or $37 million in the year ended December 31, 1974. St. Paul Federal Savings and Loan Association of Chicago reported. Total savings at year end were $117,922,613, compared with $10,010,771 a year ago. The institution has a branch in Rolling Meadows.

Faustin A. Pipal, board chairman, said assets gained 14 per cent or $68,100,530, moving up to $334,839,542 from $166,739,001 at the beginning of the year. A portion of the increase, he noted, resulted from the acquisition in December of Hanover-Wayne Savings in Bartlett, a $12 million association.

First mortgage loans and contracts at year end amounted to $155,400,388, as against $118,705,917 a year ago. St. Paul made more than $50 million in mortgage loans in the Chicago area last year.

"We believe our savings growth is a remarkable achievement since it was accomplished during the most competitive and turbulent money market in a number of years," Pipal stated. "With two additional offices in northwest Chicago, land opened last month and a more favorable savings climate, we fully anticipate another good year in 1975."

St. Paul Federal, with headquarters at 6700 W. North Avenue in Chicago, has other offices in Franklin Park, Bartlett and 10th and Leavitt, Chicago.

Eight Quinlan and Tyson real estate sales representatives from the northwest suburban area recently completed a course of study at the Realtors Institute in Peoria. The sales representatives, and the area Quinlan and Tyson offices to which they are assigned are Mary Jane

Walgreen reports record volume

Walgreen Co. reported record volume during the first quarter of fiscal 1975, according to President Charles R. Walgreen III. First quarter sales for the period ending December 31, 1974, rose 7.8 per cent to $303,883,043, compared to $284,190,349 for the same quarter last year.

LIFO-adjusted earnings for the period were off 5.2 per cent to $5,149,421, compared with LIFO-adjusted earnings for the first quarter a year ago of $5,433,228.

LIFO-adjusted earnings per share were 78 cents, versus LIFO-adjusted earnings per share of 83 cents last year. On a fully diluted basis, earnings per share were 71 cents, versus 75 cents last year, after adjustment for LIFO.

"Our drug store division, as predicted, continued to perform at a record sales and profit pace," commented Walgreen, "despite the negative economy. Our prescription departments again led all others in volume gains."

"The increases in our drug store division," he continued, "were offset by declines experienced by our Globe Department Stores and our restaurants." Walgreen noted that Globe volume was depressed by an expected reduction in sales of high-ticket items — especially appliances.

He also stated that early pre-Christmas liquidation efforts by competitors in overstocked conditions forced Globe to match heavy competitive ad markdowns, and this adversely affected December profits. "However," Walgreen asserted, "Globe's inventory conditions were, and are, the best in years, and this should prove advantageous in the months ahead."

"Our food service division," Walgreen commented, "is enjoying increased customer counts. But because inflation-hit consumers are trading down, volume was only slightly higher, and resultant higher operating cost per customer reduced earnings below a year ago."

Walgreen stated that the firm continues to streamline operations and accent cost controls companywide, and has registered significant overall improvement in inventories. "The cumulative effect," said Walgreen, "is our readiness to capitalize strongly on an upturn in the economy."

The first fiscal quarter of 1975 saw the opening of an additional nine Walgreen Drug Stores, and one Globe Department Store. The firm began the calendar year with 623 Walgreen Drug Stores, 26 Globe Department Stores, 25 free-standing restaurants, and 315 store-connected restaurants, in addition to nearly 1800 franchised Walgreen Agency Drug Stores.

Mutual County Fire Ins. celebrates 100th anniversary

February, 1975, marks 100 years of service by the Mutual County Fire Insurance Co. of Mount Prospect. Formed in 1875 as the Maine Mutual Fire and Lightning Insurance Co. of Cook County, the company was originally undersigned by residents of Maine, Northfield, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Leyden and Niles townships to incorporate for the purpose of forming the company headed by its first president and founder John C. Seegers.

The first policy holder of the company was Henry C. Senne of Des Plaines who insured $3,000 worth of property.

The first loss incurred by the company was a loss by lightning to the property of Christian Hackmeister in the amount of $80.

In 1938, the company changed the name to "Mutual County Fire Insurance Company of Mount Prospect," and a new charter was adopted. Under the charter the company also extended its present limits and annexed the Townships of Cuba, Elia, Vernon, West Deerfield and Deerfield in Lake County and the Townships of Addison, Bloomingdale and Wayne in DuPage County.

In 1956, the charter was again amended to include all of Lake, McHenry, Kane, DuPage and Will counties.

Switching Systems Testers.

Right now, you're a very able switching systems tester. But maybe you've outgrown your present job and you're looking for something a lot better.

That's where we come in. We're Northern Electric. One of the largest and fastest growing manufacturers of telecommunications equipment in the world.

Some of our most advanced and sophisticated pieces of equipment are our switching systems. In fact, they've helped to make our name all over the world.

And to help us maintain our reputation for high quality products, we need high quality testers.

Perhaps someone like you. You have a minimum of two years experience testing stored program controlled telephone switching centers. In addition, you have a thorough working knowledge of common control crossbar switching.

You also have an Associate in Science degree from a two year Junior College program or an equivalent qualification.

As you can see we're looking for a highly qualified person who can perform independent technical system testing, as well as be a trouble shooter of hardware and software at locations across Canada.

We'll pay good money to get the right man. The kind of money your experience and qualifications deserve.

On top of that you'll get a cost of living allowance and generous financial help when you move to join us.

So if you'd like to really test your talents and work in Canada, send us a resume, in confidence, giving complete details of your education, working background and salary requirements to:

Meatless Spring Brunch

Sunday brunch is a relaxed way to entertain. Even your busiest friends often are free and delighted to accept an invitation to brunch. The hour naturally lends itself to the informality that many hostesses and guests enjoy.

For a colorful spring menu here are three new ideas: Breakfast Patties Florentine, Hawaiian Brunch Slices with Curry Sauce and Fruited Link Kabobs. All are flavorful, but free of animal fat and cholesterol. Start with a fruit-laced beverage, add hot breads and you're set.

Each of these recipes is prepared with one of Morningstar Farm's new brown and serve breakfast products. All are completely free of the two things that concern many people today — cholesterol and animal fat. Derived from the natural protein in soy and wheat and fortified with the essential B vitamins and iron, they present a sensible way to start the day.

Breakfast Patties Florentine is a savory spinach topped with breakfast patties garnished with tomato and mushroom caps. These mildly spiced patties look and taste much like country-style sausage.

Hawaiian Brunch Slices are prepared with smoky flavored breakfast slices that resemble Canadian bacon. Browned breakfast slices are served on toasted English muffins topped with grilled Mozzarella cheese. A Curry Sauce accompanies them.

Fruited Link Kabobs are created with breakfast links that look just like sausage links. They are skewered with pineapple chunks, prunes and maraschino cherries then brushed with honey and French dressing and broiled.

You can find these cholesterol-free breakfast products in your grocer's freezer. For added convenience, they can be cooked either frozen or thawed. Because they contain so little fat, be sure to use cooking oil to cover the bottom of a cold frying pan when browning. Then place links, patties or slices in the pan and cook over medium heat until slightly browned. Don't overcook. . . . 4 to 12 minutes, depending on the product, is all the cooking time needed.

Similar meat products may be used with these recipes if desired.

Spring Brunch Menu

Citrus Fruit Punch
Breakfast Patties Florentine
Hawaiian Brunch Slices with Curry Sauce
Fruited Link Kabobs
Coffee Cake      Danish Sweet Rolls Beverage

FRUITED LINK KABOBS

- 1 package Morningstar Farms Breakfast Links, thawed
- 20 pitted prunes
- 20 canned pineapple chunks
- 10 Maraschino cherries, if desired
- 10 skewers
- $\frac{1}{4}$  cup honey
- $\frac{1}{4}$  cup French Dressing

Cut Breakfast Links in half crosswise. On each skewer alternate a half of link, a pitted prune and a pineapple chunk. End each skewer with a maraschino cherry, if desired. Place on rack in broiler pan. Combine honey and French dressing. Brush on kabobs. Broil until evenly browned, turn, brush honey mixture on second side. Continue broiling until browned. Makes 10 kabobs.

BREAKFAST PATTIES FLORENTINE

- 1 package Morningstar Farms Breakfast Patties
- 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach
- 2 eggs, or equivalent egg substitute
- $\frac{1}{2}$  cup milk
- $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon instant minced onion
- $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon pepper
- 6 slices tomato
- 6 mushroom caps
- polyunsaturated oil

Cook spinach as directed on package; drain well. Add eggs, milk, onion, salt and pepper; blend well. Pour into oiled 9-inch pie plate. Arrange Breakfast Patties on spinach mixture. Brush patties with oil. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Top each patty with a tomato slice and a mushroom cap. Brush with oil. Continue baking for 15 minutes or until a knife inserted in center of spinach mixture comes out clean. Makes six servings.

HAWAIIAN BRUNCH SLICES

- 1 package Morningstar Farms Breakfast Slices
- 8 slices canned pineapple
- 4 English muffins
- 8 slices low-fat Mozzarella cheese
- polyunsaturated oil
- Curry Sauce

CURRY SAUCE

- 4 tablespoons margarine
- 3 tablespoons flour
- $\frac{1}{2}$  cup chicken bouillon
- $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon curry powder
- $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 cup low-fat yogurt

Melt margarine in small saucepan. Blend in flour; add chicken bouillon and cook, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Blend in remaining ingredients and continue cooking until heated through. Do not boil. Serve hot. Makes 1½ cups sauce.

One recipe, many rolls

She's an expert with yeast dough

by LOIS SEILER

The kitchen is Florence Hannum's favorite room in the house. Her friends will attest to the fact that she's an expert with yeast dough, almost always having home-baked delicacies on hand to serve to family or guests.

Florence, who lives in Arlington Heights, credits her variety of baked goods to one basic recipe with which she always has success. Called Riot of Rolls Dough, it's a Betty Crocker recipe found in a package of flour years ago. With it she can make olive pinwheels, cinnamon rolls, a tea ring, butterhorns, cloverleaf or Parker House rolls and countless others.

The dough itself is versatile. Easy to make, it can be kneaded and baked the same day, or stored in the refrigerator for three to four days and used as needed.

If the dough is refrigerated, no kneading is required, but it must be punched down periodically as it rises.

FOR THE OLIVE pinwheels, Florence encases stuffed olives in squares of the dough, forming a pinwheel shape. Brushed with egg white and sprinkled with onion salt, the baked rolls have a salty flavor that makes them an excellent accompaniment for a beef roast or steak.

The cinnamon rolls have a filling of brown sugar, cinnamon and melted butter, to which raisins and nuts may be added, if desired. They can be baked in muffin tins or a cake pan, with brown sugar and butter in the bottom to give them a caramelized coating.

Half of the basic dough is needed to make the tea ring, which is filled with glazed mixed fruit, raisins and nuts. After baking, it is frosted with an almond-flavored icing and can be decorated with cherries and nuts. Florence serves this for festive holiday breakfasts, and is certain to have it for Easter morning fare.

THE BUTTERHORNS, Parker House and cloverleaf rolls are made with plain dough and always brushed with melted butter after baking. Light-textured with a bread-like texture, they are an excellent accompaniment for any meal.

Florence usually prepares her baked goods in advance and freezes them. Even the olive pinwheels freeze well, but she doesn't frost the tea ring before freezing, preferring to wait until it is reheated. If wrapped tightly in foil, they retain their freshness and taste just-baked when warmed up.

The mother of two sons, Florence finds it satisfying to cook for men. Because her husband, Bill, and their boys are so pleased with fresh rolls, Florence keeps a supply readily available for family get-togethers. Mark, his wife Jill and their two children often drive up from their home in Danville. Jim, who lives at home, will be married in April.

ANOTHER OF FLORENCE'S specialties is Orange Rolls. Pretty in appearance, they are made from an orange-flavored dough which is rolled, knotted and formed in a special way to resemble a flower. After baking, these sweet, light-textured rolls are frosted with an orange glaze. They are excellent to serve with turkey or ham, or make a delightful luncheon roll.

In addition to her culinary interests, Florence enjoys sewing, handwork and crafts. She is corresponding secretary of Chapter HN of PEO, house and hostess chairman for circle 6 of the First Presbyterian Church and a member of Pi Beta Phi Alumnae Club and Community Concert Association.

RIOT OF ROLLS DOUGH

2 cups warm water
2 packages dry yeast
½ cup sugar
¼ cup soft margarine or shortening
1 egg
2 teaspoons salt
6½ to 7 cups flour

Measure water into a large, warm mixing bowl. Sprinkle in yeast. Stir until dissolved. Add sugar, shortening, egg, salt and half the flour. Beat until smooth with electric mixer. Mix in remaining flour with a spoon until dough is easy to handle. If the dough is not to be used immediately, place in greased bowl, turn to coat top and refrigerate at least two hours. It can remain in refrigerator as long as three to four days, covered loosely with foil. When dough rises, punch down occasionally. The dough can be used as needed, with no kneading required.

If dough is to be used immediately, it must be kneaded until smooth and satiny on a lightly-floured surface. Place in a greased bowl and turn to grease top. Let rise, covered, at room temperature until double in bulk, about two hours.

Olive Pinwheels:

¼ of dough
12 medium-size stuffed olives
1 egg white, slightly beaten
Onion salt

On a lightly-floured board, roll dough to a 9 by 12-inch rectangle. Cut into twelve 3-inch squares. Cut squares diagonally from each corner to about a half-inch from center. Place olive in center, and in rotation bring the same point of each corner to the center. Overlap and seal the points. Brush the pinwheel with egg whites, sprinkle with onion salt, cover and let rise until double in bulk. Bake at 400 degrees about 12 minutes. Makes 12 rolls.

Cinnamon Rolls:

Roll out ¼ of dough to a 9 by 12-inch rectangle. Spread generously with melted butter or margarine. Sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon. Raisins and chopped nuts may be added, if desired. Roll up as for a jelly roll and cut into one-inch slices. Place in well-greased muffin tins or cake pan with melted butter and a sprinkling of brown sugar on the bottom. Let rise, covered, until double in bulk. Bake at 400 degrees for 12 minutes.

Tea Ring:

Roll out ¼ of the dough to a 9 by 18-inch rectangle. Brush generously with melted butter or margarine. Sprinkle lightly with granulated sugar. Cover surface with glazed mixed fruit, raisins and chopped nuts.

Roll up as for a jelly roll, place on a well-greased cookie sheet and form into a ring. On outer edge, clip about every inch, almost to the center, with a scissors, going all around ring. Give each section a twist so that the cut side faces up. Let rise until double in bulk. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes or until golden and cake springs back when lightly-touched. Frost with a confectioners' (Continued on page 4)

UNBLEACHED FOREVER

When you think how hard it is to get good natural ingredients in your food, isn't it great there's Ceresota natural unbleached flour for your baking?

That's right, unbleached flour. I can tell you, most of them are bleached. But not Ceresota. Ceresota has been unbleached since 1891. Oh it's white all right, a beautiful natural white. They just never use bleaches to make it white. Now, when I bake, when I finally get the chance to pick what goes into my food, wouldn't I be crazy not to pick Ceresota natural unbleached flour for my bread & my cakes & my pies & my muffins & my cookies & my doughnuts? And wouldn't I be crazy not to use this coupon?

Daube Provencale favorite for sizeable dinner groups

"Recipes should be like love; there should be lots to go around!" With that sage remark, Mrs. Lucy M. Wistreich of Chicago, allows me to share with you her favorite dish for serving sizeable dinner groups.

It called Daube Provencale de Mme. Motiere and is a delightful stew which should be prepared a day in advance in order that the seasonings can fully penetrate and give the desired taste to the beef.

Purchase 4 pounds brisket of beef (round steak or stewing beef) and trim off fat. Cut beef into large cubes, about 1 1/2 to 2 inches. In a Dutch oven or other deep, heavy casserole, cook 1 pound bacon until it has rendered its fat. Remove bacon and set aside.

Cook cubes of beef in fat from bacon, a few pieces at a time so that the meat will be browned to a golden color on all sides. Sprinkle beef with salt and pepper to taste. Now add 4 large onions, peeled and quartered. Crumble cooked bacon and add. Separate 2 whole heads of garlic (about 20 cloves), peel, but do not chop, then add.

SEASON WITH 1 strip orange peel, dried, 1 bay leaf and 2 springs fresh thyme (or 1 teaspoon dried). Using a dry red wine such as a good Burgundy, add until all contents in Dutch oven are covered. Adjust seasoning with salt and pepper. Cover tightly and simmer over low heat until the meat is tender. Let the dish cool, then refrigerate. When cool, skim fat from the surface.

Reheat to boiling point before serving with a big dish of noodles. Easily enough for 8 to 10 hungry people.

Oh, and about the amount of garlic, here is a quote from an old French cookbook. "Garlic, says an old wives' tale, wards off disease. Be assured that the slow cooking of this French stew — with its 20 or so cloves of garlic — will neutralize the garlic so that it won't ward off people, too."

Should you not use all the stew in one sitting, it can be reheated several times to good advantage, improving steadily in flavor.

Mostly for men

One recipe, many rolls

Butterhorns:
Roll out 1/4 of the dough to a 12-inch circle about 1/4-inch thick. Spread with melted butter and cut into 12 to 16 pie-shaped wedges. Roll up and tuck point under. Place on greased cookie sheet and let rise, covered, until double. Bake at 400 degrees for 12 minutes. Brush with butter.

Parker House Rolls:
Roll out 1/4 of the dough and cut into circles about two inches in diameter. Spread with melted butter. Make a depression diagonally across the circles with a knife. Fold over and pinch edges together. Let rise until double. Bake at 400 degrees for 12 minutes. Brush with butter when removed from oven.

Overleaf Rolls:
Use 1/4 of the dough for a dozen rolls. Form bits of dough into balls about 3/4 inch in diameter. Place three in each greased muffin tin. Cover and let rise. Bake at 400 degrees for 12 minutes and brush with butter when removed from oven. Or, before the rolls rise, brush them with one egg yolk mixed with 2 tablespoons water and sprinkle with poppy seed. Let rise and bake as above.

ORANGE ROLLS
1 cup scalded milk
1 1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup margarine or shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1 envelope dry yeast
1 cup lukewarm water
2 well-beaten eggs
1/2 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons grated orange peel
3 cups sifted flour
Scalded milk and pour over sugar, shortening and salt in a large bowl. Cool to lukewarm. While cooling, soften yeast in lukewarm water. Add to milk mixture. Add eggs, orange juice and peel and beat well. Then add the flour and mix to a soft dough. Cover and let stand 10 minutes.

Knead dough 5 to 10 minutes on a lightly-floured surface. When it is satin smooth and pliable, place in a greased bowl, turning over once to bring greased side up on top. Cover and let rise until double in bulk, about two hours.

Punch down, cut off 1/4 dough and roll into an 8-inch square. Cut dough into strips 1/4-inch wide. Roll each strip lightly between the palms of the hands. Form each strip into a knot. Take the strip underneath the knot, pull it over and tuck end into center. Tuck the other end under the knot and up through the center. When they rise, rolls will resemble flowers. Repeat process 3 more times with remainder of dough.

Place on greased baking sheets, cover and let rise until double. Bake at 400 degrees for 12 minutes. Frost while hot with the following icing:

2 tablespoons orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
1 cup confectioners' sugar
Heat ingredients together. Brush onto rolls with a pastry brush for an even glaze. Makes 3 to 4 dozen.

EGG FLOWER BOUQUET

Fashion egg shells into fancy Easter centerpieces

Looking for a pretty Easter table centerpiece? Here are two arrangements made with colorful Easter eggs, and they're not expensive — the decorations are made with blown eggshells, so the contents of the egg can be used for cakes and scrambled eggs.

To blow an egg, pierce both ends with a sharp-pointed ice pick or manicure scissors; enlarge the hole to the size of a small pea. Then hold the egg over a bowl and blow through the hole. Rinse the eggshell with cold water and let dry.

Now color your eggshells bright spring colors.

To make the Easter Egg Tree, you'll need a Styrofoam cone, pipe stem cleaners and artificial or live greenery. Push one pipe cleaner through holes in each of the eggs; insert both ends of the cleaner into the Styrofoam. Arrange eggs around cone, add greenery and place in a bowl.

THE EGG Flower Bouquet is made with pipe cleaners, muffin cups, colored straws and green crepe paper. Run a pastel pipe cleaner through the holes in the egg, twisting the end of the cleaner into a small circle to cover the hole at the small end of the egg (the "flower top").

Two paper muffin cups form petals; the stems are colored straws. Insert the pipe cleaner through a hole in the center of the cups. Push cups up under the base of the egg, then glue the pipe cleaner into a straw. For the leaves, use green crepe paper and cement a green pipe cleaner lengthwise along the center of each. Arrange the bouquet in flower holder or modeling clay, and collect the compliments.

Tips On Cheese

When you're planning your food budget, remember to put cheese on your list. It can be the start of many delicious but inexpensive meals.

The delicious natural flavor of cheese is best maintained when the cheese is kept refrigerated and wrapped, either in the original polyfilm covering or in a plastic wrap. Should portions dry out, they can be frozen, but when thawed will often be mealy and therefore more suitable in cooking recipes.

Always remove cheese from refrigeration about one-half hour before serving to fully enjoy the delightful flavor, aroma and texture.

Who says low-fat diets are boring?

When a family starts a fat controlled meal plan to reduce their risk of heart disease, confusion often follows. It need not. A restricted diet doesn't mean giving up all that you enjoy or turning your kitchen into a chemistry lab.

Salvage as many of the family favorites as possible. Although some foods are not recommended for the dieter, many remain to compensate their loss, and others may only be limited in quantity. Re-examine the ingredients in each of your recipes. Frequently the favorites need just a bit of "doctoring" to retrieve them from the never-never bill of fare.

AS A PART OF the Heart-Health fairs, held in the Chicago suburban area, many delicious and varied recipes were submitted for judging by a panel of dietitians, physicians and gourmets. In addition to being judged on taste, these entries had to contain ingredients lower in saturated fats.

The dishes chosen stress the importance of establishing sound eating patterns and were tested by the Nutrition Committee of the Heart Association of North Cook County.

ORANGE FRENCH TOAST

3 egg whites
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup skim milk
Dash of salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
6 slices day-old bread
1/2 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons soft margarine
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1 tablespoon orange juice
With fork, beat together egg whites, skim milk, water, salt and cinnamon. Brush non-stick skillet lightly with oil and preheat about 3 minutes. Dip both sides of bread in egg white mixture and brown well. Place French toast on cookie sheet.

Meanwhile, blend softened margarine with brown sugar. Add orange juice and rind. Spread mixture over slices of French toast. Just before serving, broil 3 inches below broiler until bubbly and nicely browned, about one minute. Serves 4-6 at 4 grams of fat per portion.

EAST-WEST SPAGHETTI
12 ounces tomato juice
2 teaspoons onion flakes
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
Salt and pepper to taste
Garlic powder and oregano to taste
1 drop artificial sweetener
1 small can mushroom stems and pieces
2 cans bean sprouts
1 pound lean ground chuck
Put all ingredients but bean sprouts and meat in sauce pan. Cover and cook over medium heat for 1/2 hour.
Drain bean sprouts. Add to sauce and cook another 1 1/2 hours.

Crumble and brown chuck. Drain off fat with use of colander, and add meat to sauce. Simmer for a while longer and serve. Serves four. One portion contains 20 grams of fat.

JUICY FLANK STEAK WITH HERB SAUCE
2 tablespoons polyunsaturated oil or soft margarine
1 tablespoon flour

1/2 cup finely chopped onion
1 large clove garlic, crushed
1/2 teaspoon ground oregano
1/2 teaspoon ground marjoram
1/2 teaspoon ground thyme
1/2 cup water
2 teaspoons lemon juice
Salt and pepper to taste
1 pound flank steak, scored and broiled as desired
Chopped parsley
Melt margarine or heat oil. Blend in flour; add onion and garlic. Cook, stirring occasionally over medium heat until onions are tender. Remove from heat; stir in herbs. Gradually add water and lemon juice. Heat, stirring until mixture boils. Season with salt and pepper. Set aside and keep warm.

Thinly slice cooked steak on angle across the grain. Serve topped with sauce; garnish with parsley. Makes four servings with 20 grams of fat each.

COMPANY CHICKEN CASSEROLE

2 whole uncooked chicken breasts
Coating for chicken:
4 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
Garlic salt and pepper
4 tablespoons polyunsaturated oil or soft margarine
3 ounces smoked sliced beef
1 small can drained mushroom pieces and stems
1 1/2 cups chicken broth
Parmesan cheese, grated
Bone and skin chicken breasts; cut meat into strips. Put bones in a pan, cover with water (add seasonings such as celery, onions, etc.) and cover to make chicken broth.

Put coating ingredients into paper bag and shake chicken strips until coated. Heat oil or margarine (if using margarine be careful not to burn) in skillet and brown chicken strips. Reduce heat and continue cooking until tender.

Overlay strips of smoked sliced beef and mushrooms on chicken. Add strained chicken broth and sprinkle lightly with Parmesan cheese. Cover and cook a few minutes longer until broth thickens and becomes sauce. This can be made a day ahead of time and reheated. Serves four at 25 grams of fat per portion.

FILLET OF SOLE IN WINE SAUCE

1 pound fillet of sole cut into 3 pieces
1 tablespoon polyunsaturated oil
1 1-pound can tomatoes, drained and halved
4 green onions, sliced
1 4-ounce can mushrooms, drained
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/3 cup dry sherry
4 teaspoons polyunsaturated oil
2 tablespoons flour
Chopped parsley

Arrange fish in well oiled 10-inch skillet. Pour tomatoes, green onions and mushrooms over fish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add sherry. Cover and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 12 minutes or until fish is tender. Remove fish, tomato, mushrooms and onion to warm platter and keep warm.

To the skillet, add oil and blend in flour, stirring until thickened. Reduce flame to low and cook 5 minutes. Pour over fish and broil to brown. Garnish with parsley. Makes 3 servings with 16 grams of fat per portion.

Kids with learning problems

Special programs help preschoolers

by LINDA PUNCH

Most parents assume five is the magic age — the time when their clumsy, timid preschooler becomes a confident kindergarten student.

Yet, for many children, five is not a miraculous turning point. An unfamiliar classroom situation increases their shyness and awkwardness. For some, school will be a continuing series of failures and frustrations.

In the Northwest suburbs, school officials are attempting to meet the needs of these children. Classes for 3 and 4-year-olds are becoming more common each year as school districts ease into a new area of education — preschool programs for children with learning problems.

THE PROBLEMS are as diverse as the children: an over-aggressive 4-year-old boy, a quiet, awkward 3-year-old, a young girl who will not talk. The children are of normal or above normal intelligence, but for "whatever reason they need a little extra help," said Kay Haines, director of early childhood education for Arlington Heights Dist. 25.

"Our business is to avoid stigma, to correct a problem before a label is attached," said Richard Framke, director of Project PREDICT, a preschool program sponsored by the Maine Township school districts.

In past years, parents of children with learning problems would be told to hold a child out of school a year, to wait until he turned six and had matured enough to enter kindergarten. But Framke said delaying the start of school "helps only in very rare cases."

"IT'S LIKE SAYING appendicitis will go away if you wait long enough," he said. "If a child has a developmental delay, he's not going to catch up unless somebody works with him."

Legislation mandating special education for preschoolers with learning delays was approved by the General Assembly in 1972. But Framke notes that programs vary in size and content from district to district.

"Writing of the law is one thing. Implementing it is another, especially when they don't provide you with money for it," he said, adding that Project PREDICT receives federal funding because it is a model program.

Regardless of the size of the program, most follow a similar pattern: a screening process to identify children who would benefit from preschool, an educational program for the children with problems and workshops and discussion groups for parents and teachers.

PRESCHOOLERS ARE referred to the program by a number of sources including nursery schools and pediatricians. But Framke said parents are often the best indicators of a child with a learning problem.

"Sometimes they (the parents) aren't quite sure what the problem is, they only know it exists. Ninety-nine per cent of the time they're right," he said.

The screening process usually involves an interview with parent and child followed by diagnostic testing. The Project PREDICT staff has devised a 5-minute interview which "can tell immediately if a child needs help or further diagnosis," Framke said.

Children with mild learning problems are not accepted into the preschool programs, but most school districts will give parents suggestions for working with the children at home.

"WE TRY TO decide whether the child has a problem that needs immediate help. Many times, it's just a problem of maturation and it's best not to do anything," Mrs. Haines said.

"If the parents still see no improvement, we'll usually ask them to bring the child back for further testing," Framke added.

Children with more severe developmental problems are usually referred to a team of specialists, including a learning disabilities teacher, a speech and language therapist and a psychologist. The team tries to pinpoint the child's specific problems and set up a corrective education program.

Mrs. Haines notes that the preschool classes are used not only for corrective work but also for further diagnosis.

"The preschool years are the years when remediation is most effective. It is also the time when diagnosis is most difficult," she said.

IN PROSPECT HEIGHTS Dist. 23, the preschool program is currently limited to children with speech and language or coordination problems. Kindergarten children are seen individually for 15 minutes each weekday and also meet once a week for an hour to do individual work.

The Dist. 23 preschool program operates out of a classroom at Ivy Hill School, Arlington Heights. Two teachers work with three small groups of youngsters for several hours a week. Children take part in both group activities — storytelling, painting and singing — and individual work.

Project PREDICT also takes a classroom approach with youngsters meeting several hours for four or five days a week. Framke said the preschool students have an hour of intensive therapy and an "hour of nursery school type situation."

THE DISTRICTS also provide programs for the preschoolers' parents with topics ranging from nutrition to child management. Parents are able to discuss the special problems of a child with learning problems.

School officials say that most of the children in the preschool programs will go on to regular school programs with or without the help of specialists, such as speech therapists or learning disabilities teachers.

"If we're able to have youngsters for seven months or more, we figure 50 per cent will go onto regular kindergarten and be successful," Framke said. "The other 50 per cent may have continuing problems that can be met by the special education programs."

Whom to call on preschool

Most school districts test children for the preschool programs several times a year. Parents may also contact school officials for testing during the year. For information on individual district's preschool classes, they may contact:

- Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 — Lorita Langley, 358-1409.
- Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 — Richard Wynn, LE 7-8270.
- Prospect Heights Dist. 23 — Tom Rich, 259-4350.
- Arlington Heights Dist. 25 — Kay Haines, 338-4200.
- River Trails Dist. 26 — Alan Levin, 297-4120.
- Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 — Jeanie Swanson, 885-4200.
- Mount Prospect Dist. 57 — Shirley Gundersen, 259-1200.
- Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 — Merle J. Nevenhoven, 437-1000.
- Maine Township — Richard Framke, 695-0214.

Woman neurosurgeon

A rarity in medicine

Carrie Lou Walters can chisel, hammer, saw and sew with the best neurosurgeons in the business.

She has power tools, support from her colleagues, plenty of drive and more than five of the eight required years of neurosurgical training behind her.

At 29, as No. 2 senior resident in the University of Chicago hospital system, she has served as "primary surgeon" on a team of three in emergency cases, depressed skull fractures and one inter-cerebral hematoma.

These days, many women study to become doctors. Few become surgeons and almost none go into neurosurgery.

"It's because of the physical stamina required," she said. "It's simply a more demanding area of medicine. One is on 'their' feet for such long hours." Carefully she omitted all third-person "his" references from her conversation.

"THOUGH MOST brain surgery is very delicate," she said, "getting through a skull is really carpentry. In practical terms. The power tools we are using now have really been a help to me. In fact one of my advisers said those tools are making it possible for me to go into this field."

As for stitching, she often tells her colleagues, "Sewing is woman's work."

"Of course, if one wants to do something badly enough, you'll do it no matter what kind of energy it takes. And, power tools or not, certainly the hours haven't changed."

Dr. Walters — with no notice — will often have to put in 36 hours straight. Other times, she will go three 16-hour days in a row.

"It has a great element of unpredictability. If you know you're going to have to be on 16 hours a day for three days, then you can prepare for it. But surgery is not like that. There's always the element of trauma emergency victims."

She has met no resistance from her male colleagues because, she said, she has never looked for it.

"I go into a situation thinking there is a job to be done and I can help get it done."

PATIENTS, SHE SAID, often prefer having a woman take care of them. "They have some preconceived notions that because you are a woman you are going to understand their emotions better," she said, but denied there was any truth to it.

"No, I think men understand every bit as well, though I don't think women are any less understanding," she said.

Dr. Walters, a Salem, Ore., native, said she decided to become a neurosurgeon when she was eight — and with no parental prompting. Both her parents are retail store clerks.

"I believe my family thinks I'm a little crazy," she said.

"But if I didn't love it, I'd get out. You'd be crazy to remain in this if you didn't like it. On general principles I hate to get up in the morning. But knowing I have something to go to that I enjoy doing and that's always a challenge makes it worth it."

(United Press International)

DR. CARRIE LOU WALTERS serves as primary surgeon in an operation in the University of Chicago hospital system where she is No. 2 senior resident. She's one of very few women neurosurgeons in the field of medicine.

Hearing test over phone

Pick up your phone, dial 591-3046, and listen carefully. You'll be testing your hearing by telephone.

The two-minute test, offered 24 hours a day, seven days a week, is a new service offered by the Chicago Hearing Society for the first time in this area. Only charge is the cost of your toll call.

Those who call Fone-a-Test will hear a brief introduction, then be instructed to listen for four test tones with each ear. Those who do not hear all eight tones may have a hearing loss.

THE RECORDING stresses that the test is not a complete hearing evaluation. Those who have trouble hearing the tones should consult a doctor or call the Chicago Hearing Society, 332-6850.

Most persons with marginal to mild hearing losses are not aware that a problem exists and by the time they see a doctor permanent hearing loss has occurred. The Chicago Hearing Society hopes Fone-a-Test will awaken awareness among those who do have a hearing deficiency.

Next on the agenda

HUNTING RIDGE GARDENERS

Hunting Ridge Garden Club meets at 1 p.m. today in the home of Joan Timberlake for a demonstration on spring flower arrangements. Information, 339-7006.

MAINE TWP. GOP WOMEN

Maine Township Republican Women's Club will hold its monthly membership meeting Friday at Republican Headquarters, 1566 Aliner St., Des Plaines. Coffee and dessert will be served at 12:30 p.m., followed by a business meeting. Candidates for Park District Commissioners and Aldermanic posts in Des Plaines who have requested an opportunity to address the group will be welcomed after 1:45. Information, 824-1742.

NORTHWEST PWP

Nuisance calls spell trouble for both the telephone company and those who receive them. Northwest Suburban Chapter 160, Parents Without Partners, will learn to deal with these problems at Friday's 8:30 p.m. meeting at Casa Royale, Des Plaines. Mrs. Helen Casciotti of Illinois Bell will present a program, "When Trouble Comes Calling," exploring the types of calls and ways to prevent them. PWP information, 297-2203.

ST. JOHN'S NAIM

St. John's Chapter of Naim, a group of Catholic widowed, meets Friday at 8:30 p.m. at Gully Galleries, Des Plaines. There will be cards and games after a business meeting.

SCHAUMBURG PWP

The second meeting of Schaumburg Chapter, Parents Without Partners, is Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Schaumburg Room of Woodfield Mall. Guest speaker will be Ann Pontello, a palm reader and specialist in extra-sensory perception. Information, 329-3186.

Charter another flower show bus

In addition to the chartered flower show buses listed in Saturday's edition of the Herald, St. John United Church of Christ, Arlington Heights, is also sponsoring bus transportation to McCormick Place.

The St. John bus will be leaving the church lot at 308 N. Evergreen, at 8:45 a.m. Wednesday, April 9, and returning at 3 p.m.

Total price of the transportation and ticket is $4.50 and reservations are due by next Tuesday. Mrs. Ed Schimming, 253-3196, is taking the reservations and tickets are to be picked up at the church office between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Wednesday, April 2.

The show, the world's largest indoor flower show, is being held April 5-12.

Happenings

Spaghetti dinner

A spaghetti dinner will be served by Arlington Heights Assembly, Order of Rainbow for Girls, on Saturday from 4 to 8 p.m. at the Arlington Heights Masonic Temple, 101 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for children under 12. They will be sold at the door Saturday. Information, 394-2826.

Women are not conditioned to respond to new freedom

The typical suburban woman is not culturally conditioned to respond constructively to the new freedoms offered her today. Dr. Mary Jule Durkin told the 200 women attending Theology West II recently at St. James Parish Center, Arlington Heights, Ill.

Examples of inadequate ways of dealing with their new power are evidenced by the submissive woman who avoids the responsibilities of her actions and by the ardent feminist who withdraws from interaction with men because she fears losing her power. The Northwest suburban director of DePaul's School of New Learning stated.

THE MOTHER OF seven, Dr. Durkin said that "husband dumping" or breaking up of marriages is another symptom of the effort to cope with changing lifestyles.

Mrs. Durkin, who earned her doctorate in theology from the University of Chicago over a nine year period, maintained it is possible to be a supportive wife and mother while also pursuing one's own interests. She urged women to set goals for themselves, to admit and list their real talents and to develop them.

Next speaker in the Theology West II series will be Fr. Matthew Fox, theologian and spiritual writer who will discuss "Our Everyday Experience of God" at 9:15 a.m. next Tuesday. Coffee and rolls are included in the $3.00 fee. Baby sitting is available.

Theology West II is a series of six lectures sponsored by women from the Northwest suburban area.

Buyer bears brunt of faulty refrigerator

The game is called pass the buck and the loser is the consumer.

George Menard of Mount Prospect bought an Admiral refrigerator from Polk Brothers on Feb. 23. After it was delivered he discovered the ice maker didn't work. He called Polk Brothers and they notified Admiral, who sent out a service representative.

The man made a repair and left. The ice maker still didn't make ice. Menard called Polk again, and they called Admiral again.

Admiral sent out its service supervisor, who replaced the ice maker and assured Menard that within six hours he would, without fail, have ice. The next day Menard still had no ice.

Exasperated, he called Polk and told them to come and take the refrigerator away. They said fine, but we'll have to charge you $50 for rental.

WHEN THE HERALD intervened, a spokesman at Polk Brothers service department in Melrose Park said the $50 was to cover handling and the loss the store would incur by reselling the refrigerator as "used." He said the only way the $50 charge might be avoided was if Admiral authorized the return, which they had not.

But a spokeswoman at Admiral's customer service center in Rosemont said Admiral has nothing to do with returns. That and the $50 fee is between Polk and the customer, she said. Admiral only "makes repairs."

But why should the consumer get stuck paying a fee to return a product that doesn't work? It's not his fault that the refrigerator is defective. As a matter of fact, under the law any product must be fit for the purpose for which it is sold. It's called "implied warranty of merchantability." An ice maker, one presumes, should make ice.

IT'S ALSO NOT the consumer's fault that Polk is going to lose money if they take the refrigerator back. They have a legitimate problem, too — but why not take it up with Admiral instead of taking it out on the consumer?

The Herald asked Admiral's Rich Gremer these questions. He is director of consumer relations for the company and is listed with the Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel, the appliance industry's answer to consumerism. His reply:

"Admiral does not have an exchange warranty provision. Exchanges are handled by the local dealer, just like with automobiles. The FTC will not allow manufacturers to take a product back and fix it up and resell it." (According to the FTC, manufacturers are free to resell used products as long as they specify that the product is used.)

But what about the implied warranty of merchantability? Why can't Admiral make good on that?

"I'M SORRY, but we cannot make an exchange because there is no written warranty for an exchange, there is no implied warranty for exchange."

Why can't Admiral reimburse the retailer for exchanging the product?

"We do not do that. It is not our policy. The customer can either get the product repaired under the warranty or exchange it through the retailer."

"What I can do is have our service department go back and make sure the ice maker works. We will do our best to set up an appointment with the customer and get the ice maker working."

So George Menard is back where he started: either put up with the inconvenience of further service calls which may or may not solve the problem, or pay $50 to get rid of a lemon.

Don't shrug off matter of molds, weevils

Dear Dorothy: I can verify the fact that weevils or other bugs in cereal products are not harmful by the fact that I'm still alive. If you can afford to throw out everything with a bug, a little mold or a "burny" smell, that's your business, but some of us can't. Sometimes the bugs can be sifted or rinsed out.

—Lillie

I can understand people having to sift food and so on because they can't afford to throw it away. But shrugging away the problem of weevils or molds I can't buy. The point this column has stressed over the years is how not to have these intruders in foods. When the first weevil is sighted, there's a cleaning job to be done quickly. Foods don't have to be contaminated. Agreed, it's hard for some people who have to live in substandard homes, but my guess (and hope) is that most of them try desperately to maintain elementary household cleanliness.

Dear Dorothy: How do I remove hardened wax from a piece of material?

warm iron, moving the paper about as it absorbs the grease. Any remaining spot can be cleaned with a good cleaning solvent, then laundered. One word of caution: If the wax is red or another dark color, skip the iron routine as you might set the dye. Just try the dry cleaner with the dark colors. If it doesn't work, take it to a good cleaner.

Dear Dorothy: Is there a way to store bananas when too many are ripe at the same time?

—Stella Robbins

To keep them from further ripening, you can refrigerate them. However, the flesh will keep well for only two days or so, even though the skins will turn dark.

It's time to do battle with plant pests

Everything seems to know that spring is on the wing — especially the insect pests in your house plants.

As house plants get a fresh burst of new leaf about now, the creepy crawlies that have been wintering in their favorite spots around your home find new freedom too.

Notice the proliferation of spiderlings that seem to come from nowhere? They signal the start of "spring housecleaning" for some people. But I never do away with every spider I see staking out my plant room. Their voracious appetites preclude the stamped appearance of leaf-borne plant pests.

Curling, cupping, wrinkling, puckering and girdling are all signs that insect activity has commenced. Insects have a talent for sniffing out weak or ailing plants, and these are the ones they attack first.

THREE ROSES AND hanging baskets now wintering indoors are most vulnerable; so are plants that you managed to rescue from death. Succulent new growth that hasn't had a chance to really harden is also fair prey to insect marauders.

Terrariums are incubators for all manner of soil-borne insects. It's easy to tell if midnight visitors have been measuring the terrarium. When moisture forms on the inside of the glass, check to see if there is a waxy or wiggly telltale trail on the moisture of the glass. Slugs or wormy larvae may be taking an evening crawl. Fill a pop bottle top with grape juice or beer to bait slugs. Bring earthworms to the surface by watering with a solution of one teaspoon of dry mustard to a gallon of water. (Don't use garden soil and you won't have earthworms.)

DO WHITE FLIES disperse like dandruff, or white springtails bound into the air when you disturb the soil in your house plants? If so, here's the battle plan: Enlist the aid of a smoker to blow cigarette smoke on the plant, while you have a plastic bag and rubberband ready to trap the "smoke bomb," or add commercial tobacco dust to the soil. It is the nicotine that kills plant pests — white fly, springtails and aphids especially.

If you see cottony mealybugs on your houseplants — pick-a-back, gardenia and grape ivy are most susceptible — dip a cotton swab in rubbing alcohol and go over the plant with the alcohol-dipped tip.

House plants kept clean with a weekly bath are not likely to become infested with bugs. When humidity and temperatures are right, pests are less common. Turn on a humidifier or bring moisture to the room somehow. Moisture discourages mealybugs and red spider mite particularly. Most plants are happy with a temperature of about 65 degrees, if you can stand it that chilly.

CHECK THE UNDERSIDE of leaves where sucking insects are likely to cluster, curling and cupping leaves. Wash house plants — except hairy-leaved and those with very delicate leaves — in a mild solution of dishwashing detergent. If you wish your plants in the bathtub, hold a piece of circular cardboard over the top of the soil to keep the soil from falling from the pot. Plants should remain out of the sun until they are dry. Hairy-leaved plants like African violet, velvet plant and pick-a-back can be dusted with a soft paint brush. African violets often get leaf spots when splashed with water and left sunning.

by Mary B. Good

Clean out pot saucers, an invitation to insect pests. Segregate incoming plants, in case they have insect stowaways aboard, and spray with an organically-safe aerosol like pyrethrin.

Finally, fertilize with liquid plant food, and give smooth-leaved plants a beauty treatment by wetting a sponge with skim milk and "lacquering" the leaves. Thus well-fed, dust-free and shiny, your house plants will be in better condition to ward off the wrecking crew.

Fabish favors Lake County zoning review

by JOHN MAES

Edward Fabish, Buffalo Grove village president candidate, has expressed support for legislation that would give a county planning commission power to review Buffalo Grove's decisions on zoning and planning in Lake County.

Fabish, one of five hopefuls for the top village post in the April 15 election, said the bill would be a good way to get the county and Village "working together."

Under the bill, all proposed annexations in counties of more than 200,000 would be subject to review by the county's regional planning commission.

"I can't argue with it," Fabish said. "We could have some coordination and sensible direction in Lake County."

THE BILL, being introduced by State Representatives Donald Duester, H-Mundelein, and John S. Matijevich, D-North Chicago, has drawn opposition from Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, who is seeking reelection. He said Monday the bill "would usurp the rights of the local community in determining its own destiny."

He said Buffalo Grove is "perfectly capable" of handling its own annexation and zoning affairs, mentioning the village is one of few in the area that has an appearance control commission and has an "outstanding" plan commission.

Duester's bill, however, allows municipalities to overrule county denial of a project with a two-thirds village board vote. "That doesn't take away from the self-determination of the public body," Fabish said.

Duester said he is sponsoring the legislation, which if enacted, would eliminate the need for prospective Lake County developers to have to "shop around from one municipality to another."

Matijevich said the bill would help orderly growth in light of prospects that Lake County will develop rapidly during the next several years.

FABISH, WHO proposes tightly controlled building and development in Buffalo Grove as part of his campaign platform, said the bill would be a "safeguard that a marginal project won't get into the village."

Such a bill also would enhance communications between village and Lake County officials on development matters, Fabish said.

Reaction in Buffalo Grove was triggered when Lake Zurich Village Pres. Henry J. Paulus, also an opponent of the measure contacted officials here informing them the legislation is being proposed.

The measure is slated for discussion today in annexation subcommittee meetings in Springfield.

Break for small savers?

Ford seeking broad financing reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Wednesday to approve wide-ranging reform of the financial industry to give small savers a better return on their dollar and provide a more stable flow of funds for home and apartment construction.

The administration's bill, virtually a carbon copy of one that died in Congress last year, would sharpen competition between banks, savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and the credit unions by allowing each to offer new services.

For example, the 2,500 federally chartered savings and loan associations and 500 mutual savings banks could set up customer checking accounts, a service now exclusively held by commercial banks.

CREDIT UNIONS, which have about 23,000 outlets around the nation, more than any other type of financial institution, could offer members bigger loans and also deal in mortgages.

And 14,000 commercial banks could give depositors interest on their checking accounts through so-called NOW accounts, which are widely used in Canada but in the United States are legal only in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

William O'Connell, a spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations in Chicago, said he favored the "general idea" of checking accounts for consumers, but he did not support interest-bearing checking accounts in other than the two states where they are offered.

The interest-bearing checking accounts should be considered carefully by consumers, said Fritz Wolf, president of the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights.

"It doesn't make a difference," he said. "You'll charge for your service if you give money out on it."

Five-and-one-half years after becoming law, the act also provides that interest-rate ceilings on all types of savings accounts be eliminated.

This would allow savings interest rate to fluctuate according to supply and demand and might help stem the enormous flow of funds from thrift institutions to more lucrative short-term securities. When this has occurred in the past, the housing industry has found itself strapped for funds to finance new homes and apartments.

The current ceilings are 5.75 per cent on short-term savings and 7.75 per cent on long term deposits.

THE CEILINGS worked a special hardship on small savers since it takes a minimum $10,000 to buy most securities that offer yields above the ceiling rate.

O'Connell said he favored the continuation of ceilings on interest rates "because our loans are all long-term."

A more viable means of assuring home buyers that financing will be available is the variable-rate mortgage (VRM), O'Connell said. If an earlier VRM proposal is approved by Congress "it would allow mortgage rates to move up and down and open the way for a variable rate savings accounts," he said.

Possible changes in the tax credit that may accompany the proposed reform may be too great a price to pay for added powers, he added.

TREASURY SEC. William E. Simon called the act "more than regulatory reform, it's fundamentally a consumer measure."

Simon said it also provides "flexibility that many financial institutions need."

Deputy Treasury Secretary Steven Gardner said he was "very confident" the act would get serious attention on Capitol Hill and that passage by fall was a possibility.

The package of proposals is known as the Financial Institutions Act of 1975, and traces its origin to recommendations put forward by a presidential task force known as the Hunt Commission.

Golf course bar, food service before village

The Buffalo Grove Village Board will meet in special session tonight to discuss operation of food and bar service at the Buffalo Grove golf course.

The matter was not considered at Monday's board meeting because of lengthy discussion over police salaries. Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said.

Finance Director Richard Glueckert said that although municipal operation revenues would go totally to the village, private management would probably generate more in sales due to advertising and promotion techniques.

One of the firms under consideration is Barnaby's Restaurant Corp. while the other two are one-man operations.

The village took over operation of the golf course last year.

The special session will begin 7:30 p.m. in the Village Hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Her employment ordered

State rules teacher was job bias victim

The Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission ruled Wednesday that a woman with preschool children was the object of discrimination when she was turned down for a teaching job in 1972.

The commission upheld an earlier ruling that the woman, Colleen Simon of Glenview, was refused a job by East Maine Dist. 63 "because of her motherhood without objective proof that it would create a problem."

The examiner had also said the school officials presented no evidence to support

the hiring of an inexperienced male teacher in place of Mrs. Simon, who was described as "a good experienced teacher with a good record."

THE COMMISSION ordered the district to employ Mrs. Simon as a junior high social studies teacher and reimburse her for back pay to September 1972. Mrs. Simon estimates the district owes her about $25,000. The district must also restore all benefits and seniority she would have received since 1972.

Mrs. Simon said Dist. 63 officials have not contacted her but that "I haven't changed my mind about teaching."

"I'm really thrilled with the decision and I feel it was extremely fair. I'm glad I went ahead with the suit," she said.

School officials said they cannot comment on the ruling until they receive the official order.

MRS. SIMON filed the complaint in September 1972, saying she was refused a full-time position as social studies teacher at Gemini Junior High School because Principal Donald Huebner "firmly believed and stated on various occasions that a woman with small children belongs at home."

The complaint also charged that the school district interviewed Mrs. Simon "under false pretenses," knowing that a man had already been hired for the position.

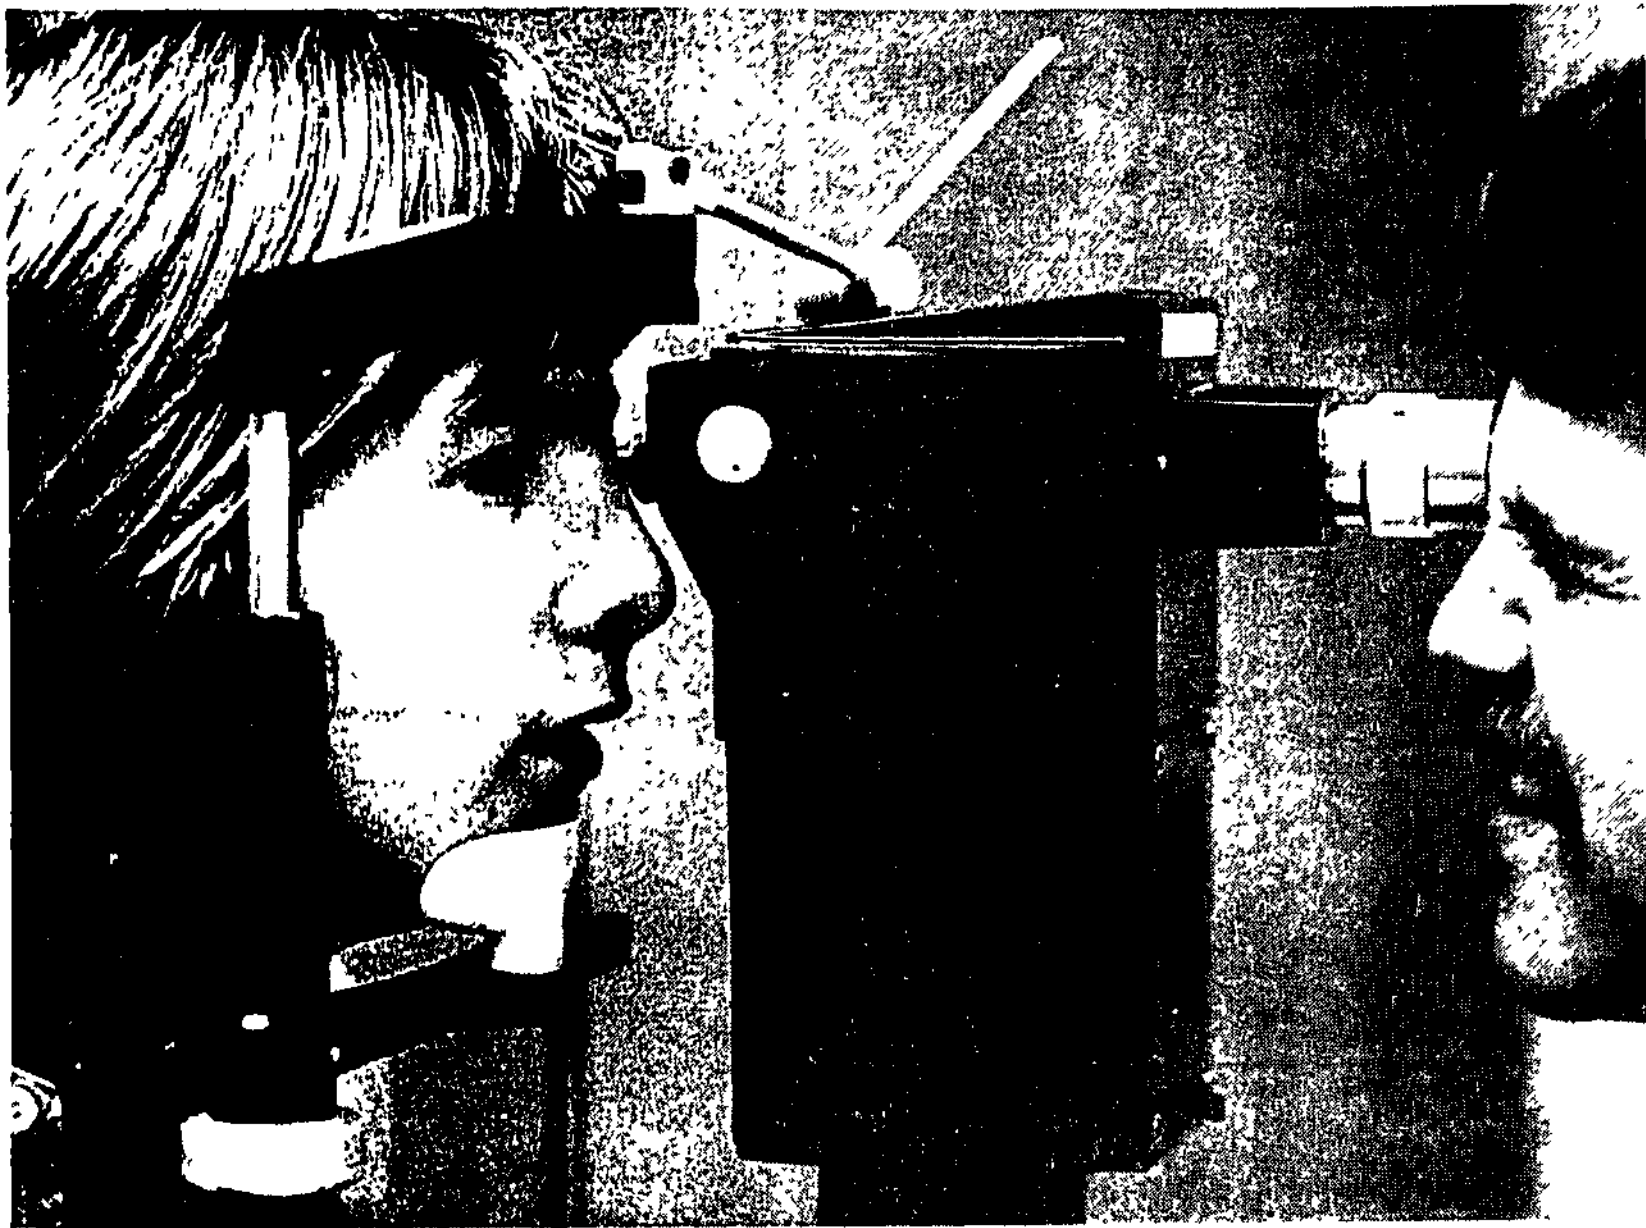

The commission examiner later submitted recommendations upholding Mrs. Simon's complaints.

DIST. 63 OFFICIALS appealed the ruling, saying that "experience is not the sole criterion" for employment and that Huebner felt Mrs. Simon was "a good teacher but a structured teacher."

The commission rejected the school officials' appeals saying that Huebner testified on two occasions that Mrs. Simon's children "were a factor in not hiring her."

Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg get U.S. job funds

by PAT GERLACH
More than $56,000 in federal money to create temporary jobs is coming to Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates. Officials of both villages and the Hoffman Estates Park District said Wednesday they have been informed of their shares of $3.5 million in federal emergency employment funds being channeled through Cook County. The money is part of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer of Hoffman Estates said the village will receive $24,150 for three jobs in the streets and water department. Salaries for the 10-month jobs, Longmeyer said, are limited to $7,800 though the village has been told it can supplement the wages if total income paid to an employee does not exceed $12,000.

ALLOCATIONS OF $16,100 to provide two jobs each have been set for the Village of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates Park District.

Schaumburg Administrator John E. Coste was not available for comment Wednesday, but Finance Director Joseph Castor said he believes the jobs will be in the village public works department. Castor said he has been asked to represent the village at a meeting of county officials Monday when details of the program will be explained.

Vernon Laubenstein, Schaumburg Township supervisor, called the federal program "an encouraging sign," and said he was contacted earlier this week by Coste's office in an attempt to locate persons receiving general assistance who might fill the new jobs.

"THIS IS REALLY excellent timing, we are getting ready to begin our spring and summer park work," said Alan Binder, Hoffman Estates director of parks and recreation. Schaumburg Park District also has applied for the emergency employment funds but has not received an allocation.

The program will provide jobs for people who have been out of work more than 30 days, with employment priorities going to veterans, those whose unemployment insurance has run out and persons out of work for more than 15 weeks.

Because the plan calls for specific amounts of money for municipal governments having populations of more than 50,000, Arlington Heights received $67,017 in January when seven employees were hired. Des Plaines qualified for $78,158 but city officials decided against adopting the program.

Key Clubs defer 'open-member' talks

High school student members of Kiwanis International-sponsored Key Clubs bowed to pressure from their sponsor Wednesday night and postponed a meeting to plot strategy for a bylaws change that would allow girls to join the club.

The students agreed to a Kiwanis request for a meeting today of Kiwanis and high school officials and the students.

Members of the Elk Grove High School Key Club are spearheading a drive to change key club rules which prohibit female membership. About half the members of the club, like about 30 others in the Chicago area, are girls who listed only their first initial when registering with Key Club International.

THE PRESSURE came in the form of phone calls from unidentified Kiwanis officials to Donald Ring, Elk Grove High School principal; Dominic Sparacino, high school Key Club adviser; and Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis chapter.

Ring said he was "requested" to cancel the meeting but refused, saying he would relay the officials' desire to the student members of the club. Ring did not name the official but said he was told that the club had violated its charter by having girls as members and couldn't "legally" hold the meeting.

Several officials from the Kiwanis and Key Club International showed up at the meeting to further their desire to delay the meeting. Only five schools were represented at the meeting.

ELK GROVE High School teacher Richard Cherico told the students, "If you call off this meeting I will see you get adult help in getting this thing through."

Cherico, who is not a Kiwanis member, was the main factor in convincing the students to delay the meeting until their representatives can meet with Kiwanis officials.

Donald Johnson, Elk Grove High School Key Club president, tentatively scheduled another meeting of Key Club presidents for Tuesday. Johnson said he was disappointed in the slim turnout and the angry reaction from Kiwanis officials Johnson had expected 40 to 60 club presidents at the meeting.

Johnson hopes to organize support for the bylaws change which will allow females as full club members, at the Key Club International district convention in Chicago April 4-6.

IF HE GETS district support, Johnson is planning strategy for the club's national convention in July when he hopes to force a vote to change the rule. He said he is not discouraged by the fact that his club may not be a member of Key Club International by July now that its charter violation has been made public.

"We'll go anyway and work through other clubs," he said.

If Johnson is successful in July, the change still must be approved by the Kiwanis International Board.

The Elk Grove Key Club faces a similar situation faced by its sponsor, the Elk Grove Kiwanis Club, which was threatened last fall with revocation of its charter because it had a female member, Elk Grove librarian Mary Clark. Miss Clark later resigned.

$1,500 lake bath?

by MARILYN McDONALD

Jack and Augusta Lacker paid $1,500 extra for their Willow Creek condominium apartment in order to get a "lake view."

"Our salesman assured us that by the time we moved in, it would be an accomplished fact," Mrs. Lacker said. They moved in during September, 1973, but all they can see, she says, is "nothing more than a swamp."

Palatine village officials have stepped in to give the Lackers and other condominium apartment owners the lake view they were promised.

Village Mgr. Anton Harwig Wednesday gave Centex Corp., developers of Willow Creek, Northwest Highway and Ill. Rte. 53, 15 days to explain why it hasn't provided the lake view.

CENDEX WAS ordered to tell the village why it has not suitably landscaped the lake and park and behind the complex, as promised in a 1966 zoning agreement.

Centex officials say they haven't developed the 25-acre park land because they gave it to the village. "It's not our property to work with anymore," said David Weber, director of marketing and sales for Centex.

The June 20, 1966 zoning agreement between the village and Winston-Muss (now Centex) for Willow Creek development states: "Petitioner shall improve the park site by grading, seeding and planting of at least 400 two-inch diameter trees . . . Petitioner shall complete the improvements to park site within three years from the adoption of this ordinance."

Willow Creek residents, who paid between $500 and $2,000 extra for condominium apartments with lake views, said they were promised a 25-acre park surrounding Lake Rositter, landscaped into picnic groves and recreational areas.

"There definitely is a default," Harwig said when asked about the agreement by The Herald. "We're going to send them a notice to ask for their plans to comply with the ordinance within 15 days." He said the village "can start to withhold their occupancy permits (on future buildings) if this isn't taken care of."

CENDEX'S WEBER, said, however, that the land was donated to the village about two years ago, "according to our agreements with the Village of Palatine."

"It is unfortunate if anyone bought their condominium for the development (of the lake area). The view is there, the lake is there, but it's just not developed," he said.

Raymond Skiera, another Centex sales employee, said he believed the grading, seeding and planting had been done according to the zoning agreement. "I know the trees were planted in 1969, and I believe the grading and seeding were also done," he said. But Harwig said the village would have had to approve any landscaping work on the lake site. "We would have been notified if the work had been done," he said.

Although a new brochure for the condominiums was issued last year, the brochure the Lackers were given described "the pleasures of a private pool, equipped playgrounds, sun decks, lake and picnic groves for nice weather fun." The map in the brochure shows a park and picnic grove area around the lake.

"The Lackers asked when the lake landscaping would be done, and their salesman assured them that it would be finished very soon," Mrs. Lacker said.

Army weighs plan for Nike site facility

by DIANE MERMIGAS

U. S. Army officials said Wednesday that a $1.4 million facility is being considered for the Arlington Heights Nike Base to replace the existing wooden barracks and other buildings.

The announcement was made during a meeting of the Nike site, Wilke and Central roads, with Army officials, representatives of the Illinois Attorney General's office and residents who want the base to be turned into a park.

Frederick G. Kuehn, representative from the Washington D.C. office of the Army reserve chief, said the facility would include a mess hall, assembly hall and classrooms to accommodate the maximum 8,400 Army reservists authorized to use the base.

"It is not definite yet because the Army will have to decide on the building next year, depending upon available funds and priorities. This will not mean that the number of men using the base will increase," Kuehn said.

KUEHN DID NOT say where on the base the facility would be built. It is planned for construction in 1978.

"We want to do everything the residents and the Illinois Attorney General want us to do . . . remove old buildings, landscape the base and make it compatible with the area. But, we can't promise these things for another three or four years," he said.

The Army will not be able to construct the complex unless its environmental impact statement is approved by the Illinois Attorney General. The meeting Wednesday was held to determine when the impact study will be completed.

The Army has never issued an environmental assessment statement on the base, Kuehn explained that when the reserves first came to the base several years ago, the "Chicago area Army staff reviewed its intended use of the base and determined that it would have no effect on the local community or environment," he said.

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, asked Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office to request that the Army issue an environmental impact statement to determine if the Army's operation of the base is detrimental to the area.

The Illinois Attorney General's office is requiring the Army to specify the number of reserves who will use each portion of the base and for what purposes.

ARMY OFFICIALS said the statement will be issued April 15, after which time Army and park district officials will meet again. A joint meeting was originally set for April 5, but military officials said the meeting would be more beneficial after the environmental assessment statement is prepared.

Mary Schlott, assistant attorney general, said a suit could eventually be filed against the Army to restrict use of the base if the environmental statements are "seemingly detrimental to the community."

Members of the Citizens' Committee for the Utilization of the Arlington Heights Nike Base — a group of local residents who want the land to become a park — told Kuehn that residents would not wait another 10 years to gain control of the base, and that the committee will impose new pressures on the Army.

"We will definitely resume the picketing of the base this spring, and now we will have almost the entire village supporting us. We may resume the bumper sticker campaign, and we are ready to go with some new tactics," said Thomas McDonnell, committee cochairman.

Property crimes up 67% for 2 months

Thefts, vandalism on increase

Property crimes in Buffalo Grove are up 67 per cent in the first two months of the year, despite a slight drop in the number of reported burglaries and burglary attempts.

Police statistics recently released show 23 burglaries and attempts, 66 thefts and 73 acts of vandalism in January and February. This compares with 26 burglaries and attempts, 32 thefts and 39 acts of vandalism during the first two months of 1974. In addition, auto thefts were up from two to six.

Police Chief Harry J. Walsh said the numbers are so small at this point of the year that differences are "insignificant." "We're not talking about any tremendous trend," he said.

POINTING TO the theft figures, Walsh said, "It means a lot more people are stealing." He added that a large number of the thefts are from school lockers.

He said many police authorities would point to the increase in thefts and blame it on the recessionary economy. Walsh counters this argument by saying, "We haven't had any increase in adult shoplifters."

Walsh said, however, there was little doubt the economy was contributing to increases in family fights and automobile repossessions. The number of offenses against families, which includes family fights, has increased slightly from 36 to 39 cases and the repossessions are up to two from zero a year ago.

The vandalism problem is an area one, Walsh said, adding that most of it is "innocuous, malicious mischief" rather than severe damage. Walsh said a couple of arrests and stiff fines with publicity would probably solve the problem quickly.

IN OTHER CHARGE areas, the number of assaults are down one for a total of six, forgery cases are down from five to two, stolen property cases are up from one to six, weapon violations are up from two to five, sex offenses are up from three to eight and drug law violations stayed the same at seven.

Also, the statistics show an increase in disorderly conduct cases from eight to 16, an increase in drunk drivers from seven to 11, a decrease in drunks from two to one and a decrease in missing persons from 25 to 14.

The two-month figures show a total of 1,344 responses made by police, which is an increase over the 1,162 responses made in the similar period last year. The number of traffic accidents is up slightly too with 85 being reported, compared with 74 last year.

Anti-obscenity policy weighed for school books

A proposed policy that would keep books deemed obscene or advocating revolution off school library shelves is being considered by the Dist. 125 Board of Education.

The proposed material selection policy includes sections stating "books or materials of an obscene nature shall not be recommended for purchase" and "books or materials advocating the overthrow of the government of the United States by force or revolution shall not be recommended for purchase."

Barbara Gerard, Stevenson High School librarian, said she was concerned with these restrictions because she said obscenity cannot be defined and the proposed policy on materials advocating the overthrow of government "poses an intellectual freedom issue."

"What do we do with such great as Jefferson, Marx, Rousseau and Paine, as well as those more recently in the mainstream of society such as Angela Davis, Tom Hayden, Abbie Hoffman and Elijah Muhammad," she said.

The policies were given to the policy committee for review.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board has proposed setting up a curriculum council including representatives of the community, teachers and students.

The council would include six representatives from the community appointed by the board, six teachers and two students each from the sophomore, junior and senior classes. Community members and teachers would serve two-year terms and students would serve one year.

The council members would be responsible for reviewing curriculum and instructional proposals.

No hearing, hospital plans shelved

Plans for a proposed hospital for the Wheeling-Buffer Grove area are in limbo apparently because of a communications mixup between hospital backers and a hospital planning agency.

Plans for the hospital, which has been proposed by Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital, Chicago, have been submitted to the Illinois Dept. of Public Health for final review. However, Norman Davis, a Franklin Boulevard consultant, said Wednesday construction would not begin until approval for the hospital had been won from Comprehensive Health Planning Inc.

The planning agency turned down Franklin Boulevard's request for a branch hospital in mid-December, saying there is no need for additional healthcare facilities in the Wheeling-Buffer Grove area.

DAVIS SAID hospital backers have one more chance to win the planning agency's support on an appeal. Davis said he expected the appeal hearing to be held "any day."

However, a check with the agency Wednesday revealed it has not scheduled a hearing because it is waiting for the hospital backers to request one.

The importance of the planning agency's approval is that Blue Cross-Blue Shield refused to enter an agreement with the hospital after Comprehensive Health Planning Inc. said the branch facility was not needed.

Plans for the 228-bed hospital were approved by the state last May, just before a certificate-of-need law enacted last October requiring backers to prove a hospital is needed went into effect. The hospital is proposed for the east side of Schoenbeck Road, south of Wheeling village limits. Officials hope to annex the hospital site to the village. The hospital would serve Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Northbrook and southern Lake County.

Wheeling police detectives short of manpower, space

Wheeling police detectives are caught in a manpower and space squeeze that hampers their investigations, they said this week.

"We do not have the manpower to follow up every case," said Sgt. William Ralston, second-in-command within the investigative section. He said that court appearances take up at least 15 per cent of the detectives' time.

The recent Yarger and Associates Inc. management study of the village said the detectives need more room for interrogations and juvenile detention.

Ralston said the typical burglary case takes 16 to 40 manhours if the burglar is not caught at the scene. And that estimate doesn't count the court time, he said.

FOR EXAMPLE, Ralston said the department caught three burglars about two weeks ago. In solving the case, Ralston put in 16 hours one day and the total time spent by both men on the case was more than 50 hours. Court appearances will follow.

Two Wheeling burglaries and a burglary each in Mount Prospect and Northbrook were solved by the three arrests, Ralston said.

"The more you arrest, the more you're in court," said Ralston, adding three of his past 20 working days had been spent in court which is "very typical" of the rest of the detectives.

The investigative section is headed by Lt. Ted Bracke. The two patrolmen assigned as detectives are Kenneth Dawson and Earl Suel. Also assigned to the investigative section, but not working cases, are two school liaison officers — one with Wheeling-Buffer Grove School Dist. 21 and one with High School Dist. 214. Another man is assigned to the Metropolitan Enforcement Group, an undercover antidrug force.

THE MANAGEMENT study report criticizes the cramped quarters of the investigative section. It states, "The investigative area which houses four officers is very small and has no separate interrogation room. Consequently, when interrogations are in progress the entire room must be cleared, thus creating considerable lost time for the detectives who must leave the room."

The report further notes that the former juvenile detention area has been converted to use as records storage and is "jammed with files." The report recommends "expanded quarters" for a separate interrogation room and a juvenile detention facility.

The main job of the detectives is "followup and investigation," Ralston said. This dictates their working hours, he said.

The detectives work in slightly different shifts so someone is on duty constantly from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday. One or two men work each Saturday depending on the workload.

No detectives work on Sunday unless there is an emergency.

Dog-bite victim begins series of rabies shots

Sixteen-year-old Deborah Kenning of Wheeling has begun receiving a series of rabies shots because she wasn't able to find the dog that bit her March 5.

The Wheeling High School junior got her first shot Tuesday afternoon from Dr. Raymond Connor, an Evanston physician. The shots will continue for two weeks.

Efforts to find the German shepherd puppy that bit the girl on the leg as she was walking home from the store have failed, despite several leads as to the whereabouts of the animal.

The Kenning family, 1012 Kenilworth, followed tips from persons in the neighborhood who thought they knew which dog might have attacked the girl near the Valley Stream townhouse complex on the 800 block of Valley Stream Drive. The reports were unfounded.

Persons with information that might lead to the finding of the dog should call the Kennings at 541-0364.

Public works building low bid $532,000

Seventeen bids, ranging from $532,000 to $639,000 have been submitted to Buffalo Grove officials for construction of the village's public works building.

Solberg and Sullivan, an Arlington Heights firm, was low bidder, while the Richards Group, developer, submitted the highest of the bids opened this week, Public Works Director Charles McCoy said.

The village's architectural committee is expected to meet Tuesday on a recommendation to the village board for a contract award.

Officials are hoping the long-awaited facility can be finished in about a year.

A four-acre site, across from the Village Hall, 50 Raupp Blvd., is slated as the garage site.

Her employment ordered

State rules teacher was job bias victim

The Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission ruled Wednesday that a woman with preschool children was the object of discrimination when she was turned down for a teaching job in 1972.

The commission upheld an earlier ruling that the woman, Colleen Simon of Glenview, was refused a job by East Mahoe Dist. 63 "because of her motherhood without objective proof that it would create a problem."

The examiner had also said the school officials presented no evidence to support the hiring of an inexperienced male teacher in place of Mrs. Simon, who was described as "a good experienced teacher with a good record."

THE COMMISSION ordered the district to employ Mrs. Simon as a junior high social studies teacher and reimburse her for back pay to September 1972. Mrs. Simon estimates the district owes her about $25,000. The district must also restore all benefits and seniority she would have received since 1972.

Mrs. Simon said Dist. 63 officials have not contacted her but that "I haven't changed my mind about teaching."

"I'm really thrilled with the decision and I feel it was extremely fair. I'm glad I went ahead with the suit," she said.

School officials said they cannot comment on the ruling until they receive the official order.

MRS. SIMON filed the complaint in September 1972, saying she was refused a full-time position as social studies teacher at Gemini Junior High School because Principal Donald Huebner "firmly believed and stated on various occasions that a woman with small children belongs at home."

The complaint also charged that the school district interviewed Mrs. Simon "under false pretenses," knowing that a man had already been hired for the position.

The commission examiner later submitted recommendations upholding Mrs. Simon's complaints.

DIST. 63 OFFICIALS appealed the ruling, saying that "experience is not the sole criterion" for employment and that Huebner felt Mrs. Simon was "a good teacher but a structured teacher."

The commission rejected the school officials' appeals saying that Huebner testified on two occasions that Mrs. Simon's children "were a factor in not hiring her."

The commission said the district's "philosophical and style qualifications... are too ephemeral to withstand objective scrutiny."

No hearing, hospital plans shelved

Plans for a proposed hospital for the Wheeling-Elmhurst area are in limbo apparently because of a communications mixup between hospital backers and a hospital planning agency.

Prospect Hts. incorporation backers see OK

The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. president Wednesday said he is confident that Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford will rule today in favor of incorporating Prospect Heights and order a referendum on the measure.

Jack Gilligan, association president, Wednesday said he expects a favorable ruling from the judge during a hearing at the Civic Center, Chicago. Gilligan also said he expects the judge to throw out objections by Arlington Heights and Wheeling that the proposed new community would interfere with delivery of municipal services in the two villages.

Gilligan also said he doubts Comerford will order any major boundary changes in the proposed community.

However, Gilligan said he expects Jack Siegel, attorney for Arlington Heights, to raise a new objection that the law on which the incorporation effort is based is unconstitutional.

Mount Prospect officials Tuesday voted to withdraw their objections to the incorporation of Prospect Heights. Mayor Robert D. Telchert said the action was taken because the proposed boundaries were changed to exclude the Rob Roy Golf Course.

Plans for the hospital, which has been proposed by Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital, Chicago, have been submitted to the Illinois Dept. of Public Health for final review. However, Norman Davis, a Franklin Boulevard consultant, said Wednesday construction would not begin until approval for the hospital had been won from Comprehensive Health Planning Inc.

The planning agency turned down Franklin Boulevard's request for a branch hospital in mid-December, saying there is no need for additional health-care facilities in the Wheeling-Elmhurst area.

Break for small savers?

Ford seeking broad financing reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Wednesday to approve wide-ranging reform of the financial industry to give small savers a better return on their dollar and provide a more stable flow of funds for home and apartment construction.

The administration's bill, virtually a carbon copy of one that died in Congress last year, would sharpen competition between banks, savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and the credit unions by allowing each to offer new services.

For example, the 2,500 federally chartered savings and loan associations and 500 mutual savings banks could set up customer checking accounts, a service now exclusively held by commercial banks.

CREDIT UNIONS, which have about 23,000 outlets around the nation, more than any other type of financial institution, could offer members bigger loans and also deal in mortgages.

And 14,000 commercial banks could give depositors interest on their checking accounts through so-called NOW accounts, which are widely used in Canada but in the United States are legal only in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

William O'Connell, a spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations in Chicago, said he favored the "general idea" of checking accounts for consumers, but he did not support interest-bearing checking accounts in other than the two states where they are offered.

The interest-bearing checking accounts should be considered carefully by consumers, said Fritz Wolf, president of the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights.

"It doesn't make a difference," he said. "You'll charge for your service if you give money out on it."

Five-and-one-half years after becoming law, the act also provides that interest-rate ceilings on all types of savings accounts be eliminated.

This would allow savings interest rate to fluctuate according to supply and demand and might help stem the enormous flow of funds from thrift institutions to more lucrative short-term securities. When this has occurred in the past, the housing industry has found itself strapped for funds to finance new homes and apartments.

The current ceilings are 7.75 per cent on short-term savings and 7.75 per cent on long term deposits.

THE CEILINGS worked a special hardship on small savers since it takes a minimum $10,000 to buy most securities that offer yields above the ceiling rate.

O'Connell said he favored the continuation of ceilings on interest rates "because our loans are all long-term."

A more viable means of assuring home buyers that financing will be available is the variable-rate mortgage (VRM), O'Connell said. If an earlier VRM proposal is approved by Congress "it would allow mortgage rates to move up and down and open the way for a variable rate savings accounts."

Possible changes in the tax credit that may accompany the proposed reform may be too great a price to pay for added powers, he added.

TREASURY SEC. William E. Simon called the act "more than regulatory reform, it's fundamentally a consumer measure."

Simon said it also provides "flexibility that many financial institutions need."

Deputy Treasury Secretary Steven Gardner said he was "very confident" the act would get serious attention on Capitol Hill and that passage by fall was a possibility.

The package of proposals is known as the Financial Institutions Act of 1975, and traces its origin to recommendations put forward by a presidential task force known as the Hunt Commission.

Dog-bite victim begins series of rabies shots

Sixteen-year-old Deborah Kenning of Wheeling has begun receiving a series of rabies shots because she wasn't able to find the dog that bit her March 5.

The Wheeling High School Junior got her first shot Tuesday afternoon from Dr. Raymond Connor, an Evanston physician. The shots will continue for two weeks.

Efforts to find the German shepherd puppy that bit the girl on the leg as she was walking home from the store have failed, despite several leads as to the whereabouts of the animal.

The Kenning family, 1012 Kenilworth, followed tips from persons in the neighborhood who thought they knew which dog might have attacked the girl near the Valley Stream townhouse complex on the 890 block of Valley Stream Drive. The reports were unfounded.

Persons with information that might lead to the finding of the dog should call the Kennings at 541-0364.

TESTING FOR glaucoma. Bob Thompson, left, of Des Plaines has his eyes tested by technician Bob Thompson during the health fair Wednesday at Harper College. In addition to the glaucoma tests, the fair offered blood pressure tests and screening for heart-attack risks. More than 30 organizations participated in the fair.

Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg get U.S. job funds

by PAT GERLACH

More than $56,000 in federal money to create temporary jobs is coming to Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates.

Officials of both villages and the Hoffman Estates Park District said Wednesday they have been informed of their shares of $3.5 million in federal emergency employment funds being channeled through Cook County. The money is part of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer of Hoffman Estates said the village will receive $24,150 for three jobs in the streets and water department. Salaries for the 10-month jobs, Longmeyer said, are limited to $7,800 though the village has been told it can supplement the wages if total income paid to an employee does not exceed $12,000.

ALLOCATIONS OF $16,100 to provide two jobs each have been set for the Village of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates Park District.

Schaumburg Administrator John E. Coste was not available for comment Wednesday, but Finance Director Joseph Castor said he believes the jobs will be in the village public works department. Castor said he has been asked to represent the village at a meeting of county officials Monday when details of the program will be explained.

Vernon Laubenstein, Schaumburg Township supervisor, called the federal program "an encouraging sign," and said he was contacted earlier this week by Coste's office in an attempt to locate persons receiving general assistance who might fill the new jobs.

"THIS IS REALLY excellent timing, we are getting ready to begin our spring and summer park work," said Alan Binder, Hoffman Estates director of parks and recreation. Schaumburg Park District also has applied for the emergency employment funds but has not received an allocation.

The program will provide jobs for people who have been out of work more than 30 days, with employment priorities going to veterans, those whose unemployment insurance has run out and persons out of work for more than 15 weeks.

Because the plan calls for specific amounts of money for municipal governments having populations of more than 50,000, Arlington Heights received $67,017 in January when seven employees were hired. Des Plaines qualified for $78,158 but city officials decided against adopting the program.

Key Clubs defer 'open-member' talks

High school student members of Kiwanis International-sponsored Key Clubs bowed to pressure from their sponsor Wednesday night and postponed a meeting to plot strategy for a bylaws change that would allow girls to join the club.

The students agreed to a Kiwanis request for a meeting today of Kiwanis and high school officials and the students.

Members of the Elk Grove High School Key Club are spearheading a drive to change key club rules which prohibit female membership. About half the members of the club, like about 30 others in the Chicago area, are girls who listed only their first initial when registering with Key Club International.

THE PRESSURE came in the form of phone calls from unidentified Kiwanis officials to Donald Ring, Elk Grove High School principal; Dominic Sparacino, high school Key Club adviser; and Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis chapter.

Ring said he was "requested" to cancel the meeting but refused, saying he would relay the officials' desire to the student members of the club. Ring did not name the official but said he was told that the club had violated its charter by having girls as members and couldn't "legally" hold the meeting.

Several officials from the Kiwanis and Key Club International showed up at the meeting to further their desire to delay the meeting. Only five schools were represented at the meeting.

ELK GROVE High School teacher Richard Cherico told the students, "If you call off this meeting I will see you get adult help in getting this thing through."

Cherico, who is not a Kiwanis member, was the main factor in convincing the students to delay the meeting until their representatives can meet with Kiwanis officials.

Donald Johnson, Elk Grove High School Key Club president, tentatively scheduled another meeting of Key Club presidents for Tuesday. Johnson said he was disappointed in the slim turnout and the angry reaction from Kiwanis officials. Johnson had expected 40 to 60 club presidents at the meeting.

Johnson hopes to organize support for the bylaws change which will allow females as full club members, at the Key Club International district convention in Chicago April 4-6.

IF HE GETS district support, Johnson is planning strategy for the club's national convention in July when he hopes to force a vote to change the rule. He said he is not discouraged by the fact that his club may not be a member of Key Club International by July now that its charter violation has been made public.

"We'll go anyway and work through other clubs," he said.

If Johnson is successful in July, the change still must be approved by the Kiwanis International Board.

The Elk Grove Key Club faces a similar situation faced by its sponsor, the Elk Grove Kiwanis Club, which was threatened last fall with revocation of its charter because it had a female member, Elk Grove librarian Mary Clark. Miss Clark later resigned.

$1,500 lake bath?

Condominium owner has a 'great view' - overlooking a swamp area

by MARILYN McDONALD

Jack and Augusta Lacker paid $1,500 extra for their Willow Creek condominium apartment in order to get a "lake view."

"Our salesman assured us that by the time we moved in, it would be an accomplished fact," Mrs. Lacker said. They moved in during September, 1973, but all they can see, she says, is "nothing more than a swamp."

Palatine village officials have stepped in to give the Lackers and other condominium apartment owners the lake view they were promised.

Village Mgr. Anton Harwig Wednesday gave Centex Corp., developers of Willow Creek, Northwest Highway and Ill. Rte. 53, 15 days to explain why it hasn't provided the lake view.

CENTEX WAS ordered to tell the village why it has not suitably landscaped the lake and park and behind the complex, as promised in a 1968 zoning agreement.

Centex officials say they haven't developed the 23-acre park land because they gave it to the village. "It's not our property to work with anymore," said David Weber, director of marketing and sales for Centex.

The June 20, 1966 zoning agreement between the village and Winston-Muss (now Centex) for Willow Creek development states: "Petitioner shall improve the park site by grading, seeding and planting of at least 400 two-inch diameter trees . . . Petitioner shall complete the improvements to park site within three years from the adoption of this ordinance."

Willow Creek residents, who paid between $500 and $2,000 extra for condominium apartments with lake views, said they were promised a 25-acre park surrounding Lake Rossiter, landscaped into picnic groves and recreational areas.

"There definitely is a default," Harwig said when asked about the agreement by The Herald. "We're going to send them a notice to ask for their plans to comply with the ordinance within 15 days." He said the village "can start to withhold their occupancy permits (on future buildings) if this isn't taken care of."

CENTEX'S WEBER, said, however, that the land was donated to the village about two years ago, "according to our agreements with the Village of Palatine."

"It is unfortunate if anyone bought their condominium for the development (of the lake area). The view is there, the lake is there, but it's just not developed," he said.

Raymond Skiera, another Centex sales employee, said he believed the grading, seeding and planting had been done according to the zoning agreement. "I know the trees were planted in 1969, and I believe the grading and seeding were also done," he said. But Harwig said the village would have had to approve any landscaping work on the lake site. "We would have been notified if the work had been done," he said.

Augusta Lacker said she and her husband bought their condominium apartment at 945 E. Kenilworth Rd., based on a model they saw in August, 1972.

Although a new brochure for the condominiums was issued last year, the brochure the Lackers were given described "the pleasures of a private pool, equipped playgrounds, sun decks, lake and picnic groves for nice weather fun." The map in the brochure shows a park and picnic grove area around the lake.

The Lackers asked when the lake landscaping would be done, and their salesman assured them that it would be finished very soon, Mrs. Lacker said.

SHE SAID SHE and several other Willow Creek residents met with Salt Creek Park District officials earlier this week

Army weighs plan for Nike site facility

by DIANE MEUNIGAS

U. S. Army officials said Wednesday that a $1.4 million facility is being considered for the Arlington Heights Nike Base to replace the existing wooden barracks and other buildings.

The announcement was made during a meeting of the Nike site, Wilke and Central roads, with Army officials, representatives of the Illinois Attorney General's office and residents who want the base to be turned into a park.

Frederick G. Kueln, representative from the Washington D.C. office of the Army reserve chief, said the facility would include a mess hall, assembly hall and classrooms to accommodate the maximum 8,400 Army reservists authorized to use the base.

"It is not definite yet because the Army will have to decide on the building next year, depending upon available funds and priorities. This will not mean that the number of men using the base will increase," Kueln said.

KUENL DID NOT say where on the base the facility would be built. It is planned for construction in 1978.

"We want to do everything the residents and the Illinois Attorney General want us to do . . . remove old buildings, landscape the base and make it compatible with the area. But, we can't promise these things for another three or four years," he said.

The Army will not be able to construct the complex unless its environmental impact statement is approved by the Illinois Attorney General. The meeting Wednesday was held to determine when the impact study will be completed.

The Army has never issued an environmental assessment statement on the base. Kueln explained that when the reserves first came to the base several years ago, the "Chicago area Army staff reviewed its intended use of the base and determined that it would have no effect on the local community or environment," he said.

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, asked Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office to request that the Army issue an environmental impact statement to determine if the Army's operation of the base is detrimental to the area.

The Illinois Attorney General's office is requiring the Army to specify the number of reserves who will use each portion of the base and for what purposes.

ARMY OFFICIALS said the statement will be issued April 15, after which time Army and park district officials will meet again. A joint meeting was originally set for April 5, but military officials said the meeting would be more beneficial after the environmental assessment statement is prepared.

Mary Schlott, assistant attorney general, said a suit could eventually be filed against the Army to restrict use of the base if the environmental statements are "seemingly detrimental to the community."

Members of the Citizens' Committee for the Utilization of the Arlington Heights Nike Base — a group of local residents who want the land to become a park — told Kueln that residents would not wait another 10 years to gain control of the base, and that the committee will impose new pressures on the Army.

"We will definitely resume the picketing of the base this spring, and now we will have almost the entire village supporting us. We may resume the bumper sticker campaign, and we are ready to go with some new tactics," said Thomas McDonnell, committee chairman.

Anti-obscene book policy to be weighed

A proposed policy that would keep books deemed obscene or advocating revolution off school library shelves is being considered by the Dist. 125 Board of Education.

The proposed material selection policy includes sections stating "books or materials of an obscene nature shall not be recommended for purchase" and "books or materials advocating the overthrow of the government of the United States by force or revolution shall not be recommended for purchase."

Barbara Gerard, Stevenson High School librarian, said she was concerned with these restrictions because she said obscenity cannot be defined and the proposed policy on materials advocating the overthrow of government "poses an intellectual freedom issue."

"What do we do with such greats as Jefferson, Marx, Rousseau and Paine, as well as those more recently in the mainstream of society such as Angela Davis, Tom Hayden, Abbie Hoffman and Elijah Muhammad," she said.

The policies were given to the policy committee for review.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board has proposed setting up a curriculum council including representatives of the community, teachers and students.

The council would include six representatives from the community appointed by the board, six teachers and two students each from the sophomore, junior and senior classes. Community members and teachers would serve two-year terms and students would serve one year.

The council members would be responsible for reviewing curriculum and instructional proposals.

Former officials to hang—in new village building

A promise is a promise to Village Pres. Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates, even if it means some embarrassment.

So when a plaque is put up this year in the village municipal building with the names of past and present elected officials, it will include the names of the six former officials who went to jail for accepting bribes.

"We made a pledge that we would do it," Mrs. Hayter said of putting up the plaque. She said the names of the officials convicted in the scandal surrounding the zoning for the Barrington Square complex would be included on the commemorative wall decoration planned to go up in the council chambers.

A similar plaque had hung in the old village hall. When the new village structure on Gannon Drive was erected, Mrs. Hayter said officials agreed to place another plaque listing past and present elected officials and their terms of office. The plaque will be added to as new officials are elected, she said.

IT DOESN'T TAKE more than a few Wheeling detectives to fill the office and, with no separate facilities, the room must be cleared when a prisoner is interrogated. At work are,

Investigations hampered

Detectives short of help, space

Wheeling police detectives are caught in a manpower and space squeeze that hampers their investigations, they said this week.

"We do not have the manpower to follow up every case," said Sgt. William Ralston, second-in-command within the investigative section. He said that court appearances take up at least 15 per cent of the detectives' time.

The recent Yarger and Associates Inc. management study of the village said the detectives need more room for interrogations and juvenile detention.

Ralston said the typical burglary case takes 16 to 40 manhours if the burglar is not caught at the scene. And that estimate doesn't count the court time, he said.

FOR EXAMPLE, Ralston said the department caught three burglars about two weeks ago. In solving the case, Ralston put in 16 hours one day and the total time spent by both men on the case was more than 50 hours. Court appearances will follow.

Two Wheeling burglaries and a burglary each in Mount Prospect and Northbrook were solved by the three arrests, Ralston said.

"The more you arrest, the more you're in court," said Ralston, adding three of his past 20 working days had been spent in court which is "very typical" of the rest of the detectives.

The investigative section is headed by Lt. Ted Bracke. The two patrolmen assigned as detectives are Kenneth Dawson and Earl Suel. Also assigned to the investigative section, but not working cases, are two school liaison officers — one with Wheeling-Buffalo Grove School Dist. 21 and one with High School Dist. 214. Another man is assigned to the Metropolitan Enforcement Group, an undercover antidrug force.

THE MANAGEMENT study report criticizes the cramped quarters of the investigative section. It states, "The investigative area which houses four officers is very small and has no separate interrogation room. Consequently, when interrogations are in progress the entire room must be cleared, thus creating considerable lost time for the detectives who must leave the room."

The report further notes that the former juvenile detention area has been converted to use as records storage and is "jammed with files." The report recommends "expanded quarters" for a separate interrogation room and a juvenile detention facility.

The main job of the detectives is "follow-up and investigation," Ralston said. This dictates their working hours, he said.

The detectives work in slightly different shifts so someone is on duty constantly from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday. One or two men work each Saturday depending on the workload.

No detectives work on Sunday unless there is an emergency.

Fabish favors county zoning review

by JOHN MAES

Edward Fabish, Buffalo Grove village president candidate, has expressed support for legislation that would give a county planning commission power to review Buffalo Grove's decisions on zoning and planning in Lake County.

Fabish, one of five hopefuls for the top village post in the April 15 election, said the bill would be a good way to get the county and village "working together."

Under the bill, all proposed annexations in counties of more than 200,000 would be subject to review by the county's regional planning commission.

"I can't argue with it," Fabish said. "We could have some coordination and sensible direction in Lake County."

THE BILL, being introduced by State Representatives Donald Duester, R-Mundelein, and John S. Matijevich, D-North Chicago, has drawn opposition from Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, who is seeking reelection. He said Monday the bill "would usurp the rights of the local community in determining its own destiny."

He said Buffalo Grove is "perfectly capable" of handling its own annexation and zoning affairs, mentioning the village is one of few in the area that has an appearance control commission and has an "outstanding" plan commission.

Duester's bill, however, allows municipalities to overrule county denial of a project with a two-thirds village board vote. "That doesn't take away from the self-determination of the public body," Fabish said.

Duester said he is sponsoring the legislation, which if enacted, would eliminate the need for prospective Lake County developers to have to "shop around from one municipality to another."

Matijevich said the bill would help orderly growth in light of prospects that Lake County will develop rapidly during the next several years.

FABISH, WHO proposes tightly controlled building and development in Buffalo Grove as part of his campaign platform, said the bill would be a "safeguard that a marginal project won't get into the village."

Such a bill also would enhance communications between village and Lake County officials on development matters, Fabish said.

Reaction in Buffalo Grove was triggered when Lake Zurich Village Pres. Henry J. Paulus, also an opponent of the measure contacted officials here informing them the legislation is being proposed.

The measure is slated for discussion today in annexation subcommittee meetings in Springfield.

Property crimes show rise of 67% in Buffalo Grove

Property crimes in Buffalo Grove are up 67 per cent in the first two months of the year, despite a slight drop in the number of reported burglaries and burglary attempts.

Police statistics recently released show 23 burglaries and attempts, 66 thefts and 73 acts of vandalism in January and February. This compares with 26 burglaries and attempts, 32 thefts and 39 acts of vandalism during the first two months of 1974. In addition, auto thefts were up from two to six.

Police Chief Harry J. Walsh said the numbers are so small at this point of the year that differences are "insignificant." "We're not talking about any tremendous trend," he said.

POINTING TO the theft figures, Walsh said, "It means a lot more people are stealing." He added that a large number of the thefts are from school lockers.

He said many police authorities would point to the increase in thefts and blame it on the recessionary economy. Walsh counters this argument by saying, "We haven't had any increase in adult shoplifters."

Walsh said, however, there was little doubt the economy was contributing to increases in family fights and automobile repossessions. The number of offenses against families, which includes family fights, has increased slightly from 36 to 39 cases and the repossessions are up to two from zero a year ago.

The vandalism problem is an area one, Walsh said, adding that most of it is "innocuous, malicious mischief" rather than severe damage. Walsh said a couple of arrests and stiff fines with publicity would probably solve the problem quickly.

IN OTHER CRIME areas, the number of assaults are down one for a total of six, forgery cases are down from five to two, stolen property cases are up from one to six, weapon violations are up from two to five, sex offenses are up from three to eight and drug law violations stayed the same at seven.

Also, the statistics show an increase in disorderly conduct cases from eight to 16, an increase in drunk drivers from seven to 11, a decrease in drunks from two to one and a decrease in missing persons from 25 to 14.

The two-month figures show a total of 1,344 responses made by police, which is an increase over the 1,162 responses made in the similar period last year. The number of traffic accidents is up slightly too with 85 being reported, compared with 74 last year.

Housing code in Rolling Meadows urged

A housing code is needed in Rolling Meadows to prevent deterioration of houses and apartment buildings, president of the board of health, Kenneth Johnson, said Wednesday.

Johnson said the city's proposed housing code would establish health and safety standards. "The fact is that the city is now 20 years old. There is a certain amount of deterioration in that period of time. To prevent slums, we have to force homeowners and apartment owners to live up to a certain city standard," he said.

The Rolling Meadows City Council will have the housing code to consider next month, despite the elimination of the housing inspector's salary from the 1975-76 city budget.

ALDERMEN DECIDED Tuesday to cut the $12,500 salary for an environmental housing inspector to help build a surplus into next year's budget. Although $12,000 had been budgeted this year for an environmental housing inspector one was never hired. City health officials were hopeful that a housing code could soon be passed to empower the inspector to keep existing homes and apartments up to health standards.

"I could use the help," said Bruno Mammella, city sanitarian, who now answers health complaints from apartments and homes. "It's more important that we get a housing ordinance through," he added. "I will still be making inspections, and the new code, if passed, will be under our jurisdiction."

The proposed housing code is being reviewed by City Atty. Donald Rose. The code was drawn up by the city board of health, based on a model code from the City of Chicago. Although the board of health's proposal would require the city to adopt home-rule powers, Rose said he will attempt to write an ordinance that would be usable by a non home-rule town under Illinois law, and have it ready to present in 30 days.

Her employment ordered

State rules teacher was job bias victim

The Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission ruled Wednesday that a woman with preschool children was the object of discrimination when she was turned down for a teaching job in 1972.

The commission upheld an earlier ruling that the woman, Colleen Simon of Glenview, was refused a job by East Maine Dist. 63 "because of her motherhood without objective proof that it would create a problem."

The examiner had also said the school officials presented no evidence to support the hiring of an inexperienced male teacher in place of Mrs. Simon, who was described as "a good experienced teacher with a good record."

THE COMMISSION ordered the district to employ Mrs. Simon as a junior high social studies teacher and reimburse her for back pay to September 1972. Mrs. Simon estimates the district owes her about $25,000. The district must also restore all benefits and seniority she would have received since 1972.

Mrs. Simon said Dist. 63 officials have not contacted her but that "I haven't changed my mind about teaching."

"I'm really thrilled with the decision and I feel it was extremely fair. I'm glad I went ahead with the suit," she said.

School officials said they cannot comment on the ruling until they receive the official order.

MRS. SIMON filed the complaint in September 1972, saying she was refused a full-time position as social studies teacher at Gemini Junior High School because Principal Donald Huebner "firmly believed and stated on various occasions that a woman with small children belongs at home."

The complaint also charged that the school district interviewed Mrs. Simon "under false pretenses," knowing that a man had already been hired for the position.

The commission examiner later submitted recommendations upholding Mrs. Simon's complaints.

DIST. 63 OFFICIALS appealed the ruling, saying that "experience is not the sole criterion" for employment and that Huebner felt Mrs. Simon was "a good teacher but a structured teacher."

The commission rejected the school officials' appeals saying that Huebner testified on two occasions that Mrs. Simon's children "were a factor in not hiring her."

The commission said the district's "philosophical and style qualifications... are too ephemeral to withstand objective scrutiny."

Firemen's union hits off-day loss, walks out on meet

Negotiators for the Des Plaines Professional Firefighters Assn. walked out of a bargaining meeting with city officials Wednesday to protest the city council's canceling a day off with pay for city employees April 13, city election day.

Art Dietrich, a member of the firemen's negotiating team, said negotiations were broken off Wednesday for what the association believes was "an improper action taken by the city council Monday night."

Dietrich emphasized negotiations were not at an impasse but firemen thought the council's action did not promote a "healthy atmosphere" for bargaining Wednesday.

"The council rescinded a holiday officially given to us by the mayor and we don't think that promotes a healthy situation for negotiating," Dietrich said.

Dietrich said nothing was discussed at the session, which was the second meeting between the two sides. "We brought this up first thing so nothing else came up for discussion," he said.

NO NEW NEGOTIATING date was set and Dietrich said firemen will wait and see what response the city gives them before suggesting any further sessions. City officials did not comment on the action.

Firemen have not released terms of the contract package they are seeking.

The action by the firemen is the first formal protest of the council's decision to take away election day as a holiday for city employees. Ald. Charles Bolek, 3rd, proposed the measure as a means to save the city $25,000 to $30,000.

An amendment asking that the holiday be allowed to remain at least through this year was defeated by the council.

Richard Brown, president of the city's chapter of the Assn. of Independent Municipal Employees, said workers probably would be concerned about the decision but no protest action has taken place.

Youths arrested for firing gun

Two 16-year-old Des Plaines youths were arrested and charged with reckless conduct after they were caught firing a gun near Sherwin and Birchwood avenues, police said Wednesday.

Police said an officer on patrol late Tuesday heard what sounded like a gunshot near 1700 Sherwin Ave. and saw two youths running from the area. One boy was caught when the officer gave chase on foot, and the other boy was picked up at his home after his companion identified him to police.

Police said the gun, a .25-caliber automatic, was reported stolen from Boulder, Colo. The youths told police they purchased the gun from a suburban man and bought bullets for it at the K-Mart Store, 1155 Oakton St.

They said they fired the gun three times, once into a tree, once into a block of wood at South Park and once into a piece of plastic.

The youths said a third companion was with them but left before police arrived.

Police retrieved the gun in a puddle near the spot where the boys were chased. The youths had thrown the gun in the puddle while they were being chased. Also in the puddle with the gun were 46 bullets.

The youths were taken to the county's Audy Home, Chicago.

Break for small savers?

Ford seeking broad financing reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Wednesday to approve wide-ranging reform of the financial industry to give small savers a better return on their dollar and provide a more stable flow of funds for home and apartment construction.

The administration's bill, virtually a carbon copy of one that died in Congress last year, would sharpen competition between banks, savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and the credit unions by allowing each to offer new services.

For example, the 2,500 federally chartered savings and loan associations and 500 mutual savings banks could set up customer checking accounts, a service now exclusively held by commercial banks.

CREDIT UNIONS, which have about 23,000 outlets around the nation, more than any other type of financial institution, could offer members bigger loans and also deal in mortgages.

And 14,000 commercial banks could give depositors interest on their checking accounts through so-called NOW accounts, which are widely used in Canada but in the United States are legal only in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

William O'Connell, a spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations in Chicago, said he favored the "general idea" of checking accounts for consumers, but he did not support interest-bearing checking accounts in other than the two states where they are offered.

The interest-bearing checking accounts should be considered carefully by consumers, said Fritz Wolf, president of the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights.

"It doesn't make a difference," he said. "You'll charge for your service if you give money out on it."

Five-and-one-half years after becoming law, the act also provides that interest-rate ceilings on all types of savings accounts be eliminated.

This would allow savings interest rate to fluctuate according to supply and demand and might help stem the enormous flow of funds from thrift institutions to more lucrative short-term securities. When this has occurred in the past, the housing industry has found itself strapped for funds to finance new homes and apartments.

The current ceilings are 5.75 per cent on short-term savings and 7.75 per cent on long term deposits.

THE CEILINGS worked a special hardship on small savers since it takes a minimum $10,000 to buy most securities that offer yields above the ceiling rate.

O'Connell said he favored the continuation of ceilings on interest rates "because our loans are all long-term."

A more viable means of assuring home buyers that financing will be available is the variable-rate mortgage (VRM). O'Connell said. If an earlier VRM proposal is approved by Congress "it would allow mortgage rates to move up and down and open the way for a variable rate savings accounts," he said.

Possible changes in the tax credit that may accompany the proposed reform may be too great a price to pay for added powers, he added.

TREASURY SEC. William E. Simon called the act "more than regulatory reform, it's fundamentally a consumer measure."

Simon said it also provides "flexibility that many financial institutions need."

Deputy Treasury Secretary Steven Gardner said he was "very confident" the act would get serious attention on Capitol Hill and that passage by fall was a possibility.

The package of proposals is known as the Financial Institutions Act of 1975, and traces its origin to recommendations put forward by a presidential task force known as the Hunt Commission.

Teachers group petitions to quit using Iowa tests

by BOB GALLAS
The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Teachers Council, opposed to using Iowa Achievement Tests to measure student achievement is circulating petitions among teachers to get rid of the test.

Alma Parrish, president of the district council, said Wednesday teachers will meet next week to decide if they will ask the administration to dump the test.

If the teachers' union has enough support from district teachers it will ask the administration to come up with another way of testing students to find out how well they are doing in basic skills.

THE IOWA TEST is one of more than 35 standardized tests used by schools to test achievement.

"We want a better, more modern way to test achievement," said Mrs. Parrish, a teacher at Marshall School, 711 Chelmsford Ln., Elk Grove Village. "The whole format (of the tests) throws the kids off."

"For the younger kids, the process of filling in a small grid to indicate the right answer is a project in itself," Mrs. Parrish said. "It's not a good means to measure children. The frustration level of the child after the tests is terrible."

ACTING SUPT. Roger Bardwell said he was not aware of the petition but was supportive of the teacher's request.

"It's a very destructive system of evaluation," Bardwell said. "Half the kids

Correction

A Herald story incorrectly indicated Tuesday that Bruce Johnson, who has been appointed principal of Marshall School, 711 Chelmsford Ln., Elk Grove Village, would assume his duties at the beginning of the 1975-76 school year. Johnson will become principal April 7.

who take the test have to score below the 50th percentile by the very nature of the test.

"The tests often destroy the parents' confidence in their child and the child's self-image as well," he said.

"It's a box we've allowed to be built around us. The Iowa tests were supposed to be diagnostic, not an assessment of a child's ability," Bardwell said. "The whole use of the test has become corrupted."

Mrs. Parrish said she didn't know what support the petition was getting so far.

She said if enough support is obtained from teachers, the union will ask that teachers be involved in a study to come up with a new way of evaluating student performance in the district.

Key Clubs defer 'open-member' talks

High school student members of Kiwanis International-sponsored Key Clubs bowed to pressure from their sponsor Wednesday night and postponed a meeting to plot strategy for a bylaws change that would allow girls to join the club.

The students agreed to a Kiwanis request for a meeting today of Kiwanis and high school officials and the students.

Members of the Elk Grove High School Key Club are spearheading a drive to change key club rules which prohibit female membership. About half the members of the club, like about 30 others in the Chicago area, are girls who listed only their first initial when registering with Key Club International.

THE PRESSURE came in the form of phone calls from unidentified Kiwanis officials to Donald Ring, Elk Grove High School principal; Dominic Sparacino, high school Key Club adviser; and Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis chapter.

Ring said he was "requested" to cancel the meeting but refused, saying he would relay the officials' desire to the student members of the club. Ring did not name the official but said he was told that the club had violated its charter by having girls as members and couldn't "legally" hold the meeting.

Several officials from the Kiwanis and Key Club International showed up at the meeting to further their desire to delay the meeting. Only five schools were represented at the meeting.

ELK GROVE High School teacher Richard Cherico told the students, "If you call off this meeting I will see you got adult help in getting this thing through."

Cherico, who is not a Kiwanis member, was the main factor in convincing the students to delay the meeting until their representatives can meet with Kiwanis officials.

Donald Johnson, Elk Grove High School Key Club president, tentatively scheduled another meeting of Key Club presidents for Tuesday. Johnson said he was disappointed in the slim turnout and the angry reaction from Kiwanis officials. Johnson had expected 40 to 60 club presidents at the meeting.

Johnson hopes to organize support for the bylaws change which will allow females as full club members, at the Key Club International district convention in Chicago April 4-6.

IF HE GETS district support, Johnson is planning strategy for the club's national convention in July when he hopes to force a vote to change the rule. He said he is not discouraged by the fact that his club may not be a member of Key Club International by July now that its charter violation has been made public.

"We'll go anyway and work through other clubs," he said.

If Johnson is successful in July, the change still must be approved by the Kiwanis International Board.

The Elk Grove Key Club faces a similar situation faced by its sponsor, the Elk Grove Kiwanis Club, which was threatened last fall with revocation of its charter because it had a female member, Elk Grove librarian Mary Clark. Miss Clark later resigned.

"CHILI TODAY, Hot Tamales," one of the minicourses offered at Chippewa Junior High School, deals with aspects of Spanish cooking, including

'Minicourses' help to cure spring fever at Chippewa

The staff at Chippewa Junior High School has found a new way to combat the annual bout of spring fever — abandon regular classes for two weeks.

Chippewa students have traded their math and English textbooks for the parachutes, movie cameras and rocks they are using in a series of special "minicourses."

The courses cover 91 interest areas including: archery, parachute folding, short-hand, needlepoint, Spanish cooking, moviemaking, quillwork, skiing for beginners, play production, table tennis, knot tying, cancer research and terrarium building.

"We've always had problems keeping students motivated before spring vacation. We thought the minicourses might hold their interest and take their minds off vacation," said Principal James Roy.

Roy said the minicourses "heighten interest and enthusiasm at a time when students and teachers begin to drag."

"The courses also help the kids see the teachers as complete human beings. They find out the teachers are able to do a lot of things not just teach English or math," he said.

The courses "break down group and class consciousness by giving seventh graders a chance to attend classes with eighth graders," Roy said.

Career education also is included in the minicourse program. Students attend daily assemblies on topics such as crime prevention, pharmacy, accounting, theater management, radio announcing, architecture and modeling.

Parks seek meeting on prairie-land use

Officials from the Des Plaines Park District board are seeking a meeting with representatives of the Chicago and North Western Ry. and Weiboldt Stores Inc. to discuss the railroad's proposal to lease 50 acres of virgin prairie to the park district.

Board members said they preferred to arrange a meeting of officials from the two companies rather than work out a lease agreement through correspondence.

Board members expressed some concern at a meeting Tuesday with the railroad's request that the lease agreement carry a clause which would allow either the railroad or the park district to terminate the lease upon 30 days notice.

The railroad proposed leasing the land, which is south of Northwest Highway and north of North Avenue, to the park district for $1 per year if the park district agrees to enclose the area with an eight-foot chain-link fence and lockable gate.

NEGOTIATIONS with Weiboldt are needed to get access rights to the company's warehouse property, 300 Weiboldt Dr., which borders the prairie patch south of Northwest Highway. Access through this property would permit the railroad to develop a pedestrian path between the prairie and Seeger Road.

The only place for public parking near the land also is on Weiboldt property and some type of agreement for this also will have to be discussed with Weiboldt.

The park district is concerned about the 30 day notice clause because of the money it will have to invest to fence in the area.

No date for a meeting between the three parties has been set.

In other action the park district approved requests for $4,400 to plant trees at Lake Park adjacent to the band pavilion and at Chippewa and Rand parks.

An agreement also was approved with the Mount Prospect Park District for a cooperative swimming pool pass arrangement.

From the library

Handcarved miniatures by Ronald Valone, 914 Sixth Ave., Des Plaines, are on display in the museum case at the Des Plaines Public Library.

There are mockup models of sets used for motion pictures and TV series, miniature buildings and people.

Also on display is a miniature string instrument called a dulcimer. Instructions for making the dulcimer may be found in the library's book, "How to Make and Play the Dulcimer," by Chet Hines.

Ronald is a graduate of Maine West High School, he attended Oakton Junior College, and is a graduate of Ferris State College, Big Rapids, Mich.

For the last year, Ronald has worked for Majestic Models, Chicago. He is interested in the motion picture industry and would like to work at making mockup models of stage settings.

The third part of a traveling series presented by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Passow is entitled "From Rome to Greece to Cairo, Egypt and the Holy Land Area." The color-slide program will be presented Wednesday, March 26, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the meeting room of the Des Plaines Public Library, 841 Graceland Ave.

The Wednesday evening programs are free. Children under 12 must be accompanied by an adult.

"Pioneers of Modern Painting," a six-part film series distributed by the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C., will be shown at the Des Plaines Public Library.

The series covers the life and work of six leading artists of the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Each color film runs for 45 minutes, and will be shown on Tuesday afternoons from 1:30-2:30 p.m., during April and May.

The schedule is as follows: Edouard Manet, April 14; Paul Cezanne, April 22; Claude Monet, April 29; Georges Seurat, May 6; Henri Rousseau, May 13; and Edvard Munch, May 20.

Proposed as energy saver

Chamber polls businessmen on Monday-night closing

Des Plaines businessmen are being surveyed by the Chamber of Commerce to determine if they would be interested in closing early Monday nights to conserve energy.

In a letter to businessmen, Louis Capozzoli, chairman of the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce retail committee, said it was suggested that local businesses consider closing early on Monday evenings, rather than at the current 9 p.m.

C. W. (Tony) Kaitschuck, executive secretary of the Chamber, said the chamber has received "quite a few responses" to the survey.

"From some of the comments I have heard, I imagine the committee will take a good long look at the proposal before they consider doing anything," Kaitschuck said.

CAPOZZOLI SAID no action would be taken on the suggestion until after Easter. He also asked that local businessmen begin surveying the amount of business they do on Monday nights. He added customers will be polled before any decision is made.

Several businessmen were complaining about the proposal. They suggested the Chamber should be doing more to stimulate business in Des Plaines especially in the downtown area rather than suggest that businesses curtail store hours.

Richard Heard, owner of the Des Plaines Lighthouse, 1331 Prairie St., said the proposal implies a defeatist attitude. He suggested the Chamber take other steps to encourage more business downtown in the evening. Heard proposed an effort to keep the downtown banks open on Monday evenings, request the city allow free parking on Monday and Friday evenings, and attempt to develop a discount or free shopper-bus program.

Heard noted that with the closing of several major retail stores in the downtown business district in recent years, businessmen should do everything possible to stimulate business.

City to accept decision against billboard ruling

Des Plaines probably will not appeal an Illinois Appellate Court decision that ruled unconstitutional the city's ordinance outlawing billboards.

In a letter to Mayor Herbert H. Behrel and the city council, Corporation Counsel Robert DiLeonardi suggested the city take no action to appeal the case but consider instead studying possible amendments to the ordinance.

The letter was referred to the city code and judiciary committee and Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th chairman of the committee, said Wednesday the matter will be considered soon.

Abrams said he has not reviewed the court decision nor DiLeonardi's letter but added he plans to do so within the next few days. He said he does not know when the matter will be discussed in committee.

The court ruled that the city cannot ban billboards solely because of esthetic reasons, but individual signs which present a nuisance problem can be banned.

The suit originated when Foster and Kleiser Co., one of the nation's largest outdoor advertisers, decided to challenge the city's ordinance, which was used to order the removal in 1973 of signs owned by the company along River Road.

The suit was upheld in Circuit Court and the city appealed the ruling only to lose again earlier this month in the appellate court before a three-judge panel.

Villages to get $56,000 U.S. jobs funds

by PAT GERLACH

More than $56,000 in federal money to create temporary jobs is coming to Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates.

Officials of both villages and the Hoffman Estates Park District said Wednesday they have been informed of their shares of $3.5 million in federal emergency employment funds being channeled through Cook County. The money is part of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer of Hoffman Estates said the village will receive $21,150 for three jobs in the streets and water department. Salaries for the 10-month jobs, Longmeyer said, are limited to $7,800 though the village has been told it can supplement the wages if total income paid to an employee does not exceed $12,000.

ALLOCATIONS OF $16,100 to provide two jobs each have been set for the Village of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates Park District.

Schaumburg Administrator John E. Coste was not available for comment Wednesday, but Finance Director Joseph Castor said he believes the jobs will be in the village public works department. Castor said he has been asked to represent the village at a meeting of county officials Monday when details of the program will be explained.

Vernon Laubenstein, Schaumburg Township supervisor, called the federal program "an encouraging sign," and said he was contacted earlier this week by Coste's office in an attempt to locate persons receiving general assistance who might fill the new jobs.

"THIS IS REALLY excellent timing, we are getting ready to begin our spring and summer park work," said Alan Binder, Hoffman Estates director of parks and recreation. Schaumburg Park District also has applied for the emergency employment funds but has not received an allocation.

The program will provide jobs for people who have been out of work more than 30 days, with employment priorities going to veterans, those whose unemployment insurance has run out and persons out of work for more than 15 weeks.

Because the plan calls for specific amounts of money for municipal governments having populations of more than 30,000, Arlington Heights received $67,017 in January when seven employees were hired. Des Plaines qualified for $78,138 but city officials decided against adopting the program.

Former officials to hang—in new village building

A promise is a promise to Village Pres. Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates, even if it means some embarrassment.

So when a plaque is put up this year in the village municipal building with the names of past and present elected officials, it will include the names of the six former officials who went to jail for accepting bribes.

"We made a pledge that we would do it," Mrs. Hayter said of putting up the plaque. She said the names of the officials convicted in the scandal surrounding the zoning for the Barrington Square complex would be included on the commemorative wall decoration planned to go up in the council chambers.

A similar plaque had hung in the old village hall. When the new village structure on Gannon Drive was erected, Mrs. Hayter said officials agreed to place another plaque listing past and present elected officials and their terms of office. The plaque will be added to as new officials are elected, she said.

Mrs. Hayter hopes the plaque will be put up this summer before the village's 10th anniversary of incorporation in September.

"It's a little awkward," she added of the inclusion of the six dishonest former officials. "but I'm not going to worry about it."

Court holds key to industry

by TONI GINETTI

Court action which could decide the fate of future industrial development in Hoffman Estates began Wednesday in a zoning dispute involving land in the western part of the village.

In opening statements before Circuit Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne, Village Atty. Edward Hofert called industrial zoning of land near Barrington Road and the Northwest Tollway a vital need for the village's future.

Hofert defended the village's 1974 decision to zone for industrial use 52.7 acres in that area, saying it is among the last land available to the village for industrial development.

His statements came at the start of trial action on a lawsuit filed against the village last year by developer Nathan Shefner. Shefner, who owns the land, had sought approval to build a 450-unit town-

Break for small savers?

Ford seeking broad financing reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Wednesday to approve wide-ranging reform of the financial industry to give small savers a better return on their dollar and provide a more stable flow of funds for home and apartment construction.

The administration's bill, virtually a carbon copy of one that died in Congress last year, would sharpen competition between banks, savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and the credit unions by allowing each to offer new services.

For example, the 2,500 federally chartered savings and loan associations and 500 mutual savings banks could set up customer checking accounts, a service now exclusively held by commercial banks.

CREDIT UNIONS, which have about 23,000 outlets around the nation, more than any other type of financial institution, could offer members bigger loans and also deal in mortgages.

And 14,000 commercial banks could give depositors interest on their checking accounts through so-called NOW accounts, which are widely used in Canada but in the United States are legal only in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

William O'Connell, a spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations in Chicago, said he favored the "general idea" of checking accounts for consumers, but he did not support interest-bearing checking accounts in other than the two states where they are offered.

The interest-bearing checking accounts should be considered carefully by consumers, said Fritz Wolf, president of the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights.

"It doesn't make a difference," he said. "You'll charge for your service if you give money out on it."

Five-and-one-half years after becoming law, the act also provides that interest-rate ceilings on all types of savings accounts be eliminated.

This would allow savings interest rate to fluctuate according to supply and demand and might help stem the enormous flow of funds from thrift institutions to more lucrative short-term securities. When this has occurred in the past, the housing industry has found itself strapped for funds to finance new homes and apartments.

The current ceilings are 5.75 per cent on short-term savings and 7.75 per cent on long term deposits.

THE CEILINGS worked a special hardship on small savers since it takes a minimum $10,000 to buy most securities that offer yields above the ceiling rate.

O'Connell said he favored the continuation of ceilings on interest rates "because our loans are all long-term."

A more viable means of assuring home buyers that financing will be available is the variable-rate mortgage (VRM), O'Connell said. If an earlier VRM proposal is approved by Congress "it would allow mortgage rates to move up and down and open the way for a variable rate savings accounts," he said.

Possible changes in the tax credit that may accompany the proposed reform may be too great a price to pay for added powers, he added.

TREASURY SEC. William E. Simon called the act "more than regulatory reform, it's fundamentally a consumer measure."

Simon said it also provides "flexibility that many financial institutions need."

Deputy Treasury Secretary Steven Gardner said he was "very confident" the act would get serious attention on Capitol Hill and that passage by fall was a possibility.

The package of proposals is known as the Financial Institutions Act of 1975, and traces its origin to recommendations put forward by a presidential task force known as the Hunt Commission.

Second Harper site subject of meeting

The Harper College Board of Trustees will discuss plans for a second site, college programs and curriculum in Schaumburg today at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting is fifth in a series which Harper trustees are holding in the communities served by the college. Invitations have been sent to more than 100 community leaders, and the meeting is open to the public.

The meeting will be at the First Federal Savings and Loan Assn., 800 E. Higgins Rd., Schaumburg.

Klods win volleyball title

house complex on the site, but the plan was rejected by the village. The village subsequently rezoned the land for industrial use.

SHEPNER'S SUIT seeks a reversal of the rezoning to permit the townhouse complex.

The land is located between Barrington and Freeman roads and south of Mundbank Road in the heart of what the village hopes will become its major industrial area.

Village officials have long considered the area, the last open land available to Hoffman Estates, as the site for industrial growth which officials say is needed to increase tax revenues.

Hofert testified Wednesday the site is among the last which can be used for Industrial development "to benefit the village, increase the tax base and provide jobs." He said industrial zoning would benefit the developer as well because similar zoning exists in nearby areas.

He said the site was unsuited to residential use because facilities such as schools and parks are not located in the area, the nearest school being nine miles away.

"We believe the semi-trucks and the Volkswagens should be separated," Hofert said. The attorney said the village "feels compassion and understanding" for Shepner, but held the developer would also profit by accepting the zoning.

A DECISION ON the suit is not expected before Friday, Hofert said. Court action is scheduled to continue today at 10:30 a.m.

The village is being joined in its defense by an adjoining property owner, Marvin Duntzman, and the Barrington Area Council of Governments representing the adjacent village of South Barrington.

In a meeting in December, South Barrington officials agreed to consider zoning some of their village's eastern boundary for light industry in order to get water and sewer facilities from Hoffman Estates. South Barrington officials have also indicated they would not favor high-density residential zoning near their village, which consists generally of single-family houses on lots of one acre or more.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter attended the start of the trial Wednesday but said she did not expect to take the stand during the proceedings.

Army weighs $1.4 million for Nike Base

by DIANE MERNIGAS

J. S. Army officials said Wednesday that a $1.4 million facility is being considered for the Arlington Heights Nike Base to replace the existing wooden barracks and other buildings.

The announcement was made during a meeting of the Nike site, Wilks and Central roads, with Army officials, representatives of the Illinois Attorney General's office and residents who want the base to be turned into a park.

Frederick G. Kueln, representative from the Washington D.C. office of the Army reserve chief, said the facility would include a mess hall, assembly hall and classrooms to accommodate the maximum 8,400 Army reservists authorized to use the base.

"It is not definite yet because the Army will have to decide on the building next year, depending upon available funds and priorities. This will not mean that the number of men using the base will increase," Kueln said.

KUELN DID NOT say where on the base the facility would be built. It is planned for construction in 1978.

"We want to do everything the residents and the Illinois Attorney General want us to do... remove old buildings, landscape the base and make it compatible with the area. But, we can't promise these things for another three or four years," he said.

The Army will not be able to construct the complex unless its environmental impact statement is approved by the Illinois Attorney General. The meeting Wednesday was held to determine when the impact study will be completed.

The Army has never issued an environmental assessment statement on the base. Kueln explained that when the reserves first came to the base several years ago, the "Chicago area Army staff reviewed its intended use of the base and determined that it would have no effect on the local community or environment," he said.

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, asked Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office to request that the Army issue an environmental impact statement to determine if the Army's operation of the base is detrimental to the area.

The Illinois Attorney General's office is requiring the Army to specify the number of reserves who will use each portion of the base and for what purposes.

ARMY OFFICIALS said the statement will be issued April 15, after which time Army and park district officials will meet again. A joint meeting was originally set for April 5, but military officials said the meeting would be more beneficial after the environmental assessment statement is prepared.

Mary Schlott, assistant attorney general, said a suit could eventually be filed against the Army to restrict use of the base if the environmental statements are "seemingly detrimental to the community."

Members of the Citizens' Committee for the Utilization of the Arlington Heights Nike Base — a group of local residents who want the land to become a park — told Kueln that residents would not wait another 10 years to gain control of the base, and that the committee will impose new pressures on the Army.

The package of proposals is known as the Financial Institutions Act of 1975, and traces its origin to recommendations put forward by a presidential task force known as the Hunt Commission.

Her employment ordered

State rules teacher was job bias victim

The Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission ruled Wednesday that a woman with preschool children was the object of discrimination when she was turned down for a teaching job in 1972.

The commission upheld an earlier ruling that the woman, Colleen Simon of Glenview, was refused a job by East Maine Dist. 63 "because of her motherhood without objective proof that it would create a problem."

The examiner had also said the school officials presented no evidence to support the hiring of an inexperienced male teacher in place of Mrs. Simon, who was described as "a good experienced teacher with a good record."

THE COMMISSION ordered the district to employ Mrs. Simon as a junior high social studies teacher and reimburse her for back pay to September 1972. Mrs. Simon estimates the district owes her about $25,000. The district must also restore all benefits and seniority she would have received since 1972.

Mrs. Simon said Dist. 63 officials have not contacted her but that "I haven't changed my mind about teaching."

"I'm really thrilled with the decision and I feel it was extremely fair. I'm glad I went ahead with the suit," she said.

School officials said they cannot comment on the ruling until they receive the official order.

MRS. SIMON filed the complaint in September 1972, saying she was refused a full-time position as social studies teacher at Gemini Junior High School because Principal Donald Huebner "firmly believed and stated on various occasions that a woman with small children belongs at home."

The complaint also charged that the school district interviewed Mrs. Simon "under false pretenses," knowing that a man had already been hired for the position.

The commission examiner later submitted recommendations upholding Mrs. Simon's complaints.

DIST. 63 OFFICIALS appealed the ruling, saying that "experience is not the sole criterion" for employment and that Huebner felt Mrs. Simon was "a good teacher but a structured teacher."

The commission rejected the school officials' appeals saying that Huebner testified on two occasions that Mrs. Simon's children "were a factor in not hiring her."

The commission said the district's "philosophical and style qualifications... are too ephemeral to withstand objective scrutiny."

$1,500 lake bath?

by MARILYN McDONALD

Jack and Augusta Lacker paid $1,500 extra for their Willow Creek condominium apartment in order to get a "lake view."

"Our salesman assured us that by the time we moved in, it would be an accomplished fact," Mrs. Lacker said. They moved in during September, 1973, but all they can see, she says, is "nothing more than a swamp."

Key Club yields to pressure on girl issue

High school student members of Kiwanis International-sponsored Key Clubs bowed to pressure from their sponsor Wednesday night and postponed a meeting to plot strategy for a bylaws change that would allow girls to join the club.

The students agreed to a Kiwanis request for a meeting today of Kiwanis and high school officials and the students.

Members of the Elk Grove High School Key Club are spearheading a drive to change key club rules which prohibit female membership. About half the members of the club, like about 30 others in the Chicago area, are girls who listed only their first initial when registering with Key Club International.

TIE: PRESSURE came in the form of phone calls from unidentified Kiwanis officials to Donald Ring, Elk Grove High School principal; Dominic Sparacino, high school Key Club adviser; and Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis chapter.

Ring said he was "requested" to cancel the meeting but refused, saying he would relay the officials' desire to the student members of the club. Ring did not name the official but said he was told that the club had violated its charter by having girls as members and couldn't "legally" hold the meeting.

Several officials from the Kiwanis and Key Club International showed up at the meeting to further their desire to delay the meeting. Only five schools were represented at the meeting.

ELK GROVE High School teacher Richard Cherico told the students, "If you call off this meeting I will see you get adult help in getting this thing through."

Cherico, who is not a Kiwanis member, was the main factor in convincing the students to delay the meeting until their representatives can meet with Kiwanis officials.

Donald Johnson, Elk Grove High School Key Club president, tentatively scheduled another meeting of Key Club presidents for Tuesday. Johnson said he was disappointed in the slim turnout and the angry reaction from Kiwanis officials. Johnson had expected 40 to 60 club presidents at the meeting.

Johnson hopes to organize support for the bylaws change which will allow females as full club members, at the Key Club International district convention in Chicago April 4-6.

Palatine village officials have stepped in to give the Lackers and other condominium apartment owners the lake view they were promised.

Village Mgr. Anton Harwig Wednesday gave Centex Corp., developers of Willow Creek, Northwest Highway and Ill. Rte. 53, 15 days to explain why it hasn't provided the lake view.

CENTEX WAS ordered to tell the village why it has not suitably landscaped the lake and park and behind the complex, as promised in a 1966 zoning agreement.

Former officials to hang — in new village building

A promise is a promise to Village Pres. Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates, even if it means some embarrassment.

So when a plaque is put up this year in the village municipal building with the names of past and present elected officials, it will include the names of the six former officials who went to jail for accepting bribes.

"We made a pledge that we would do it," Mrs. Hayter said of putting up the plaque. She said the names of the officials convicted in the scandal surrounding the zoning for the Barrington Square complex would be included on the commemorative wall decoration planned to go up in the council chambers.

A similar plaque had hung in the old village hall. When the new village structure on Gannon Drive was erected, Mrs. Hayter said officials agreed to place another plaque listing past and present elected officials and their terms of office. The plaque will be added to as new officials are elected, she said.

Mrs. Hayter hopes the plaque will be put up this summer before the village's 16th anniversary of incorporation in September.

"It's a little awkward," she added of the inclusion of the six dishonest former officials, "but I'm not going to worry about it."

Centex officials say they haven't developed the 25-acre park land because they gave it to the village. "It's not our property to work with anymore," said David Weber, director of marketing and sales for Centex.

The June 20, 1966 zoning agreement between the village and Winston-Muss (now Centex) for Willow Creek development states: "Petitioner shall improve the park site by grading, seeding and planting of at least 400 two-inch diameter trees . . . Petitioner shall complete the improvements to park site within three years from the adoption of this ordinance."

Willow Creek residents, who paid between $500 and $2,000 extra for condominium apartments with lake views, said they were promised a 25-acre park surrounding Lake Rosslter, landscaped into picnic groves and recreational areas.

"There definitely is a default," Harwig said when asked about the agreement by The Herald. "We're going to send them a notice to ask for their plans to comply with the ordinance within 15 days." He said the village "can start to withhold their occupancy permits (on future buildings) if this isn't taken care of."

CENTEX'S WEBER, said, however, that the land was donated to the village about two years ago, "according to our agreements with the Village of Palatine."

"It is unfortunate if anyone bought their condominium for the development (of the lake area). The view is there, the lake is there, but it's just not developed," he said.

Raymond Skiera, another Centex sales employee, said he believed the grading, seeding and planting had been done according to the zoning agreement. "I know the trees were planted in 1969, and I believe the grading and seeding were also done," he said. But Harwig said the village would have had to approve any landscaping work on the lake site. "We would have been notified if the work had been done," he said.

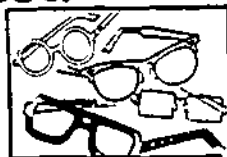

Augusta Lacker said she and her husband bought their condominium apartment at 945 E. Kenilworth Rd., based on a model they saw in August, 1972.

Although a new brochure for the condominiums was issued last year, the brochure the Lackers were given described "the pleasures of a private pool, equipped playgrounds, sun decks, lake and picnic groves for nice weather fun." The map in the brochure shows a park and picnic grove area around the lake.

Alderman denies GOP 'influence'

Ald. Kenneth W. Retzke, 5th, denied charges Wednesday that he has allowed his affiliation with the Palatine Township Republican Club to influence his decisions as Rolling Meadows alderman.

Retzke said he does "not believe national politics has any place in Rolling Meadows," and if he did he probably would not be running as a member of the state of Citizens Action Party of 1975. He noted one state member, Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd, has Democratic Party affiliations in politics outside the city.

Retzke was responding to charges earlier this week by Ald. Daniel E. Weber, 4th, who is managing the campaign for Retzke's opponent, Rudolf Balek. Weber said Retzke was trying to infiltrate the city council with domination from the Palatine Township Republican Club. Retzke was club president in 1974.

"If I was going to dominate the council, how come it took me a year of constant effort" to win city acceptance of an offer by the Palatine Township Council on the Aged to operate a senior citizen bus in the township portion of Rolling Meadows, Retzke said.

Retzke also noted he is or has been president of several other organizations, including the city's American Legion post, a chapter of the Society of Manufacturing Engineers, a stock club and others. None of those groups have influenced his judgment, he said.

Weber was not available for comment Wednesday, but Balek said he still believes Retzke intends to bring Republican politics into the city. He quoted a statement by Retzke last November that, "The city is not ready for national party involvement in local elections." Balek said that implies Retzke believes the city will eventually accept national parties.

Health director's opinion

City housing code needed 'to save homes, apartments'

A housing code is needed in Rolling Meadows to prevent deterioration of houses and apartment buildings, president of the board of health, Kenneth Johnson, said Wednesday.

Johnson said the city's proposed housing code would establish health and safety standards. "The fact is that the city is now 20 years old. There is a certain amount of deterioration in that period of time. To prevent slums, we have to force homeowners and apartment owners to live up to a certain city standard," he said.

The Rolling Meadows City Council will have the housing code to consider next month, despite the elimination of the housing inspector's salary from the 1975-76 city budget.

ALDERMEN DECIDED Tuesday to cut the $12,500 salary for an environmental housing inspector to help build a surplus into next year's budget. Although $12,000 had been budgeted this year for an environmental housing inspector one was never hired. City health officials were hopeful that a housing code could soon be passed to empower the inspector to keep existing homes and apartments up to health standards.

"I could use the help," said Bruno Mannella, city sanitarian, who now answers health complaints from apartments and homes. "It's more important that we get a housing ordinance through," he added. "I will still be making inspections, and the new code, if passed, will be under our jurisdiction."

The proposed housing code is being reviewed by City Atty. Donald Rose. The code was drawn up by the city board of health, based on a model code from the City of Chicago. Although the board of health's proposal would require the city to adopt home-rule powers, Rose said he will attempt to write an ordinance that would be usable by a non-home-rule town under Illinois law, and have it ready to present in 30 days.

"We have to adopt a code consistent with the powers given to the city by the Illinois General Assembly," Rose said.

Under Illinois law, municipalities with 25,000 or more population automatically become home-rule towns, with expanded local control. Communities with fewer than 25,000 population, such as Rolling Meadows, can adopt home rule by referendum. City officials earlier ruled out the possibility for such a referendum April 15.

Classes to help adults get high school diplomas

High School Dist. 211 will offer special classes this spring to help adults prepare for the Graduate Equivalency Diploma.

Adults who pass a test given by the county schools superintendent earn a high school diploma.

In order to receive the diploma, adults must pass an Illinois and U.S. Constitution test. A five-day course is being offered April 8, 10, 15, 17 and 22 at Conant High School to help adults prepare for the test. Classes will meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in room 118. Tuition is $6.

A seven-week course in math and English will begin April 24. Classes meet two nights a week from 7:30 to 10 p.m. and tuition is $18. The Tuesday class in math will be held at Fremd High School and the Thursday class in English will be held at Hoffman Estates High School.

Registration for both courses can be made through the Dist. 211 office of continuing education, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine, phone 359-7233.

Can village make Centex build 'park'?

by MARILYN McDONALD

Jack and Augusta Lacker paid $1,500 extra for their Willow Creek condominium apartment in order to get a "lake view."

"Our salesman assured us that by the time we moved in, it would be an accomplished fact," Mrs. Lacker said. They moved in during September, 1973, but all they can see, she says, is "nothing more than a swamp."

Palatine village officials have stepped in to give the Lackers and other condominium apartment owners the lake view they were promised.

Village Mr. Anton Harwig Wednesday gave Centex Corp., developers of Willow Creek, Northwest Highway and Ill. Rte. 51, 15 days to explain why it hasn't provided the lake view.

CENTEX WAS ordered to tell the village why it has not suitably landscaped the lake and park and behind the complex, as promised in a 1966 zoning agreement.

Break for small savers?

Ford seeking broad financing reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Wednesday to approve wide-ranging reform of the financial industry to give small savers a better return on their dollar and provide a more stable flow of funds for home and apartment construction.

The administration's bill, virtually a carbon copy of one that died in Congress last year, would sharpen competition between banks, savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and the credit unions by allowing each to offer new services.

For example, the 2,500 federally chartered savings and loan associations and 500 mutual savings banks could set up customer checking accounts, a service now exclusively held by commercial banks.

CREDIT UNIONS, which have about 23,000 outlets around the nation, more than any other type of financial institution, could offer members bigger loans and also deal in mortgages.

And 4,000 commercial banks could give depositors interest on their checking accounts through so-called NOW accounts, which are widely used in Canada but in the United States are legal only in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

William O'Connell, a spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations in Chicago, said he favored the "general idea" of checking accounts for consumers, but he did not support interest-bearing checking accounts in other than the two states where they are offered.

The interest-bearing checking accounts should be considered carefully by consumers, said Fritz Wolf, president of the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights.

Five-and-one-half years after becoming law, the act also provides that interest-rate ceilings on all types of savings accounts be eliminated.

This would allow savings interest rate to fluctuate according to supply and demand and might help stem the enormous flow of funds from thrift institutions to more lucrative short-term securities. When this has occurred in the past, the housing industry has found itself strapped for funds to finance new homes and apartments.

The current ceilings are 5.75 per cent on short-term savings and 7.75 per cent on long term deposits.

THE CEILINGS worked a special hardship on small savers since it takes a minimum $10,000 to buy most securities that offer yields above the ceiling rate.

O'Connell said he favored the continuation of ceilings on interest rates "because our loans are all long-term."

A more viable means of assuring home buyers that financing will be available is the variable-rate mortgage (VRM), O'Connell said. If an earlier VRM proposal is approved by Congress "it would allow mortgage rates to move up and down and open the way for a variable rate savings accounts," he said.

Possible changes in the tax credit that may accompany the proposed reform may be too great a price to pay for added powers, he added.

TREASURY SEC. William E. Simon called the act "more than regulatory reform, it's fundamentally a consumer measure."

Simon said it also provides "flexibility that many financial institutions need."

Deputy Treasury Secretary Steven Gardner said he was "very confident" the act would get serious attention on Capitol Hill and that passage by fall was a possibility.

The package of proposals is known as the Financial Institutions Act of 1975, and traces its origin to recommendations put forward by a presidential task force known as the Hunt Commission.

Absentee ballots ready

Absentee ballots for persons unable to vote in the April 12 school election are available at Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 offices, 804 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg.

Any registered voter unable to go to the polls can apply for a ballot.

Application for an absentee ballot may be made at the district offices between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. The ballots will be available after April 2. No ballots will be given out in person after April 9 and no ballots will be mailed after April 7. Physically disabled voters must submit an affidavit from their physician.

Former officials Army weighs $1.4 million facility for Arlington base to hang—in new village building

A promise is a promise to Village Pres. Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates, even if it means some embarrassment.

So when a plaque is put up this year in the village municipal building with the names of past and present elected officials, it will include the names of the six former officials who went to jail for accepting bribes.

"We made a pledge that we would do it," Mrs. Hayter said of putting up the plaque. She said the names of the officials convicted in the scandal surrounding the zoning for the Barrington Square complex would be included on the commemorative wall decoration planned to go up in the council chambers.

A similar plaque had hung in the old village hall. When the new village structure on Gannon Drive was erected, Mrs. Hayter said officials agreed to place another plaque listing past and present elected officials and their terms of office. The plaque will be added to as new officials are elected, she said.

Mrs. Hayter hopes the plaque will be put up this summer before the village's 16th anniversary of incorporation in September.

"It's a little awkward," she added of the inclusion of the six dishonest former officials, "but I'm not going to worry about it."

by DIANE MERNIGAS
U. S. Army officials said Wednesday that a $1.4 million facility is being considered for the Arlington Heights Nike Base to replace the existing wooden barracks and other buildings.

The announcement was made during a meeting of the Nike site, Wilke and Central roads, with Army officials, representatives of the Illinois Attorney General's office and residents who want the base to be turned into a park.

Frederick G. Kueln, representative from the Washington D.C. office of the Army reserve chief, said the facility would include a mess hall, assembly hall and classrooms to accommodate the maximum 8,400 Army reservists authorized to use the base.

"It is not definite yet because the Army will have to decide on the building next year, depending upon available funds and priorities. This will not mean that the number of men using the base will increase," Kueln said.

KUELN DID NOT say where on the base the facility would be built. It is planned for construction in 1978.

"We want to do everything the residents and the Illinois Attorney General want us to do . . . remove old buildings, landscape the base and make it compatible with the area. But, we can't promise these things for another three or four years," he said.

The Army will not be able to construct the complex unless its environmental impact statement is approved by the Illinois Attorney General. The meeting Wednesday was held to determine when the impact study will be completed.

The Army has never issued an environmental assessment statement on the base. Kueln explained that when the reserves first came to the base several years ago, the "Chicago area Army staff reviewed its intended use of the base and determined that it would have no effect on the local community or environment," he said.

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, asked Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office to request that the Army issue an environmental impact statement to determine if the Army's operation of the base is detrimental to the area.

The Illinois Attorney General's office is requiring the Army to specify the number of reserves who will use each portion of the base and for what purposes.

ARMY OFFICIALS said the statement will be issued April 15, after which time Army and park district officials will meet again. A joint meeting was originally set for April 5, but military officials said the meeting would be more beneficial after the environmental assessment statement is prepared.

Mary Schiott, assistant attorney general, said a suit could eventually be filed against the Army to restrict use of the base if the environmental statements are "seemingly detrimental to the community."

Members of the Citizens' Committee for the Utilization of the Arlington Heights Nike Base — a group of local residents who want the land to become a park — told Kueln that residents would not wait another 10 years to gain control of the base, and that the committee will impose new pressures on the Army.

"We will definitely resume the picketing of the base this spring, and now we will have almost the entire village supporting us. We may resume the bumper sticker campaign, and we are ready to go with some new tactics," said Thomas McDonnell, committee cochairman.

McDonnell said the committee has gained the support of many northern village subdivisions in addition to the support of southern homeowners' associations that it had last year when the committee picketed the Nike base.

THE COMMITTEE'S main goal is to "pressure the Army into declaring more land at the base as surplus, and giving it to the park district so that an 18-hole golf course can be constructed. We want this done by this summer so construction can start in the fall. We plan to celebrate the opening of the course in connection with the country's Bicentennial celebration next year," he said.

The Arlington Heights Park District has already received two portions of the base from the Army, totaling 64 acres. The Army has retained 75 acres.

Committee members originally suggested that the Army and park district share the golf course, allowing the Army to use it for training during the week-days or during the off season.

Kueln ruled out the suggestion Wednesday, calling it an "impossibility."

Key Club yields to pressure on girl issue

High school student members of Kiwanis International-sponsored Key Clubs bowed to pressure from their sponsor Wednesday night and postponed a meeting to plot strategy for a bylaws change that would allow girls to join the club.

The students agreed to a Kiwanis request for a meeting today of Kiwanis and high school officials and the students.

Members of the Elk Grove High School Key Club are spearheading a drive to change key club rules which prohibit female membership. About half the members of the club, like about 30 others in the Chicago area, are girls who listed only their first initial when registering with Key Club International.

THE PRESSURE came in the form of phone calls from unidentified Kiwanis officials to Donald Ring, Elk Grove High School principal; Dominic Sparacino, high school Key Club adviser; and Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis chapter.

Ring said he was "requested" to cancel the meeting but refused, saying he would relay the officials' desire to the student members of the club. Ring did not name the official but said he was told that the club had violated its charter by having girls as members and couldn't "legally" hold the meeting.

Court action may hold key to industry

by TONI GINETTI

Court action which could decide the fate of future industrial development in Hoffman Estates began Wednesday in a zoning dispute involving land in the western part of the village.

In opening statements before Circuit Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne, Village Atty. Edward Hofert called industrial zoning of land near Barrington Road and the Northwest Tollway a vital need for the village's future.

Hofert defended the village's 1974 decision to zone for industrial use 52.7 acres in that area, saying it is among the last land available to the village for industrial development.

His statements came at the start of trial action on a lawsuit filed against the village last year by developer Nathan Shefner, Shefner, who owns the land, had sought approval to build a 490-unit townhouse complex on the site, but the plan was rejected by the village. The village subsequently rezoned the land for industrial use.

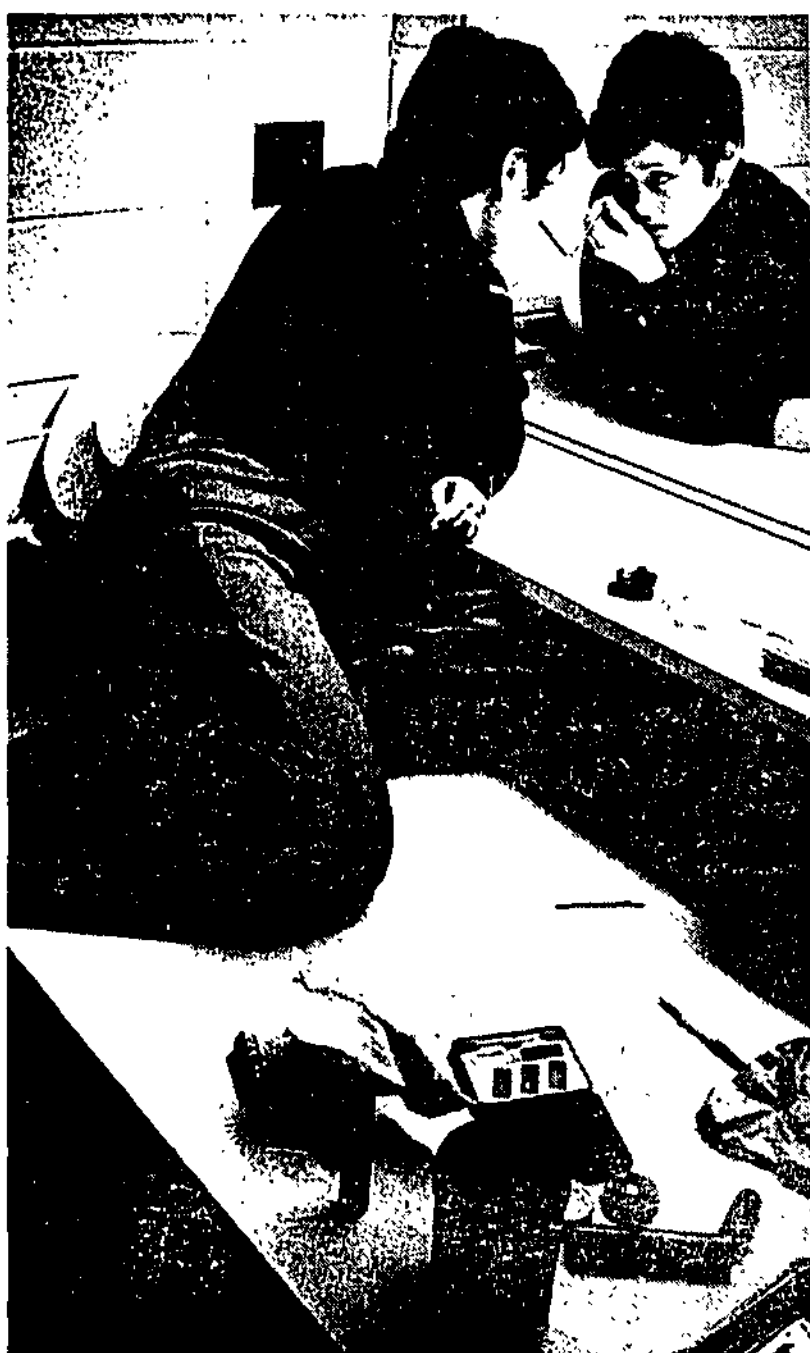

SHEFNER'S SUIT seeks a reversal of the rezoning to permit the townhouse complex.

The land is located between Barrington and Freeman roads and south of Mundank Road in the heart of what the village hopes will become its major industrial area.

Village officials have long considered the area, the last open land available to Hoffman Estates, as the site for industrial growth which officials say is needed to increase tax revenues.

Hofert testified Wednesday the site is among the last which can be used for industrial development "to benefit the village, increase the tax base and provide jobs." He said industrial zoning would benefit the developer as well because similar zoning exists in nearby areas.

He said the site was unsuitable to residential use because facilities such as schools and parks are not located in the area, the nearest school being nine miles away.

2,000-unit plan

Spinnaker Cove residents ask lower apartment density

The president of the Spinnaker Cove Homeowners Assn. Wednesday asked the County Zoning Board to reconsider the 2,000-unit density approved for the Prairie Brook Apartments project several years ago.

The Spinnaker Cove homeowners, whose subdivision is just south of the proposed apartments on Baldwin Road south of Rand Road, have been protesting the density since its developer requested a zoning variation three months ago.

Fifty residents of the area attended the zoning hearing in the Slade Street Fire Station, Palatine.

Plans for the apartment complex were approved by the County Board in 1970. The development is planned in two phases with 300 apartment units to be constructed this year and almost 2,000 more in 1976. Plans show two six-story buildings, with two-story buildings near the Spinnaker Cove subdivision.

THE ZONING change now under consideration by the County Zoning Board would allow the developer to construct a commercial complex near Rand Road, the northern boundary of the development. Buildings also are to be relocated and changes are planned on the exterior design of the buildings.

The Prairie Brook complex was the center of controversy last month when County Comr. Charles Bonk was indicted by a federal grand jury in connection with zoning for the complex. Palatine officials are seeking an injunction until the exterior charges are resolved.

Alex R. Selth, chairman of the zoning board, said the board will decide within the next few weeks whether to consider the developer's zoning variation request before a public hearing on the project's original high density zoning would be held.

The zoning board recommends zoning changes to the County Board which makes the final decision.

THE RESIDENTS said the project will bring added traffic and crime and could cause an increased flood control problem in the area.

Palatine Public Works Director Robert Miller told the zoning board the land for the project currently serves as a water reservoir for the area, and that the construction of the development "could aggravate the flood problem that presently exists there."

Michael Kroizere, developer of "Prairie Brook," presented a second revision of his original project plans to the zoning board in an attempt to satisfy the concerns of the homeowners. The revised plan, which also must be considered by the board, calls for four additional access routes into the project on Baldwin Road, and places several of the project's highest six-story buildings further from the Spinnaker Cove homes at the southern end of the project.

Residents said the revised plans were still unsatisfactory because the plans did not solve their main concerns.

Classes to help adults get high school diplomas

High School Dist. 211 will offer special classes this spring to help adults prepare for the Graduate Equivalency Diploma.

Adults who pass a test given by the county schools superintendent earn a high school diploma.

In order to receive the diploma, adults must pass an Illinois and U.S. Constitution test. A five-day course is being offered April 8, 10, 15, 17 and 22 at Conant High School to help adults prepare for the test. Classes will meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in room 118. Tuition is $6.

A seven-week course in math and English will begin April 24. Classes meet two nights a week from 7:30 to 10 p.m. and tuition is $18. The Tuesday class in math will be held at Fremd High School and the Thursday class in English will be held at Hoffman Estates High School.

Registration for both courses can be made through the Dist. 211 office of continuing education, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine, phone 359-7233.

Village near its maximum, Teichert says

by LYNN ASINOF

Mount Prospect won't grow much more, says Mayor Robert D. Teichert, who is calling on village officials to come to grips with the village's transition from a growing community to a stable one.

Teichert is calling for a long-range planning session as a prologue to this year's budget work. He said the village must shift gears now that the building boom is ending and there is little village land left for development. Although all of the planned apartment projects will not be completed for another five or 10 years, Teichert said the village must begin to shift from a growing community to a stable one. He said the village can no longer look to an increasing tax base to provide additional revenue for village services.

"We must prepare ourselves for the ultimate static tax base," Teichert said. He said the increased cost of government services must be covered by attracting new customers or increasing costs.

TEICHERT SAID the day is coming when Mount Prospect will not have any "new customers," and said the village must prepare itself so there can be a smooth transition.

Recent talk about this year's "tight budget" is another indication that the village is moving closer to a static tax base, Teichert said. He said the village has had other warnings about this "day of reckoning," usually from the chairman of the board's finance committee.

"These people constantly had a concern that there is an adjustment to be made when you stop growing," Teichert said. "Each of them was saying 'Are we looking far enough ahead?'"

TEICHERT said the upcoming long-range planning session will be an attempt to take that look. He said he plans to invite all board members, village department heads and commission members to take part in the meetings.

"Our job is to make sure the community is a solvent community, not just this year but for all the years to come," Teichert said. He said that while there are no serious money problems now, there will be "if we don't address ourselves to it now."

The planning session will include a look at Mount Prospect's limited growth potential. Teichert said the downtown area is probably the last substantial place for growth and development. "So it is the critical growth factor, sort of the frosting on the cake," Teichert said.

FOR EXAMPLE, Teichert said he doubts that the village board will ever again have to debate the density of a planned unit development. "Rob Roy is the last time we will debate multi-family density," he said, noting there is no room for any more major developments.

Teichert said he does not believe the community yet understands the changes immediately ahead for Mount Prospect. He said he is beginning to prepare his administration for the changes through the upcoming planning session.

Break for small savers?

Ford seeking broad financing reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Wednesday to approve wide-ranging reform of the financial industry to give small savers a better return on their dollar and provide a more stable flow of funds for home and apartment construction.

The administration's bill, virtually a carbon copy of one that died in Congress last year, would sharpen competition between banks, savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and the credit unions by allowing each to offer new services.

For example, the 2,500 federally chartered savings and loan associations and 500 mutual savings banks could set up customer checking accounts, a service now exclusively held by commercial banks.

CREDIT UNIONS, which have about 23,000 outlets around the nation, more than any other type of financial institution, could offer members bigger loans and also deal in mortgages.

And 14,000 commercial banks could give depositors interest on their checking accounts through so-called NOW accounts, which are widely used in Canada but in the United States are legal only in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

William O'Connell, a spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations in Chicago, said he favored the "general idea" of checking accounts for consumers, but he did not support interest-bearing checking accounts in other than the two states where they are offered.

The interest-bearing checking accounts should be considered carefully by consumers, said Fritz Wolf, president of the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights.

"It doesn't make a difference," he said. "You'll charge for your service if you give money out on it."

Five-and-one-half years after becoming law, the act also provides that interest-rate ceilings on all types of savings accounts be eliminated.

This would allow savings interest rate to fluctuate according to supply and demand and might help stem the enormous flow of funds from thrift institutions to more lucrative short-term securities. When this has occurred in the past, the housing industry has found itself strapped for funds to finance new homes and apartments.

The current ceilings are 5.75 per cent on short-term savings and 7.75 per cent on long term deposits.

THE CEILINGS worked a special hardship on small savers since it takes a minimum $10,000 to buy most securities that offer yields above the ceiling rate.

O'Connell said he favored the continuation of ceilings on interest rates "because our loans are all long-term."

A more viable means of assuring home buyers that financing will be available is the variable-rate mortgage (VRM), O'Connell said. If an earlier VRM proposal is approved by Congress "it would allow mortgage rates to move up and down and open the way for a variable rate savings accounts," he said.

Possible changes in the tax credit that may accompany the proposed reform may be too great a price to pay for added powers, he added.

TREASURY SEC. William E. Simon called the act "more than regulatory reform, it's fundamentally a consumer measure."

Simon said it also provides "flexibility that many financial institutions need."

Deputy Treasury Secretary Steven Gardner said he was "very confident" the act would get serious attention on Capitol Hill and that passage by fall was a possibility.

The package of proposals is known as the Financial Institutions Act of 1975, and traces its origin to recommendations put forward by a presidential task force known as the Hunt Commission.

Candidates' night scheduled today

Mount Prospect residents will be able to hear all 11 village board candidates today at a candidates' night sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Council of Associations.

Each candidate will be asked to speak for five minutes on one or more of the following topics: planned unit development, the possible purchase of Citizens Utilities Co., the village's proposed comprehensive plan and flooding problems.

Candidates will be given a second chance to cover the topics during the second part of the program when a moderator will ask questions on the four topics. Speakers will be given two minutes to respond. Audience questions will be allowed following this round of moderator questions.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the River Trails Junior High School, 1000 N. Wolf Rd.

Her employment ordered

State rules teacher was job bias victim

The Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission ruled Wednesday that a woman with preschool children was the object of discrimination when she was turned down for a teaching job in 1972.

The commission upheld an earlier ruling that the woman, Colleen Simon of Glenview, was refused a job by East Maine Dist. 63 "because of her motherhood without objective proof that it would create a problem."

The examiner had also said the school officials presented no evidence to support the hiring of an inexperienced male teacher in place of Mrs. Simon, who was described as "a good experienced teacher with a good record."

THE COMMISSION ordered the district to employ Mrs. Simon as a junior high social studies teacher and reimburse her for back pay to September 1972. Mrs. Simon estimates the district owes her about $25,000. The district must also restore all benefits and seniority she would have received since 1972.

Mrs. Simon said Dist. 63 officials have not contacted her but that "I haven't changed my mind about teaching."

"I'm really thrilled with the decision and I feel it was extremely fair. I'm glad I went ahead with the suit," she said.

School officials said they cannot comment on the ruling until they receive the official order.

MRS. SIMON filed the complaint in September 1972, saying she was refused a full-time position as social studies teacher at Gemini Junior High School because Principal Donald Huebner "firmly believed and stated on various occasions that a woman with small children belongs at home."

The complaint also charged that the school district interviewed Mrs. Simon "under false pretenses," knowing that a man had already been hired for the position.

The commission examiner later submitted recommendations upholding Mrs. Simon's complaints.

DIST. 63 OFFICIALS appealed the ruling, saying that "experience is not the sole criterion" for employment and that Huebner felt Mrs. Simon was "a good teacher but a structured teacher."

The commission rejected the school officials' appeals saying that Huebner testified on two occasions that Mrs. Simon's children "were a factor in not hiring her."

The commission said the district's "philosophical and style qualifications . . . are too ephemeral to withstand objective scrutiny."

Army weighs $1.4 million for Nike Base

by DIANE MEHMIGAS
U. S. Army officials said Wednesday that a $1.4 million facility is being considered for the Arlington Heights Nike Base to replace the existing wooden barracks and other buildings.

The announcement was made during a meeting of the Nike site, Wilke and Central roads, with Army officials, representatives of the Illinois Attorney General's office and residents who want the base to be turned into a park.

Frederick G. Kueln, representative from the Washington D.C. office of the Army reserve chief, said the facility would include a mess hall, assembly hall and classrooms to accommodate the maximum 8,400 Army reservists authorized to use the base.

"It is not definite yet because the Army will have to decide on the building next year, depending upon available funds and priorities. This will not mean that the number of men using the base will increase," Kueln said.

KUELN DID NOT say where on the base the facility would be built. It is planned for construction in 1978.

"We want to do everything the residents and the Illinois Attorney General want us to do... remove old buildings, landscape the base and make it compatible with the area. But, we can't promise these things for another three or four years," he said.

The Army will not be able to construct the complex unless its environmental impact statement is approved by the Illinois Attorney General. The meeting Wednesday was held to determine when the impact study will be completed.

The Army has never issued an environmental assessment statement on the base. Kueln explained that when the reserves first came to the base several years ago, the "Chicago area Army staff reviewed its intended use of the base and determined that it would have no effect on the local community or environment," he said.

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, asked Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott's office to request that the Army issue an environmental impact statement to determine if the Army's operation of the base is detrimental to the area.

The Illinois Attorney General's office is requiring the Army to specify the number of reserves who will use each portion of the base and for what purposes.

ARMY OFFICIALS said the statement will be issued April 15, after which time Army and park district officials will meet again. A joint meeting was originally set for April 3, but military officials said the meeting would be more beneficial after the environmental assessment statement is prepared.

Mary Schlott, assistant attorney general, said a suit could eventually be filed against the Army to restrict use of the base if the environmental statements are "seemingly detrimental to the community."

Members of the Citizens' Committee for the Utilization of the Arlington Heights Nike Base — a group of local residents who want the land to become a park — told Kueln that residents would not wait another 10 years to gain control of the base, and that the committee will impose new pressures on the Army.

"We will definitely resume the picketing of the base this spring, and now we will have almost the entire village supporting us. We may resume the bumper sticker campaign, and we are ready to go with some new tactics," said Thomas McDonnell, committee chairman.

Passover film Monday

A film on Passover showing the relationship between the Jewish holiday and the Christian Easter will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Monday at St. Paul Lutheran Church, 100 S. School St., Mount Prospect.

"The Passover" was originally made for television by the Beth Shalom Hebrew Fellowship of New York City, and has been shown in several countries. The community is invited to attend.

McDonnell said the committee has gained the support of many northern village subdivisions in addition to the support of southern homeowners' associations that it had last year when the committee picketed the Nike base.

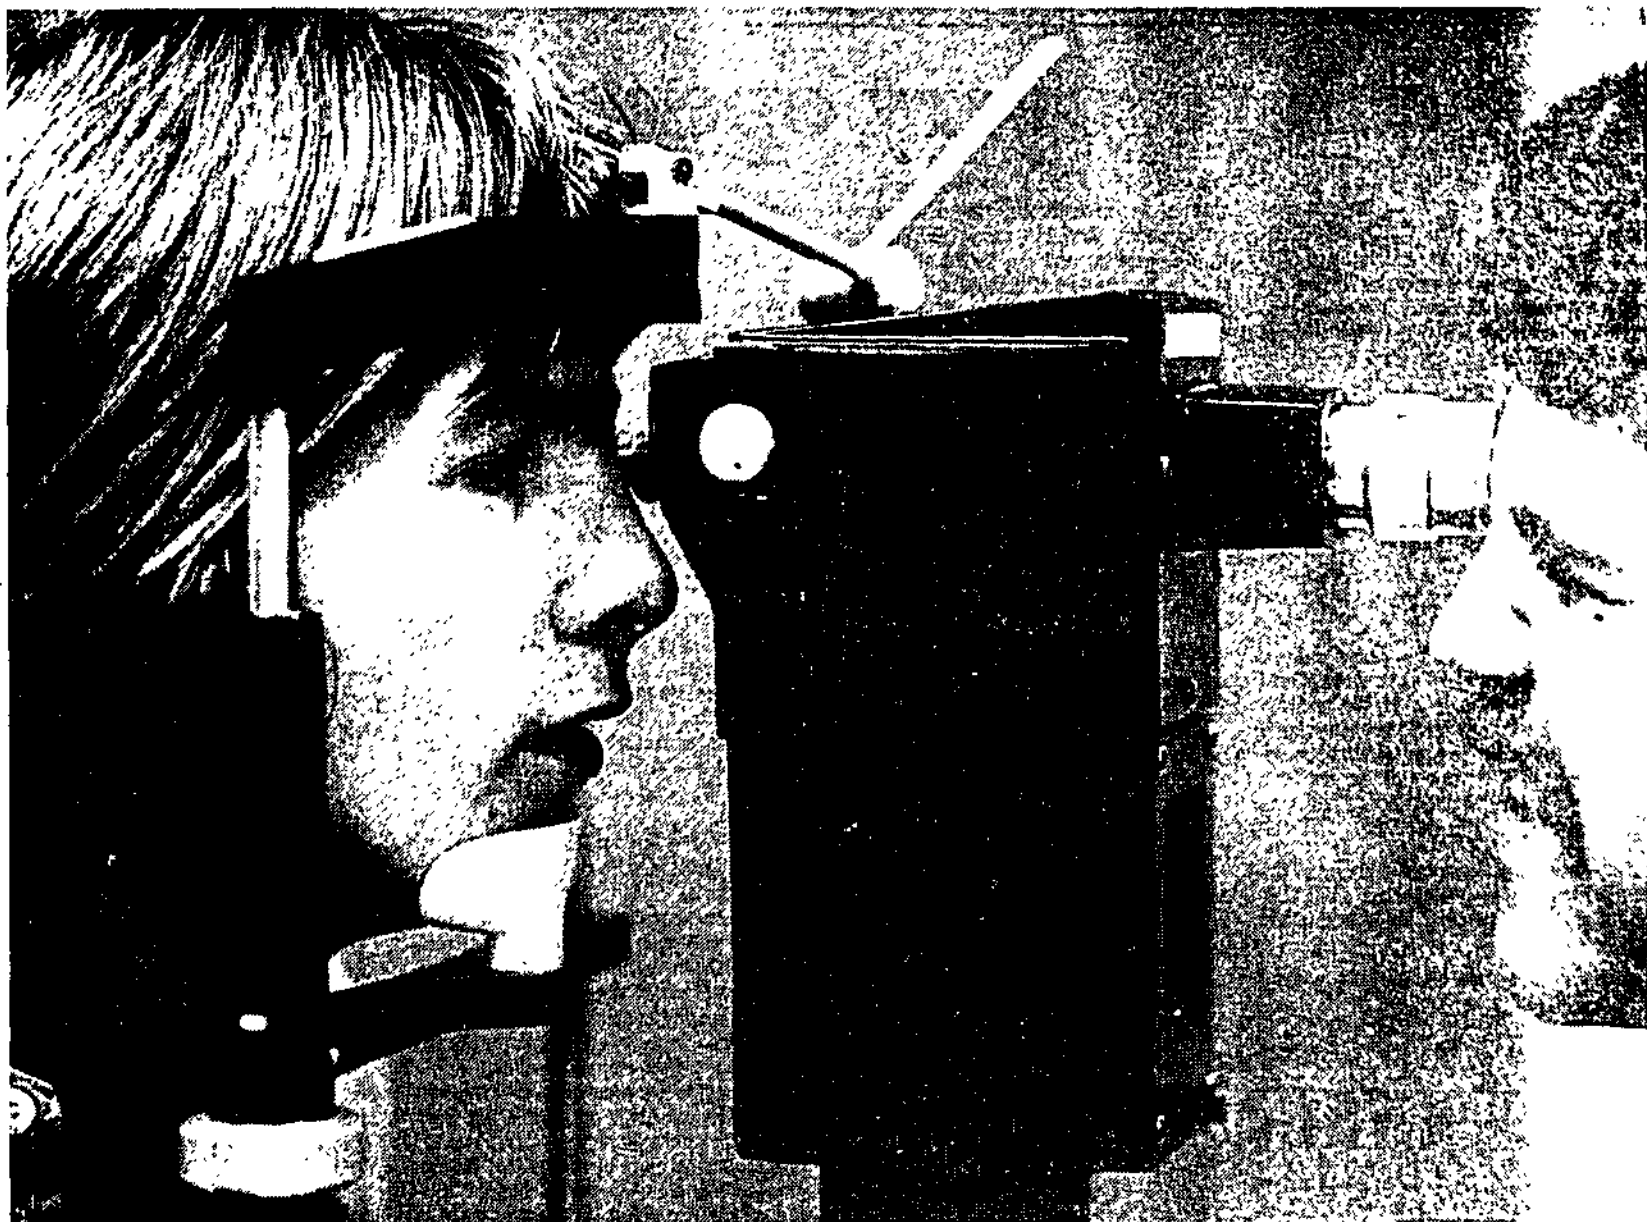

THE COMMITTEE'S main goal is to "pressure the Army into declaring more land at the base as surplus, and giving it to the park district so that an 18-hole golf course can be constructed. We want this done by this summer so construction can start in the fall. We plan to celebrate the opening of the course in connection with the country's Bicentennial celebration next year," he said.

The Arlington Heights Park District has already received two portions of the base from the Army, totaling 64 acres. The Army has retained 75 acres.

Committee members originally suggested that the Army and park district share the golf course, allowing the Army to use it for training during the week-days or during the off season.

Kueln ruled out the suggestion Wednesday, calling it an "impossibility."

"The only way the community or park district is going to get more of this base is if the Army decides to declare more of it surplus or if the village decides to trade us some of its own land for the base property," he said.

TESTING FOR glaucoma. Greg Meyer, left, of Des Plaines has his eyes tested by technician Bob Thompson during the health fair Wednesday at Harper College. In addition to the glaucoma tests, the fair offered blood pressure tests and screening for heart-attack risks. More than 30 organizations participated in the fair.

No hearing, hospital plans shelved

Plans for a proposed hospital for the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area are in limbo apparently because of a communications mixup between hospital backers and a hospital planning agency.

Plans for the hospital, which has been proposed by Franklin Boulevard Community Hospital, Chicago, have been submitted to the Illinois Dept. of Public Health for final review. However, Norman Davis, a Franklin Boulevard consultant, said Wednesday construction would not begin until approval for the hospital had been won from Comprehensive Health Planning Inc.

The planning agency turned down

Franklin Boulevard's request for a branch hospital in mid-December, saying there is no need for additional health-care facilities in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area.

DAVIS SAID hospital backers have one more chance to win the planning agency's support on an appeal. Davis said he expected the appeal hearing to be held "any day."

However, a check with the agency Wednesday revealed it has not scheduled a hearing because it is waiting for the hospital backers to request one.

The importance of the planning agency's approval is that Blue Cross-Blue Shield refused to enter an agreement with the hospital after Comprehensive Health Planning Inc. said the branch facility was not needed.

Plans for the 228-bed hospital were approved by the state last May, just before a certificate-of-need law enacted last October requiring backers to prove a hospital is needed went into effect. The hospital is proposed for the east side of Schoenbeck Road, south of Wheeling village limits. Officials hope to annex the hospital site to the village. The hospital would serve Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Northbrook and southern Lake County.

Key Club yields to pressure on girls

High school student members of Kiwanis International-sponsored Key Clubs bowed to pressure from their sponsor Wednesday night and postponed a meeting to plot strategy for a bylaws change that would allow girls to join the club.

The students agreed to a Kiwanis request for a meeting today of Kiwanis and high school officials and the students.

Members of the Elk Grove High School Key Club are spearheading a drive to change key club rules which prohibit female membership. About half the members of the club, like about 30 others in the Chicago area, are girls who listed only their first initial when registering with Key Club International.

THE PRESSURE came in the form of phone calls from unidentified Kiwanis officials to Donald Ring, Elk Grove High School principal; Dominic Sparacino, high school Key Club adviser; and Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis chapter.

Ring said he was "requested" to cancel the meeting but refused, saying he would relay the officials' desire to the student members of the club. Ring did not name the official but said he was told that the club had violated its charter by having girls as members and couldn't "legally" hold the meeting.

Several officials from the Kiwanis and Key Club International showed up at the meeting to further their desire to delay the meeting. Only five schools were represented at the meeting.

ELK GROVE High School teacher Richard Cherico told the students, "If you call off this meeting I will see you get adult help in getting this thing through."

Cherico, who is not a Kiwanis member, was the main factor in convincing the students to delay the meeting until their representatives can meet with Kiwanis officials.

Donald Johnson, Elk Grove High School Key Club president, tentatively scheduled another meeting of Key Club presidents for Tuesday. Johnson said he was disappointed in the slim turnout and the angry reaction from Kiwanis officials. Johnson had expected 40 to 60 club presidents at the meeting.

Johnson hopes to organize support for the bylaws change which will allow females as full club members, at the Key Club International district convention in Chicago April 4-6.

IF HE GETS district support, Johnson is planning strategy for the club's national convention in July when he hopes to force a vote to change the rule. He said he is not discouraged by the fact that his club may not be a member of Key Club International by July now that its charter violation has been made public.

"We'll go anyway and work through other clubs," he said.

If Johnson is successful in July, the change still must be approved by the Kiwanis International Board.

The Elk Grove Key Club faces a similar situation faced by its sponsor, the Elk Grove Kiwanis Club, which was threatened last fall with revocation of its charter because it had a female member, Elk Grove librarian Mary Clark. Miss Clark later resigned.

Teachers group petitions to quit using Iowa tests

by BOB GALLAS

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Teachers Council, opposed to using Iowa Achievement Tests to measure student achievement is circulating petitions among teachers to get rid of the test.

Alma Parrish, president of the district council, said Wednesday teachers will meet next week to decide if they will ask the administration to dump the test.

If the teachers' union has enough support from district teachers it will ask the administration to come up with another way of testing students to find out how well they are doing in basic skills.

THE IOWA TEST is one of more than 35 standardized tests used by schools to test achievement.

"We want a better, more modern way to test achievement," said Mrs. Parrish, a teacher at Marshall School, 711 Chelmsford Ln., Elk Grove Village. "The whole format (of the tests) throws the kids off."

"For the younger kids, the process of filling in a small grid to indicate the right answer is a project in itself," Mrs. Parrish said. "It's not a good means to measure children. The frustration level of the child after the tests is terrible."

ACTING SUPT. Roger Bardwell said he was not aware of the petition but was supportive of the teacher's request.

"It's a very destructive system of evaluation," Bardwell said. "Half the kids who take the test have to score below the 50th percentile by the very nature of the test."

"The tests often destroy the parents' confidence in their child and the child's self-image as well," he said.

"It's a box we've allowed to be built around us. The Iowa tests were supposed to be diagnostic, not an assessment of a child's ability," Bardwell said. "The whole use of the test has become corrupted."

Mrs. Parrish said she didn't know what support the petition was getting so far.

She said if enough support is obtained from teachers, the union will ask that teachers be involved in a study to come up with a new way of evaluating student performance in the district.

Former officials to hang—in new village building

A promise is a promise to Village Pres. Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates, even if it means some embarrassment.

So when a plaque is put up this year in the village municipal building with the names of past and present elected officials, it will include the names of the six former officials who went to jail for accepting bribes.

"We made a pledge that we would do it," Mrs. Hayter said of putting up the plaque. She said the names of the officials convicted in the scandal surrounding the zoning for the Barrington Square complex would be included on the commemorative wall decoration planned to go up in the council chambers.

A similar plaque had hung in the old village hall. When the new village structure on Gannon Drive was erected, Mrs. Hayter said officials agreed to place another plaque listing past and present elected officials and their terms of office. The plaque will be added to as new officials are elected, she said.

Trustees agree with Eppley's 'no-raise' budget prediction

It looks like no raises for Mount Prospect village employees in 1975-76.

Although none of the village board members has seen the proposed fiscal 1975-76 budget, most said they understood that the village will have to keep expenses to a minimum. Their outlook confirms Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley's assessment earlier this month when he predicted that there would be no money left in the budget for raises.

Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten who has seen parts of the budget as finance committee chairman, said he does not see how the village can afford to give employees raises this year.

"I think people right now can just be thankful they have a job," Scholten said, noting that he knows many people who have been laid off as a result of economic conditions.

SCHOLTEN, in fact, said it may be necessary to also reduce services to make ends meet during the coming year. He said the inflation rate for municipal services is estimated at 30 per cent, instead of the 12 per cent estimated for cost of living.

"Government is not inflation-proof," he said.

Other trustees with less information about the budget said they really could not make any definite statements about the need to eliminate raises.

Trustee Marie L. Caylor said she would like the employees to get at least a token raise if possible. "But maybe we are going to have to hold the line," she said.

TRUSTEE O. T. Gustus said he is firmly committed to a balanced budget and maintaining the village's credit rating. "I don't want to see anything done to jeopardize that," he said.

Trustee George B. Anderson said "there is no question that people are deserving of raises," but said it is a matter of priorities. Trustee E. F. Richardson said he recognizes that "it is going to be a very tight budget" but said he does not have sufficient information to comment further.

Trustee Richard N. Hendricks was unavailable for comment.

Dog-bite victim begins rabies shots

Sixteen-year-old Deborah Kenning of Wheeling has begun receiving a series of rabies shots because she wasn't able to find the dog that bit her March 5.

The Wheeling High School junior got her first shot Tuesday afternoon from Dr. Raymond Connor, an Evanston physician. The shots will continue for two weeks.

Efforts to find the German shepherd puppy that bit the girl on the leg as she was walking home from the store have failed, despite several leads as to the whereabouts of the animal.

The Kenning family, 1012 Kenilworth, followed tips from persons in the neighborhood who thought they knew which dog might have attacked the girl near the Valley Stream townhouse complex on the 800 block of Valley Stream Drive. The reports were unfounded.

Hendricks rejects Minton's independent co-op proposal

Mount Prospect Trustee Richard N. Hendricks Wednesday criticized the 1973 mayoral campaign of Michael H. Minton while rejecting Minton's proposal that independent candidates join forces.

Hendricks said there is no way that the independent trustee candidates could work together during the campaign without appearing to endorse each other. He said he could not endorse Minton because of the way Minton conducted his 1973 mayoral campaign.

"I do not endorse him because of some of his remarks in the 1973 village election relative to Mayor (Robert D.) Teichert," Hendricks said. "I do not approve of the manner in which he conducted his campaign then, and it would be distasteful to endorse him by inference."

MINTON WAS defeated in his bid against Teichert, who received 6,098 votes. Minton received 3,917, and a third candidate, Albert Motsch, received 531 after a long and bitter campaign.

Hendricks was the third independent to reject Minton's call for the Independents to join together to beat the incumbent United Citizens Party slate. Both Leo Floras and Norma Murauskis said they could work together with an outside group of residents, but would not bind together under Minton's call for unity.

Hendricks said that the candidates cannot band together and remain independent. "If we didn't want to run as independents, we should have formed a slate in the first place," Hendricks said.

Edward B. Rhea Jr. said he is interested in Minton's proposal, but did not have sufficient information. Only Theodore J. Wattenberg endorsed Minton's suggestion, saying he would work with anyone to further his ideas.

Prospect Hts. incorporation backers see OK

The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. president Wednesday said he is confident that Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford will rule today in favor of incorporating Prospect Heights and order a referendum on the measure.

Jack Gilligan, association president, Wednesday said he expects a favorable ruling from the judge during a hearing at the Civic Center, Chicago. Gilligan also said he expects the judge to throw out objections by Arlington Heights and Wheeling that the proposed new community would interfere with delivery of municipal services in the two villages.

Gilligan also said he doubts Comerford will order any major boundary changes in the proposed community.

However, Gilligan said he expects Jack Siegel, attorney for Arlington Heights, to raise a new objection that the law on which the incorporation effort is based is unconstitutional.

Mount Prospect officials Tuesday voted to withdraw their objections to the incorporation of Prospect Heights. Mayor Robert D. Teichert said the action was taken because the proposed boundaries were changed to exclude the Rob Roy Golf Course.

Gilligan denied Wednesday a report that the PHIA also had withdrawn from its original plan to include a portion of the Palwaukee Airport in the incorporation plans. Teichert and the Mount Prospect Village Board had been informed, apparently erroneously, that the airport was removed from the proposed Prospect Heights boundaries.

Army weighs $1.4 million for Nike Base

by DIANE MERMUGAS

U. S. Army officials said Wednesday that a $1.4 million facility is being considered for the Arlington Heights Nike Base to replace the existing wooden barracks and other buildings.

The announcement was made during a meeting of the Nike site, Wilke and Central roads, with Army officials, representatives of the Illinois Attorney General's office and residents who want the base to be turned into a park.

Break for small savers?

Ford seeking broad financing reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Wednesday to approve wide-ranging reform of the financial industry to give small savers a better return on their dollar and provide a more stable flow of funds for home and apartment construction.

The administration's bill, virtually a carbon copy of one that died in Congress last year, would sharpen competition between banks, savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and the credit unions by allowing each to offer new services.

For example, the 2,500 federally chartered savings and loan associations and 500 mutual savings banks could set up customer checking accounts, a service now exclusively held by commercial banks.

CREDIT UNIONS, which have about 23,000 outlets around the nation, more than any other type of financial institution, could offer members bigger loans and also deal in mortgages.

And 14,000 commercial banks could give depositors interest on their checking accounts through so-called NOW accounts, which are widely used in Canada but in the United States are legal only in Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

William O'Connell, a spokesman for the U.S. League of Savings Associations in Chicago, said he favored the "general idea" of checking accounts for consumers, but he did not support interest-bearing checking accounts in other than the two states where they are offered.

The interest-bearing checking accounts should be considered carefully by consumers, said Fritz Wolf, president of the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights.

"It doesn't make a difference," he said. "You'll charge for your service if you give money out on it."

Five-and-one-half years after becoming law, the act also provides that interest-rate ceilings on all types of savings accounts be eliminated.

This would allow savings interest rate to fluctuate according to supply and demand and might help stem the enormous flow of funds from thrift institutions to more lucrative short-term securities. When this has occurred in the past, the housing industry has found itself strapped for funds to finance new homes and apartments.

The current ceilings are 5.75 per cent on short-term savings and 7.75 per cent on long term deposits.

THE CEILINGS worked a special hardship on small savers since it takes a minimum $10,000 to buy most securities that offer yields above the ceiling rate.

O'Connell said he favored the continuation of ceilings on interest rates "because our loans are all long-term."

A more viable means of assuring home buyers that financing will be available is the variable-rate mortgage (VRM), O'Connell said. If an earlier VRM proposal is approved by Congress "it would allow mortgage rates to move up and down and open the way for a variable rate savings accounts," he said.

Possible changes in the tax credit that may accompany the proposed reform may be too great a price to pay for added powers, he added.

TREASURY SEC. William E. Simon called the act "more than regulatory reform, it's fundamentally a consumer measure."

Simon said it also provides "flexibility that many financial institutions need."

Deputy Treasury Secretary Steven Gardner said he was "very confident" the act would get serious attention on Capitol Hill and that passage by fall was a possibility.

The package of proposals is known as the Financial Institutions Act of 1975, and traces its origin to recommendations put forward by a presidential task force known as the Hunt Commission.

Prospect Hts. schools to offer eye tests

Free vision and hearing tests for preschool children in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will be given March 24 and 25 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at MacArthur Junior High School, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Prospect Heights.

Registration for the tests will be at the school from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday. Children must have been 3 as of March 1 to be screened.

Parents also can register their children for learning disability and language tests at that time. These tests will be given in April.

Ice cream parlor planned on Campbell

Baskin-Robbins plans to open an ice cream parlor in downtown Arlington Heights.

A hearing before the plan commission is scheduled for April 9. The village board will have final decision on the proposed parlor.

Her employment ordered

State rules teacher was job bias victim

The Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission ruled Wednesday that a woman with preschool children was the object of discrimination when she was turned down for a teaching job in 1972.

The commission upheld an earlier ruling that the woman, Colleen Simon of Glenview, was refused a job by East Maine Dist. 63 "because of her motherhood without objective proof that it would create a problem."

The examiner had also said the school officials presented no evidence to support the hiring of an inexperienced male teacher in place of Mrs. Simon, who was described as "a good experienced teacher with a good record."

THE COMMISSION ordered the district to employ Mrs. Simon as a junior high social studies teacher and reimburse her for back pay to September 1972. Mrs. Simon estimates the district owes her about $25,000. The district must also restore all benefits and seniority she would have received since 1972.

Mrs. Simon said Dist. 63 officials have not contacted her but that "I haven't changed my mind about teaching."

"I'm really thrilled with the decision and I feel it was extremely fair. I'm glad I went ahead with the suit," she said.

School officials said they cannot comment on the ruling until they receive the official order.

MRS. SIMON filed the complaint in September 1972, saying she was refused a full-time position as social studies teacher at Gemini Junior High School because Principal Donald Huebner "firmly believed and stated on various occasions that a woman with small children belongs at home."

The complaint also charged that the school district interviewed Mrs. Simon "under false pretenses," knowing that a man had already been hired for the position.

The commission examiner later submitted recommendations upholding Mrs. Simon's complaints.

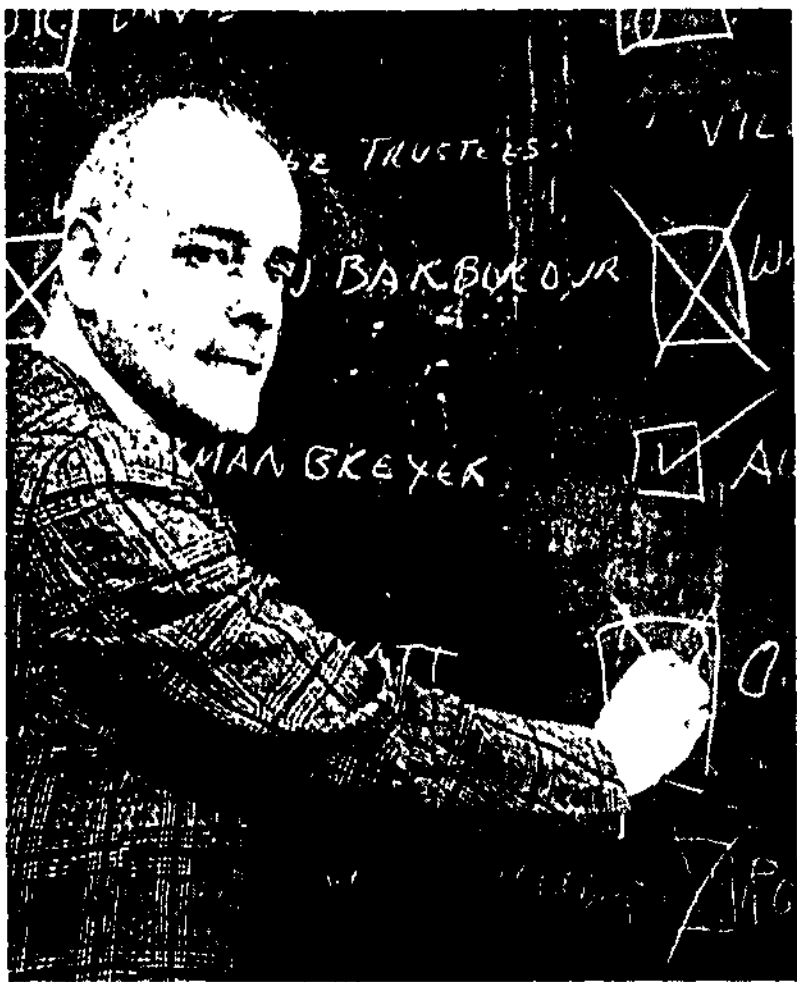

DIST. 63 OFFICIALS appealed the ruling, saying that "experience is not the sole criterion" for employment and that Huebner felt Mrs. Simon was "a good teacher but a structured teacher."

The commission rejected the school officials' appeals saying that Huebner testified on two occasions that Mrs. Simon's children "were a factor in not hiring her."

The commission said the district's "philosophical and style qualifications . . . are too ephemeral to withstand objective scrutiny."

Key Clubs defer meeting on female-members issue

High school student members of Kiwanis International-sponsored Key Clubs bowed to pressure from their sponsor Wednesday night and postponed a meeting to plot strategy for a bylaws change that would allow girls to join the club.

The students agreed to a Kiwanis request for a meeting today of Kiwanis and high school officials and the students.

Members of the Elk Grove High School Key Club are spearheading a drive to change key club rules which prohibit female membership. About half the members of the club, like about 30 others in the Chicago area, are girls who listed only their first initial when registering with Key Club International.

THE PRESSURE came in the form of phone calls from unidentified Kiwanis officials to Donald Ring, Elk Grove High School principal; Dominic Sparacino, high school Key Club adviser; and Richard Harrell, president of the Elk Grove Kiwanis chapter.

Ring said he was "requested" to cancel the meeting but refused, saying he would relay the officials' desire to the student members of the club. Ring did not name the official but said he was told that the club had violated its charter by having girls as members and couldn't "legally" hold the meeting.

Several officials from the Kiwanis and Key Club International showed up at the meeting to further their desire to delay the meeting. Only five schools were represented at the meeting.

ELK GROVE High School teacher Richard Cherico told the students, "If you call off this meeting I will see you get adult help in getting this thing through."

Cherico, who is not a Kiwanis member, was the main factor in convincing the students to delay the meeting until their representatives can meet with Kiwanis officials.

Donald Johnson, Elk Grove High School Key Club president, tentatively scheduled another meeting of Key Club presidents for Tuesday. Johnson said he was disappointed in the slim turnout and the angry reaction from Kiwanis officials. Johnson had expected 40 to 60 club presidents at the meeting.

Johnson hopes to organize support for the bylaws change which will allow females as full club members, at the Key Club International district convention in Chicago April 4-6.

IF HE GETS district support, Johnson is planning strategy for the club's national convention in July when he hopes to force a vote to change the rule. He said he is not discouraged by the fact that his club may not be a member of Key Club International by July now that its charter violation has been made public.

"We'll go anyway and work through other clubs," he said.

If Johnson is successful in July, the change still must be approved by the Kiwanis International Board.

The Elk Grove Key Club faces a similar situation faced by its sponsor, the Elk Grove Kiwanis Club, which was threatened last fall with revocation of its charter because it had a female member, Elk Grove librarian Mary Clark. Miss Clark later resigned.

Crisis unit training slated

Turning Point, the crisis-intervention hotline serving Wheeling Township, will begin a training session for volunteers April 3. Volunteers will meet once a week for six weeks during the session.

Turning Point volunteers answer hotline calls from 5 p.m. to midnight weekdays and 9 a.m. to noon Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The hotline also works in conjunction with the Wheeling Township Service Center's "Phone Assure" program for the elderly.

Guitar classes open Monday

The Arlington Heights Park District will begin its guitar classes Monday at Recreation Park, 500 E. Miner St.

The beginners' class will be offered at 6:30 p.m., the intermediate class at 7:30 p.m. and the advanced class at 8:30 p.m.

Prospect Hts. incorporation backers see OK

The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. president Wednesday said he is confident that Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford will rule today in favor of incorporating Prospect Heights and order a referendum on the measure.

Jack Gilligan, association president, Wednesday said he expects a favorable ruling from the judge during a hearing at the Civic Center, Chicago. Gilligan also said he expects the judge to throw out objections by Arlington Heights and Wheeling that the proposed new community would interfere with delivery of municipal services in the two villages.

Gilligan also said he doubts Comerford will order any major boundary changes in the proposed community.

However, Gilligan said he expects Jack Siegel, attorney for Arlington Heights, to raise a new objection that the law on which the incorporation effort is based is unconstitutional.

Mount Prospect officials Tuesday voted to withdraw their objections to the incorporation of Prospect Heights. Mayor Robert D. Telchert said the action was taken because the proposed boundaries were changed to exclude the Rob Roy Golf Course.

VILLAGE CATS have a friend in Trustee Richard Durava. Durava's committee decided to allow cats to roam without a leash or human escort, but will require them to be vaccinated against rabies and to be licensed by the village.

Cats may be tagged, but can they be leashed?

by JOE SWICKARD

With references ranging from the ancient and exalted Pharaohs to former Gov. Adlai Stevenson, the Arlington Heights community services committee voted Wednesday night to include cats in municipal rabies-control and tagging ordinances.

However, efforts to leash the animals, control them, or to limit their activities in heat were deferred for six months pending more study.

Trustee Richard Durava, chairman of the committee, set the tone early when he posted a photograph of one of his two Persian cats on the meeting room door. The picture of the cat sticking out its tongue, he said, would identify the room for the arriving citizens.

JOAN HANMERSTONE, testifying on behalf of the control ordinances, said roaming cats use sandboxes, bushes and shrubs to relieve themselves. She also said a neighbor had to cut a hole in a living room wall to free a cat trapped inside.

Durava said efforts to "control" cats were futile. "You don't control a cat. A cat controls you," he said.

Under a proposed ordinance, police would be charged with capturing cats running at large on the streets. Police Capt. Maurice English said his men now answer calls about cats, but it is a difficult task.

"A cat is permitted to roam as a free soul. We try to apprehend them. But, did you ever really try to catch a cat?" he asked.

THE SUGGESTED ordinance would have called for keeping cats in heat off public property and at least 10 feet from parkways on the owner's lawn.

Durava asked how a policeman or citizen could tell if a cat is in heat.

Trustee Russell Colvin said, "You'd have to bring your tomcat along."

Countering arguments that howling cats were a nuisance, Durava said they "... sound like a sonata on a Stradivarius played by Paganini."

HE SAID CATS had been worshipped by the Pharaohs. He said it was unnatural to force cats to be leashed, as are dogs.

And quoting from "good old Gov. Adlai Stevenson," he read the former governor's veto message of 1949 when the state legislature voted to leash and confine cats.

"It is the nature of a cat to do a certain amount of uncontrolled roaming... also consider the owner's dilemma: to escort a cat abroad on a leash... is against the nature of the owner... The State of Illinois and local government bodies already have enough to do without trying to control feline delinquency..." he read from the governor's message.

Dr. Richard Sefcik, a veterinarian with Kare Animal Hospital, concurred that it is "difficult" to lead a cat on a leash. A cat will "plunk his butt and he won't move," the doctor said.

DURAVA AGREED with the rest of the committee to require cats in the village to be vaccinated against rabies as a safety measure. The cats would have to wear a tag.

However, he split with the other members over licensing them. He said he was opposed to licensing any pets for a fee and would vote "tomorrow morning" to rescind the dog license fee.

The committee voted to license cats, with the fee to be established by the full village board. Durava said if cats and dogs have to be licensed, other pets, including canaries, turtles, boa constrictors and gerbils, must be also to maintain equality.

The entire matter will be considered later by the village board.

Teachers oppose Iowa Tests use

by BOB GALLAS

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Teachers Council, opposed to using Iowa Achievement Tests to measure student achievement is circulating petitions among teachers to get rid of the test.

Alma Parrish, president of the district council, said Wednesday teachers will meet next week to decide if they will ask the administration to dump the test.

If the teachers' union has enough support from district teachers it will ask the administration to come up with another way of testing students to find out how well they are doing in basic skills.

THE IOWA TEST is one of more than 35 standardized tests used by schools to test achievement.

"We want a better, more modern way to test achievement," said Mrs. Parrish, a teacher at Marshall School, 711 Chelmsford Ln., Elk Grove Village. "The whole format (of the tests) throws the kids off."

"For the younger kids, the process of filling in a small grid to indicate the right answer is a project in itself," Mrs. Parrish said. "It's not a good means to measure children. The frustration level of the child after the tests is terrible."

ACTING SUPT. Roger Bardwell said he was not aware of the petition but was supportive of the teacher's request.

"It's a very destructive system of evaluation," Bardwell said. "Half the kids who take the test have to score below the 50th percentile by the very nature of the test."

"The tests often destroy the parents' confidence in their child and the child's self-image as well," he said.

"It's a box we've allowed to be built around us. The Iowa tests were supposed to be diagnostic, not an assessment of a child's ability," Bardwell said. "The whole use of the test has become corrupted."

Mrs. Parrish said she didn't know what support the petition was getting so far.

She said if enough support is obtained from teachers, the union will ask that teachers be involved in a study to come up with a new way of evaluating student performance in the district.

Correction

Misplaced decimal points led to the incorrect reporting of tax rates in two stories Wednesday dealing with Arlington Heights' 1975-76 village budget.

According to budget estimates, the village tax rate will climb 9.5 per cent from an anticipated 89 cents per $100 assessed valuation this year, to an estimated 98 cents in 1976.

The second story should have reported that Trustee Frank Palmatier, finance committee chairman, estimates the village would have to add 41 cents per $100 assessed valuation to raise the same amount of money now produced by the village utility tax. Such an increase could make the village's tax rate the highest in the county, Palmatier said.
